STATE AND CITY ACTION ON BEER

Today

No Europe for Roosevelt
Cedars of Lebanon
One Big Word BEER
Who for 1936?
—By Arthur Brisbane—

EUROPE HOPES for a visit from Governor Roosevelt before March 4, and London hears that he is "indulgent on debt," is going over "to get first-hand information."

The average American thinks first-hand information is right here in America now. There is no doubt that we LENT the money, no doubt that they owe it. There is considerable doubt about their paying it, and the question is whether the new President of the United States would rather have Europe's debts paid by Europe or paid by American taxpayers. You will be pleased to know that Governor Roosevelt is not going to Europe.

The Frenchman who bosses the Lebanese Republic, where cedars of Lebanon once grew so beautifully, finds Lebanese unfit for Parliamentary government. Their politicians acquire big fortunes, create new offices and impose heavy taxes.

That to America is amusing news. More serious news, and sad, tells about the cedars of Lebanon. There are only a few left, in a small enclosure, protected from vandals and cattle. Once Lebanon's forest supplied treeless Egypt.

King Solomon, if he gets news of the earth where he is now, will be sorry to hear about that. He liked cedars of Lebanon.

The important word just now is BEER. Washington reports that Mr. Garner and Senators Robinson of Arkansas and Reed of Pennsylvania will propose a beer bill in December. Beer will be welcome to many workers, and a light wine bill would please many workers of Latin origin. "Lifting the ban" on alcohol should be limited to beer and light wines, which, as Thomas Jefferson remarked, help the cause of real temperance.

Whiskey, gin, brandy and similar concoctions should be classed with other drugs and sold only on a doctor's prescription.

Republicans already discuss "a candidate for 1936," and names are suggested. Nineteen thirty-six is a long way off, and when that year does come around the people's ideas concerning available presidential timber may have changed considerably.

The "right Republican" for 1936 will depend on the successes and mistakes of Democrats in the meanwhile.

Temperamental Wall Street sobbed and frowned on Wednesday—prices went down. Yesterday Wal' Street smiled, with prices going up from one to six points for the day. That's encouraging, but the wise man will study big corporation reports of profits and losses during this quarter rather than little figures on the ticker.

New York's unemployment relief committee finds, "A marked increase in serious illness in families of the unemployed; a shocking increase in cases of under-nourishment among children, and 66 per cent increase in the number of night's lodgings provided by the municipal lodging houses. The number of women and children seeking shelter increased by 171 per cent."

Such conditions represent too big a job for private relief. It is the business of the government to see that citizens do not go hungry, or women and children beg for a place to sleep.

Japan suggests that the League of Nations bar poison gas absolutely, nations not even allowed to use gas against those that might use it against them. Japan would even forbid manufacture of "material for defense against poison gas." That is all interesting.

But the United States, which does not attack other nations, and does not propose to be successfully attacked by anybody, should have for its defense everything known to science, including the most deadly gases, and the most powerful air and submarine fleets. We should be able to say to other countries: "Don't disturb us. We shall not disturb you. Come here and see that for yourselves that if you do disturb us you will be wiped out, and no advice from the League of Nations will be asked."

Clipperton Island, 1000 miles out in the Pacific ocean, southwest of Mexico, is turned over to France by the Mexican government without struggle or protest. That island, occupied in turn by Spain, England, the United States, Costa Rica, France, Mexico, was finally claimed by France, and the question submitted for arbitration to King Victor Emmanuel of Italy. Italy decides for France and Mexico acquiesces. It's a good way to settle international disputes, but you can't depend on it.

ROOSEVELT IN BED WITH COLD

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 11 (AP)—President-elect Roosevelt today was confined to his bed with a slight cold. He cancelled his week-end trip to Hyde Park to rest at the executive mansion. A report from the mansion said he did not have a temperature.

Mr. Roosevelt said yesterday that he had contracted a cold last Tuesday on his motor trip from Hyde Park to New York city, but he added he believed he had tossed it off. He rode in an open car that day and during most of the trip was bare-headed, while he waved his hat to the crowds along the way.

TRAP PAIR IN SOMERVILLE AFTER CHASE

Youths Give Up When Officer Opens Fire After Crash in Sullivan Sq.

For more than a mile, from Sullivan sq., into Somerville, Traffic Officer John F. Lyons, of Charlestown station, chased two youthful automobile thieves today after their car had crashed into another at Lyons' traffic post.

The two boys, both living in Hecla st., Dorchester, were captured as they scuttled into an alley off Kensington ave., Somerville, after the policeman had fired shots into the air.

Traffic was halted for pedestrians when the stolen car, admitted by the boys to have been taken from the Dorchester ave. parking place back of South Station, came tearing into Sullivan sq.

BUMPS SAFETY ISLAND

The car bumped up over a safety island, veered off, struck the machine of Israel Rubin of 10 Warren ave., Chelsea, who was waiting for the traffic official's signal, and then continued on into Somerville, along Broadway.

The traffic officer's whistle shrilled, but when the youthful riders failed to halt, Lyons leaped on the running board of Rubin's car and the chase began up Broadway, with the policeman's car gaining all the way.

At Broadway and Cross st., the fugitive car whined to a stop, the two boys leaped out and ran, and Officer Lyons set out after them on foot.

FIRES IN AIR TWICE

He was being outdistanced when he drew out his service revolver and fired two shots into the air. Apparently frightened by the reports, the boys turned and darted into the alley off Kensington ave., where they were trapped.

One of the boys was booked at Charlestown station on charges of being a delinquent, larceny of an automobile, operating without a license, operating so as to endanger, and leaving the scene of an accident without making his identity known.

The other was charged with being a delinquent, and with larceny of the automobile, which is registered, according to police, to Joseph Hunter of Geneva ave., Dorchester.

CITY HONORS ITS FALLEN HEROES

15,000 Veterans Parade Here in the Feature Event of the Peace Day Anniversary

Pictures on Pages 21 and 32

A little older, a little grayer, but with the same snap and spirit with which they moved against the enemy, veterans of the World War swung along to the stirring strains of martial music today in Boston's biggest Armistice Day parade since that historic day 14 years ago.

While the line of march was banked with cheering thousands, 15,000 veterans of all wars, together with members of veterans' auxiliaries, marched proudly along to climax the city's great observance of a great day.

At 1:15, behind a detail of mounted police, James P. Rose, state commander of the American Legion, led the procession. Legionnaires in the van of the procession were followed by a U. S. naval band, a detachment of U. S. Marines and Naval Reserves.

National Guard units, their youth standing out in marked contrast to the veterans that preceded and followed them, marched through the banks of crowded thousands.

COLORFUL SPECTACLE.

Veterans of the Spanish War came next, followed by a small detachment of Indian fighters who helped make the great domain of the West tranquil after the pioneers had pushed the boundries of empire westward.

Disabled veterans, riding in open cars, received a tremendous ovation as they passed in review before the crowd.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars marched behind the colorfully attired ladies of the Legion auxiliary, and were followed by their auxiliary, also brilliantly attired.

The parade formed at Common-

Sen. David I. Walsh 60 Years Old Today

Besides being Armistice Day, today is the 6th birthday of U. S. Senator David I. Walsh, Massachusetts' senior senator was born in Leominster and his home for many years has been in Clinton, where, today, he received scores of messages of congratulation.

He has been a member of the Senate since 1919; his present term does not expire until 1935.

Curley Lauds Houghton's; Record Adv. in American

The Boston Evening American prints today for Houghton's the largest volume of newspaper advertising ever placed in Boston or in New England by one firm in one day's issues.

There are 16 full pages of advertisements from this store announcing Greater Houghton Day tomorrow in all editions of the Boston Evening American today.

At 9 a. m. on Saturday the doors of Houghton's, as told in the 16 solid pages of advertising, will be thrown open for what is expected to be the greatest day in retail store history. More than 2000 extra sales people have been employed to care for the great rush such as has marked previous sales events at this store and given exclusive newspaper publication as special sections in the Evening American.

Mayor Curley, on observing the record-breaking advertisement, declared it to be a healthy sign of returning prosperity.

"The enterprising, forward-looking management of the Houghton & Dutton Co. are reading aright the signs indicating the return of prosperity to America, and in their advertisement appearing in today's issue of the Boston Evening American they give tangible evidence of their confidence, courage and vision.

"These are the three requisites for the restoration of prosperity to this nation, and if other business houses and individuals would display any one or all three of these essentials, the depression would shortly be a memory.

"I congratulate President A. W. Ackermann and all the men back of this great event."

"Words Are Good When Backed by Deeds, and Only So"—Theodore Roosevelt

MR. HOOVER, on the night of the election, sent the following telegram to Mr. Roosevelt:

"I congratulate you on the opportunity that has come to you to be of service to the country and I wish for you a most successful administration. In the common purpose of all of us I shall dedicate myself to every possible helpful effort.
"HERBERT HOOVER."

MR. HOOVER'S message of congratulation to Mr. Roosevelt is an admirable utterance and expresses a fine and undoubtedly sincere sentiment.

Mr. Hoover shows a better side of his character in defeat than he did in the height of his success. The arrogance, obstinacy and perversity, which distinguished Mr. Hoover when he believed himself the master of the situation, have been replaced by a tolerance and an apparent willingness to learn from events and to comply with the expressed will of the people.

However, the people must judge Mr. Hoover by his actions in the remaining months of his administration rather than by his professions in a polite message of congratulation to the President-elect.

If Mr. Hoover really desires to co-operate with the incoming President, if he really is willing to learn from the clearly expressed verdict of the public, he will proceed to take more account of public opinion and to give more consideration to the expression of the public will.

He must abandon the idea that the "crowd has no mind of its own" and that "popular desires are no criteria to the real need."

In this country, with its enlightened electorate, where the average good citizen is entirely the equal of any public official, even of the President, in intelligence and knowledge of public affairs and in patriotic devotion to the welfare of the nation, the "crowd HAS a mind of its own and popular desires are very DEFINITE criteria to the public need.

The wisdom of the people is what guides the nation to success.

No public official, from the President down, can do more to make his administration of office a success than to consult with the people, listen to their sound and homely wisdom and endeavor to carry out their will.

Such a program leaves ample opportunity for the development of his own resourcefulness and the expression of his own judgment, so long as these conform to the general desires and objectives of the people who are his employers and his masters.

The recent elections repudiated SOMETHING in the most emphatic manner in which it was possible for the electorate to express its condemnation.

BREWERIES SPEED PLANS FOR BEER IN BOSTON

Rush Is on for Cafe Locations; Gov. Ely and City Council to Take Early Action

Beer!

Beer is on its way back.

This was the situation today in various parts of the country:

BOSTON—Governor Ely to frame new state liquor legislation. City Council to pass on orders for licensing beer. Real estate brokers seek locations for breweries and cafes for prominent clients.

CHICAGO—Breweries prepare to run full blast on orders of Mayor Cermak. Beer runners plan to buy a brewery and "go legitimate." Alderman "Bathhouse John Coughlin introduces council order for $1000 licenses for all saloons.

DETROIT—All imprisoned dry law violators, including 23 women, to be freed by Gov.-elect Comstock, the voters having killed the state prohibition statute.

WASHINGTON—Sen. Borah, irreconcilable dry, hints at plan to kill beer legislation at short session by filibuster. Other leaders see legalizing of beer by Christmas. Problems to be settled include alcoholic content; ban on draft beer and foreign hops; legalizing of light wines.

Sen. Tydings, Maryland, quotes expert opinion that word "liquors" in 18th amendment does not embrace beer and wines.

CLEVELAND—Largest manufacturer of beer-bottling equipment receives rush orders from breweries in eight states, including Massachusetts.

EUROPE—France and Italy plan to market wines here.

Boston today was moving with astonishing swiftness toward restoration of beer.

A survey by the Boston Evening American revealed that the movement is far beyond what the casual observer realizes.

Gov. Ely intends to appoint a special commission almost immediately to draft state legislation to conform to the "new deal" on beer which Congress is expected to enact.

This the Governor announced to the Evening American by long distance telephone from Amherst where he turned aside from collegiate inauguration ceremonies to answer queries.

There is a rush on already for suitable locations, both for breweries and dispensing establishments.

This was revealed definitely, authoritatively and convincingly by real estate brokers who have received orders from prominent clients.

There will be action in the Boston City Council toward permitting sale of beer here.

CITY COUNCIL TO ACT

This was indicated when Councillor William Barker, East Boston, announced he would introduce orders on Monday which, if passed, would ease the way for early return of beer.

These orders will:

Call on police to make no further efforts to enforce liquor laws in Boston.

Provide for council action to bring about the immediate return of beer by appropriate legislation.

ROOSEVELT GIVES FIRST INTERVIEW

WILL KEEP PARTY PLEDGES, REVIVE INDUSTRY FOR ALL

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 11 (INS)—One of the few interviews granted by President-elect Roosevelt since his lection has been given to M. H. Halton, of the Toronto Star, and was published in that newspaper as a semi-official message from the President-elect to the Canadian people.

One of the important questions Halton asked the President-elect was:

"Mr. Roosevelt, is your liberalism going to take the form of any socialistic interference with private business?"

To this the President-elect was quoted as replying:

"We are traditionally American in that we believe in private enterprise and initiative. But there is a limit to all that—and that limit is the welfare of the common people.

"The same man that tells you he doesn't want to see the government interfere in business is often the first to go to Washington and ask the government for prohibitory tariff on his product.

THEN COMES LOAN

"When things get just bad enough, as they did two years ago, he will go with equal speed to the government to ask for a loan.

"Many powerful groups have sought protection from the government for their own special interests without realizing that the function of government must be to favor no small group at the expense of its duty to protect the rights of personal freedom and the private property of all its citizens."

"You mean," Halton suggested, "that the day is past when politicians can talk glibly about equality of opportunity?"

"Exactly," President-elect Roosevelt was quoted as replying. "A mere glance at the situation today indicates only too clearly that equality of opportunity as we used to know it no longer exists. Mr. Woodrow Wilson had realized that in 1912, and except for the World War he might have had a wholly different situation today.

TO FULFILL PLEDGES

"The problem he saw so clearly is our legacy today, and no one can deny that it is a matter of grave concern."

Halton then asked: "What is the keystone of your policy?"

"It is that everyone has the right to make a living," he quoted the President-elect. "It is that the United States owes to everyone an avenue to possess himself a portion of that plenty with which this land abounds. It is that this government has a social contract to fulfill; and the terms of that contract are as old as the Republic and as new as the new economic order."

"Mr. Roosevelt," Halton asked, "do you really expect to put the promises of your platform into effect?"

"Our promises weren't made merely to win an election," was the quoted reply. "As a matter of fact, I am going into office without any of those baffling commitments which are like a millstone around the necks of so many successful candidates. I am going in determined to carry out our platform pledges.

THE KING'S DAY IS DEAD

"The time has come for a reapprisal of values. The unfeeling statistics of the last 30 years show that the independent business man has been running a losing race against the great corporations. Plainly enough, we were steering toward economic oligarchy, if we were not already there.

"Our big job is to realize that the day of the great promoter or the financial titian, to whom we granted anything if only he would build and develop, is over.

"Our task now is not discovery or exploitation of resources; it is the soberer, less dramatic business of administering resources alread, in hand, of seeking to reestablish foreign markets for our surplus production, of meeting the problems of under consumption, of distributing wealth and products more equitably and adopting existing economic organizations to the service of the people."

Roosevelt Won't Name Cabinet Until January

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 11 (INS)—Franklin D. Roosevelt, President-elect intends to take his time in selecting his cabinet and he will not reach any decision before Jan. 1.

There is a strong possibility Mr. Roosevelt will not formally announce his cabinet until just before he is inaugurated on March 4.

With the exception of a two weeks' vacation at Warm Springs, Ga., the latter part of this month, he will devote all of his time to the duties of governor. Once he has turned the reins of the New York government over to his successor, Col. Herbert H. Lehman, he will begin to give serious consideration to his cabinet and other federal appointments.

Mr. Roosevelt, according to his close associates, was annoyed over reports that he planned to promptly announce at least two of his cabinet appointments—Secretary of State and Secretary of the Treasury—in order to "reassure" and "steady" business. He feels that the tremendous vote which swept him into the presidency is more than sufficient to "steady" business during the next few months.

"Toots" Mondt Gets Year in Auto Death

Barrie, Ont., Nov. 11 (AP)—Joseph ("Toots") Mondt, New York wrestling promoter, was found guilty of criminal negligence and sentenced to one year in the Ontario reformatory by Justice Patrick Kerwin in the Supreme Court Assizes here. He was found not guilty on a second charge of manslaughter. His arrest followed the death of a Toronto girl in a motor-car accident.

Eye Witnesses Watch Tidal Wave Wipe Out Town

Camaguey, Cuba, Nov. 11 (AP)—Every train from the South bore its quota of injured refugees from Santa Cruz Del Sur today—tragic evidence of the fury of a tidal wave that almost swept the town off the map of Cuba.

A few could tell their stories; others were dazed and mute; some were unconscious, dying.

It was hard to determine just what happened from these pitiful groups as they lay in the various emergency hospitals at Camaguey.

The storm first struck, they said, during Tuesday night, and some 500 residents began moving out of their homes to the surrounding countryside.

70 BOATS DESTROYED

But the rest of the 3000 residents remained with their belongings. They lived through a 100-mile an hour wind, but little did they dream that behind it was a 20-foot wall of water.

Suddenly out of the blackness just before dawn the crash of fishing boats in the harbor—70 of them were destroyed—notified the town it was doomed.

There was time for little besides mad dashing for a safety that could not be found anywhere. Jose Diaz, the Santa Cruz station agent, said hundreds of persons crowded about five empty boxcars on a railway siding. He couldn't say why, unless they thought the cars were too heavy for the tide to move.

SCORES DROWN IN CARS

Diaz took refuge on the station, and watched the terror-stricken group below clamber inside the cars. Then the main force of the water hit the big cars broadside, toppling four and drowning all the occupants. The other floated into the swirling water, and was carried nearly a mile to dry land.

Three-story houses and business buildings snapped like matches, and hundreds were buried beneath debris. A survivor told how his wife was carried down with their home while he and his children were swept with it to safety.

The storm lasted 12 hours, and the water began going down yesterday. A hasty check revealed the town with but a few city officials to run it in its greatest emergency.

Among the dead were Mayor-elect Juan Vega Barzaga, and his father, Representative Antonio Martinez Barzaga, Judge Rafael Cruz, the postmaster and his eight children, and nine city councillors.

HEARTBREAKING SCENES

The latest survivors arriving here said the authorities were on the point of ordering wholesale cremation because the able-bodied citizens could not bury the dead fast enough. The corespondent of the newspaper Cama Gueyano said a nine-car train bearing 450 wounded was on the way here. Only a few persons were still searching despairingly last night for relatives.

There were heart-breaking scenes as the last of three refugee trains arrived last night. Those among earlier arrivals who were not seriously injured gathered in a knot about the railway station and eagerly scanned the pallets in the cars.

One would cry out at the sight of an injured relative, and hastily whisper, "Where's Jose Maria," or "Where's Carlos," and the answer was always the same: "Dead."

$500,000 FIRE CAN'T STOP FIRM

Peabody, Nov. 11 — Before the ashes were even cool, plans were made today for resuming operations by the Amdur Liman Co., whose $500,000 leather plant was burned out last night.

Following a conference attended by Mayor J. Leo Sullivan, former Gov. Frank G. Allen, Atty. Francis J. Crosby and Chief Assessor Cornelius P. Flynn, it was announced that the company would resume operations in the plant of the old Morrill Leather Co. on Main st.

Former Gov. Allen, whose Winslow Bros. & Smith Co. leather company owns the Morrill plant, offered its use at the conference, and it is expected that the building can made ready for use in about two weeks.

The Amdur Liman Co. employs more than 300 operatives. The plant was insured for $333,000.

Murri Death to Bare Old Murder Mystery

Bologna, Italy, Nov. 11 (AP)—Augusto Murri, once regarded as Italy's greatest surgeon, died today at 91 of an apoplectic stroke. His death recalls the family mystery which surrounded the murder of a son-in-law 30 years ago. Dr. Murri's son, Tullio, was sentenced to 17 years in prison. He died last year and it was said he left a written revelation to be opened after his father's death.

Hoover himself, then it certainly is of his policies, and Mr. Hoover, if he has changed his mind somewhat and now desires to comply with the will of the public and to appreciate the fact that popular desires ARE criteria to the public need, will not insist in the remaining four months of his term, on urging upon the Congress and endeavoring to impose on the nation the policies which have been so overwhelmingly repudiated.

IF Mr. Hoover is wise and sincere, he will cease devoting his main attention to the difficulties of foreign nations and will exercise the power which the people of the United States have given him and employ the time for which the people of the United States are paying him, IN LOOKING AFTER THE INTERESTS OF THE PEOPLE OF THIS COUNTRY.

We have difficulties, too. We appreciate Mr. Hoover's kind heart and sympathetic nature, but let him employ his mind and his heart for OUR needs and expend his sympathies on OUR difficulties.

The question of moratoriums and foreign debt payments will be among the first to present themselves to the consideration of the administration after this election.

In fact, the foreign nations, which shrewdly waited until after the election before agitating their demands, are now beginning to uncover their plans for postponement and cancellation of foreign debts.

If Mr. Hoover has learned anything from this election he should stand firm on the often expressed determination of the American people to make no further concessions to foreign debtors.

Half the foreign debt has already been cancelled. THE OTHER HALF MUST BE PAID.

It is to be hoped, too, that Mr. Hoover's administration has made no commitments through the President or through his secretaries or through the administration's agents abroad which will involve this country in foreign complications and foreign entanglements and precipitate us into foreign wars.

It has been stated in the press dispatches that the administration has received with favor France's proposal of a security pact.

That is a plan by which the United States will guarantee the security of France.

THE people of this country have nothing but the friendliest feelings toward the people of France, and, in fact, toward the people of all other foreign nations, but these foreign nations must attend to their own "security," and the best way for them to maintain that security is to stop preparations and provocations which invite war.

The people of the United States do not want to take part in any further foreign conflicts. Our people will make every effort to promote peace through good example and good offices, but they will not participate in foreign wars, nor guarantee the security of any scheming, hating, warring foreign nations.

The correction of Mr. Hoover's foreign policies, so wholly at variance with the will and wisdom of the American people, will do much to rehabilitate him in the opinion of the people.

The chief change necessary in his domestic policy is the realization that the depression cannot be dispelled by using government funds MERELY TO FINANCE THE FINANCIERS and an appreciation of the fact that to bring back prosperity, THE WELFARE OF THE MASSES must be primarily considered and the PURCHASING POWER OF THE COMMUNITY INCREASED.

IF Mr. Hoover will NOW allow the Democratic Congress to pass a bill for a prosperity loan, and so secure government funds to give work to the unemployed, to sustain the American standard of wages, to increase the purchasing power of the masses and so stimulate purchases in the shops, orders of manufactured goods from the factories and the consumption of raw materials from the farms and the mines, he will see the whole nation begin to throb with renewed vigor and will have the satisfaction of noting a distinct revival in prosperity even before he leaves office.

Nor in making the prosperity loan, need Mr. Hoover any longer be afraid of the bankers' bogie of inflation.

A little REFLATION of the circulating medium—banknote currency plus bank deposit currency—to what it was in times of prosperity would be extremely good for the country.

In fact, this judicious REFLATION would in itself do much to revive prosperity.

Finally, in adopting these popular policies Mr. Hoover will be complying with the spirit of his dispâtch to his successful rival, and not only co-operating with the President and Vice-President-elect, but accepting commendably the verdict of the people and duly and wisely conforming to the people's will.

John D., Sr., Expects to Live Through Depression

Ormond Beach, Fla., Nov. 11—John D. Rockefeller, Sr., at his winter home here says that at 93 he has lived through more than one depression and confidently expects to live through the present one.

John D. Rockefeller, Sr.

The aged financier arrived here yesterday in a private car with a retinue of friends and servants. He appears to be in good health despite the fact that he carried a walking stick, an unusual custom for him, and leaned on the arm of a servant.

Members of his staff at Casements, his winter home, said that Mr. Rockefeller probably will rest a few days before he undertakes his daily round of golf, according to his custom.

Norman to Remain Head of Bank of England

London, Nov. 11—Re-election of Montague Norman as governor of the Bank of England, has been recommended by the governors of the Bank of England, it was reported today.

Montague Norman

They also suggested the re-election of Sir Ernest Musgrave as deputy-governor.

Norman, who recently went to the United States on important financial negotiations under the name of "E. Skinner," has been governor of the Bank of England since 1920.

During his recent visit to the United States, Norman was the guest of Mrs. John Markoe at her home in Bar Harbor, Me.

King Gustaf Presents Medal to Actress

King Gustaf

The King awarded the decoration at the Royal Opera in Stockholm during a gala performance held in connection with the recent Icelandic week observed in Sweden's capital.

Hundreds of people were present and the King expressed great pleasure in awarding the decoration to Mrs. Reumert personally.

After decorating her, the monarch wished her good health and happiness.

GIRL, FOUR HELD AS BANDITS

With a 15-year-old girl as their alleged leader, four Chelsea youths, ranging from 14 to 18 years, were arrested in Jaffrey, N. H., today after they had led state police from the Lunenberg barracks on a wild chase in a stolen automobile.

The girl, who gave her name as Elizabeth Tiggers, and who is known also as Elizabeth LaCroix, is said by police to be on probation in Boston. She gave her address as Eldridge pl., Boston.

The youths arrested are: John F. Reszkowski, 14, of Broadway; Robert Warner, 15, of Tremont st.; Michahel Wierzkowzwi, 18, of Maverick st., and Chester Koczrowski, 15, of Front st.

They and the girl are held by Lunenberg police at Jaffrey on charges of larceny of an automobile in Chelsea. Before turning them over to Chelsea authorities, police will question them regarding a break in Fitchburg in which a large quantity of cigarettes were stolen.

According to Chelsea police, the girl is believed to be Elizabeth Tigges, 15, of Saratoga st., East Boston, who was in court two weeks ago as a stubborn child.

Nobel Prize Interest Surprises Galsworthy

London, Nov. 11. (AP)—John Galsworthy, who received the 1932 Nobel prize for literature yesterday, revealed modest surprise today at a request for an expression on the ward bestowed upon him.

"That anyone should be interested in the award of the Nobel prize to myself is gratifying if a little surprising," he said. "There are so many writers who deserve it and only one each year who can get it."

VETERANS WALK OUT ON HURLEY AT TOMB OF UNKNOWN

No More War, Cry of Men Who Led in Great Conflict

By GEN. JOHN J. PERSHING, U. S. A.
(Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.)

Gen. Pershing

Paris, Nov. 11—On the 14th anniversary of Armistice Day, as I write these words near the scenes of their glorious deeds, I am filled anew with pride at the recollection of the heroism of our magnificent armies.

But my heart is torn with pity as I remember how many millions of men gave up their lives or were seriously maimed, and especially when I think of the bitter loss that came to their families.

The World War has brought poverty and suffering to the people of the entire world, and feel certain that our civilization could not survive another war such as the last one.

By DAVID LLOYD GEORGE
Wartime Prime Minister of Great Britain.

Lloyd George

London, Nov. 11—Fourteen years ago today the American and British nations were united in rejoicing over their common victory in the World War.

It is my hope that they may never again be forced to take up arms in such a struggle.

But the tasks of peace call no less for comradeship in effort and sacrifice, and I trust our two peoples may cooperate with united energy and purpose to guide the world through its present disorders to renewed prosperity and general goodwill.

By PAUL PAINLEVE
Former French Premier and Minister of War.

M. Painleve

Paris, Nov. 11—Fourteen years ago today bells sounded joyfully across Europe—the Armistice!

The carnage was over and the killing ended. Joy united two continents.

In the streets of Paris the populace embraced or carried in triumph all American soldiers it met.

When the people, discouraged by the difficulties of the task, appear ready to call upon their ancient and bloody idols, they should recall and relieve that unique hour when, emerging sadly from the massacre, they put to the fullest proof the intoxicating sweetness of that supreme good—Peace.

By GEN. SIR IAN HAMILTON
Commander-in-Chief of British Mediterranean Expeditionary Force, 1915.

Ian Hamilton

London, Nov. 11—As president of the British Legion in Scotland and London, I send Armistice Day greetings to the veterans of America.

I venture to remind you veterans that the best way of honoring the American boys who marched away so gaily and never returned is to see to it that they have no successors.

See to it that you may go down to history as having been the last Americans who ever fought on European soil.

By EARL BEATTY
Admiral of the British Fleet, Commander of the Grand Fleet From 1916 to 1919, Decorated After Battle of Jutland.

London, Nov. 11—This fourteenth anniversary of Armistice Day finds the world facing problems and difficulties as great as any in history.

It is up tothe great English-speaking races to show the same determination and co-operation in overcoming today's difficulties as was shown in the great days which terminated November 11, 1918.

RODEO DOES BIT FOR CHRISTMAS BASKET FUND

Do Yours by Attending Sunday Show and Get a Double Thrill of Good Deed

There are fun and thrills aplenty in just watching an ordinary performance of the Rodeo.

There are more fun and thrills in attendance at the final performances when the competition for honors and the remaining prize money is keenest of all.

And when you couple the fun and thrills with that heart-glow that comes from having helped somebody else you've got about the maximum of enjoyment that can come to any spectator.

All of which is to announce that the two last performances of the Rodeo—at 3 p. m. and 8 p. m. Sunday in Boston Garden—will be for the Christmas Basket Fund of the Boston Evening American.

Col. W. T. Johnson will turn his steers and his prize horseflesh loose in the interests of sweet charity.

The final performances of the Rodeo are, by the very nature of things the most thrilling. The performers who have failed to capture honors and prize money during the stay are always in there risking their necks, in order not to be left out in the cold, mayoe facing a long trek Texasward on horseback.

There will be no change in ticket prices. The prices that have prevailed all week will be in effect.

Sunday—at Boston Garden—3 p. m. and 8 p. m.

See you there.

Last night's performance at the Garden was the most colorful to date, climaxed by a horseback wedding of two of the Rodeo family—Hughie Long, of Battleford, Sask., and Miss Peggy Hannan, of Jackson, Wyo.

Seven amateur riders sought the prize of $100 offered to anyone who can stay 10 seconds on a bronc or eight seconds on a steer but nobody come close to winning and Carl McBride, of 314 Massachusetts ave., Back Bay, went to Haymarket Relief hospital with a broken rib. The bronc Ammand threw him and then stepped on him.

World's Farewell to Arms Told by Floyd Gibbons

What really happened at the greatest capitulation in the history of the world, 72 hours before the armistice was signed is told today by Floyd Gibbons in the current Cosmopolitan for the benefit of millions of young people "who aren't old enough to have that tremendous panorama of 1918 burned into their minds.

The finish is the important thing in every war, Mr. Gibbons points out, adding that nobody could suspect that the end of the World War would come in a dense forest.

While millions were crushed by the news that the first announcement of the armistice was an error, a train bearing Marshal Foch and his allied staff was crawling over rails hidden by boughs and artificial camouflage, out into Laigue Forest, and the German armistice delegation was struggling across shell-torn roads. Mr. Gibbons describes the tense scene which took place at 9 a. m. around a long table that had been built into the dining car of the Foch train:

FOCH APPEARS

"Suddenly the door at the end of the car opened. Marshal Foch appeared. He was wearing his customary blue-gray uniform with its double row of decorations and military belt.

"Then Admiral Wemyss entered. The Allied officers advanced to the table, and Marshal Foch spoke:

"'To whom have I the honor of speaking?'

"Erzberger, polite but unawed, replied: 'To the plenipotentiaries sent by the German government. I am Herr Erzberger, president of the delegation. These gentlemen are Count Oberndorff and Gen. von Winterfeld. Here, sir, are our credentials.'

"The Marshal took the papers. After the Allied chiefs had examined these formal calling cards, Foch spoke again:

"'Very well. What is the object of your visit, Herr. Erzberger?'

ARMISTICE ASKED

"Erzberger pronounced the words of capitulation slowly and calmly. 'Marshal Foch,' he said, 'we have come to inquire into the terms of an armistice, to be concluded on land, on sea and in the air.'

"'I have no terms to submit to you,' Foch replied.

"'If the Marshal prefers, we may say that we are here to learn the conditions on which the Allies would be willing to grant us an armistice.'

"'I have no terms, Herr Erzberger.'

"Things weren't looking so good for the German side, but Herr Erzberger fished another paper out of his pocket.

"'I have here a paper,' he said, 'in which President Wilson informed our government that you, Marshal Foch, have been invested with the power of submitting the Allies' conditions to the German plenipotentiaries.'

"Foch remained stiff and stern. 'I will let you know the allies' conditions when you have asked for an armistice. Do you ask for an armistice?'

"The ice was cracked. The German delegation piped in unison, 'Ja-Ja.'

"'In that case,' said Foch, 'I shall have Gen. Weygand read you the terms.'

TRUCE IN FIGHT FOR CHILD

Her name is prominent in society's Blue Book and in the index of popular authors. And now it is in the court records, too—because she is fighting for the custody of her child. She is Mrs. Clare Booth Brokaw of New York. She admits that her former husband, George Tuttle Brokaw, is entitled to the custody of their daughter, Ann Clair, but contends the child is afraid to go to him. A truce has been declared in the suit while expensive lawyers prepare briefs. Don't you like her wirehair puppy? (International News Photos.)

MESSAGE FROM HOOVER IS READ AT EXERCISES

Legionnaires' Shrine Rededicated: Wreaths on Graves of Slain Bonus Army Men

Washington, Nov. 11 (AP)—Tribute to the Unknown Soldier echoed solemnly over the stillness of Arlington National Cemetery today, with the reading of a message from President Hoover which said:

"The nation will linger today in its annual tribute of reverend memory of the glorious youth who gave their lives to defend our heritage of liberty and will pay especial homage in the dedication of the completed tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

"Its beauty is a symbol of our national pride in their heroism; our gratitude for their supreme devotion."

In a breif address, Secretary Hurley stood before the new tomb paying honor to the soldiers and sailors of the war. As he rose to speak, some 70 or 80 of the audience rose and left, in accordance with previously announced intentions as a protest against eviction of the bonus army from its squalid encampments here last summer.

DISTURBANCE AVERTED

There was no disturbance, however.

Half a dozen who described themselves as members of the bonus army, led by some of the blue uniformed members of the drum and bugle corps of the local Victory Post of the American Legion, placed wreaths on the graves of William J. Hushka and Eric Carlson, victims of the B. E. F. rioting while Secretary Hurley was speaking.

Members of the Victory Post declined to enter the amphitheater to hear the secretary of war's address and joined in the tributes to the dead B. E. F. men instead.

Raymond A. Burke past-commander of Victory Post and president of the drum and bugle corps, in leading the march from the amphitheater to the graves of Hushka and Carlson, said:

"We had no intention of going in the amphitheater and causing a disturbance by walking out in the midst of the secretary's address as it had been reported we would do. We merely stayed away because we didn't want to hear him."

WOMEN LEAVE SCENE

Some of those who had been in the audience in the amphitheater and who left were women.

Louis A. Johnson, Legion commander, spoke on the program with the Secretary of War, saying:

"Loyalty to our departed comrades makes us stress necessity for a reasonable arming and preparation in event of the need for such."

The B. E. F. men, several of them shabbily attired, carried to the graves of Hushka and Carlson large wreaths, which they said were paid for by a Gold Star mother, who wished to keep her identity secret. The bonus marchers gave their names as George Brady, Edward Gosnell, Charles Mugge, Harvey Stewart and Edward Williams.

CAPITAL WARNS HUNGER GROUPS

Washington, Nov. 11 (AP)—District of Columbia authorities today telegraphed governors of 48 states urging them to discourage pilgrimages of needy people to Washington this winter.

The messages also went to the mayors of New York, Buffalo, Detroit, Cleveland, Youngstown, Chicago, Indianapolis, St. Louis, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Portland, Ore., Seattle, Denver and Kansas City.

King Joins in Armistice Day Celebration in England

London, Nov. 11 (AP)—A solemnly majestic ceremony at the cenotaph this morning marked England's armistice Day remembrance.

King George, for the first time since his illness, which followed a chill at the 1928 Armistice Day ceremonies, laid a wreath at the base of the sad symbol. His son, the Duke of York, laid another.

brigade of red-coated guards in their huge bearskin hats were drawn up in precision around the cenotaph, forming a hollow square. Within were the King and duke, representatives of the army, navy and various military organizations, a military band and a vested choir.

The prayers and the religious services were conducted by the bishop of London.

Back of the Guards, ordinary citizens packed Whitehall in a solid mass from building face to building face, back to Trafalgar Square and its memories of another military age, and on the other side to Westminster Abbey.

As always, the most dramatic moment of the ceremonies came at 11 o'clock. Two long, hushed moments the packed thousands stood so still and silent that the cries of birds and the muffled rumblings of trains in the subway could be heard.

"Big Ben," the clock on the House of Commons, which somehow carries more of England to exiled Englishmen than anything else, called out the hour in the deep voice that has called it for many a year.

The echo died away, the buglers sounded the last retreat, the crowds sang "God Save the King," and began to move away.

The Prince of Wales was absent from today's ceremony at Whitehall, having gone to Edinburgh to take the lead in Scotland's Armistice Day homage there.

French Army Marks the Armistice at Soldier Tomb

Paris, Nov. 11 (AP)—The booming of cannon, the shrill notes of the bugle and the sharp click of hobnailed boots joining at "atention" preceded France's one minute of silence on Armistice Day today. The French army had the honors of commemoration, and it started by rendering homage to the Unknown Soldier under the Arc de Triomphe de l'Etoile. The tombs of Marshals Joffre and Foch in the Invalides were banked with flowers. In the church of St. Louis des Invalides, solemn high mass was sung. Cardinal Verdier, archbishop of Paris, presided. Marshals Petain, Franchet d'Esperey, Lyautey, and General Weygand, commander of the French army and one of the few surviving eye-witnesses of the actual surrender at Rethondes in 1918, attended. The Veterans of Foreign Wars paid tribute to American dead in the cemetery at Suresnes.

Canada Remembers Heroes at Ottawa's Peace Tower

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 11 (AP)—Canada's capital paid silent tribute to her war dead today. On Parliament Hill thousands congregated for the national service of remembrance in the shadow of the peace tower. Before the cenotaph were drawn up thousands of war veterans, together with the various corps of the Ottawa garrison. At 10:45 a. m. the carillon began to toll at 20 second intervals, until 11 o'clock, when the roar of a gun ushered in the two minutes' silence.

Italy Honors King on Armistice Day

Rome, Nov. 11 (AP)—Italy celebrated its Armistice Day last Friday, anniversary of the separate peace with Austria-Hungary, but this was another holiday, the birthday of King Victor Emmanuel.

Premier Mussolini reviewed 8000 troops along the new empire street between the Coliseum and Venezia square.

Armistice Observed in Belgian Capital

Brussels, Nov. 11 (AP)—Armistice Day was observed throughout Belgium, the chief interest centering in the ceremony at the tomb of the unknown warrior in the capital, which was attended by the royal family and representatives of the government.

The solemn observance of this historic day was opened with brief but impressive exercises at Norman Prince sq., on the east side of the Old State House.

Here members of the Norman Prince Post, V. F. W., gathered to pay tribute to the memory of the youthful American hero, one of the founders of Lafayette Escadrille, who died from wounds after a raid on a German munitions depot on Oct. 15, 1916.

Under the command of Albert M. Johnson, members of the post stood at attention while Bugler Ely Bakerman of the Wolff Post, Dorchester, sounded taps. Wreaths were placed at the four corners of the square and the ceremony was over.

Everywhere, for a period of two minutes, beginning at 11 o'clock, the city paused in silence.

A crowd of 5000 had assembled around the Parkman Bandstand for the exercises there at 11 o'clock. After a two-minute period of silence, taps were sounded, followed by the taps salute of three guns fired by Battery C of the 101st Field Artillery, under command of Capt. H. W. Dowler.

Maj. Abbot Peterson then pronounced the invocation.

BENEDICTION BY CHAPLAIN

Among the other speakers were Col. W. S. Grant, chief of staff of the First Corp Area and Richard F. of the American Legion. Capt. Evan Scott, United States Navy chaplain, pronounced the benediction.

In Malden, the first Massachusetts city to observe the day as a holiday, stores, banks and schools are closed, and business is at a halt for the observance of the day.

In Charlestown, Bunker Hill Post No. 26, American Legion, held its annual memorial service at 10 a. m. at the First Congregational Church, Green st. Tonight's celebration will be featured by a stag party at the post. At state prison all work is being suspended, with entertainment and a special holiday dinner for the inmates.

In Westfield annual anniversary exercises of the 104th U. S. Infantry Veterans' Association where the regiment was organized in 1917, were held at the monument, Camp Bartlett.

The new Harvard Memorial Church in the Harvard yard, built in memory of Harvard men who died in the World War, was dedicated at 11 a. m.

Tonight, in Greater Boston, banquets and balls are scheduled by many veterans' organizations. Roxbury Post 44 of the American Legion will give its annual victory ball, at which an elaborate tableau of Flanders Field will be presented, among other features.

The celebration of Armistice Day began last night with banquets and exercises throughout Greater Boston. Lieut. Norman Prince Post V. F. W. held exercises at the High School of Commerce where a portrait of Prince was unveiled.

Lynn Legionnaires had their annual midnight show at the Olympia Theater, with Congressman Connery as master of ceremonies.

Observance of the night before was combined with installation of officers in many legion posts.

SATURDAY from 9 A.M. to 9 P.M. .. and Saturday ONLY!

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST SALE EVENT !

GREATER HOUGHTON DAY

SIX WEEKS TO CHRISTMAS

Open a charge account

If you have a charge account at any other store, we can open one for you at a moment's notice Saturday. If not, we suggest that you come down today (Friday) and make arrangements so that your charge account will be ready to use Saturday.

Read the 9 o'clock door crashers

As you can see by reading the items, we are offering limited quantities (really odds and ends) of desirable merchandise at ridiculous prices. First come, first served. No mail or phone orders on door crashers, of course. Original prices are quoted. In some instances intermediate markdowns have been taken. Additional door crashers on fourth page.

Mail orders filled

We will fill mail orders only if postmarked not later than Saturday, Nov. 12th. All mail orders subject to quantities on hand. No C. O. D.'s.

Phone orders filled

A staff of 50 experienced telephone shoppers will be on duty from 9 A. M. to 9 P. M. Saturday. No telephone orders will be accepted Friday. All orders subject to quantities on hand.

Comparative prices

In practically every instance the comparative price quoted is our own every day regular price . . . . the price the article will be after Saturday. Believe your eyes! The savings are all we say they are.

Greater Houghton Day stands head and shoulders above any other event on the Houghton calendar. It is our supreme effort . . . the result of six months of intensive work on the part of the entire organization.

Greater Houghton Day has been proclaimed as one of America's Great Sales . . . that it ranks above any sale in New England is better attested by a careful perusal of this page and the 15 pages following than by any statement we could make.

Houghton's
Houghton & Dutton
Tremont at Beacon

SIX WEEKS TO CHRISTMAS

2000 extra employees

1500 were not enough last Greater Houghton Day . . . so we've given extra employment to 2000 additional salespeople, cashiers, wrappers and delivery men Saturday. Please be patient. Keep smiling, keep happy.

Please carry small packages

3 to 10 days must be allowed for delivery of Greater Houghton Day purchases. We will appreciate your co-operation if you carry small parcels.

Nothing sold to dealers

Legal Stamps given!

In addition to the lowest prices on record, we will give one Legal Stamp with every 10c worth of purchase. You get $2.00 in cash or $2.50 in merchandise for each full book. Saturday is a good day to start a book. In fact, Saturday would be an ideal day to fill a book. Special stamp desks on the street, second, third and basement floors.

Ample quantities

Except in a few instances (notably the 9 o'clock door crashers) we have huge quantities of each article. Of course, with prices so sensationally low, we cannot guarantee that quantities will last all day, but in most cases our tremendous preparations should be insurance against disappointment for late shoppers.

THIS IS LIFE

Press, Nation's First Industry, Vents Its Wrath on Dry Law

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

R. E. ROGERS

WE ARE TOLD that nowadays newspapers have no editorial influence. We are told that nobody reads the editorial page any more, or pays the least attention to it. We are told that the great days of Greeley and Dana and the elder Bennett and Whitelaw Reid and the elder Bowles are gone forever, that the newspaper of today is either anonymous or a link in a chain of properties, representing not the convictions of an editor but the interests of an owner.

Some of this may be true. It is certain, for instance, that the greatest Republican newspapers in the United States, unlimbering their heaviest guns, had very little effect on a predestined vote. If that is true, it may be equally true that the equally heavy artillery of the great Democratic newspapers was a pleasant obligato to a predestined vote but not really necessary.

"Press" Biggest Thing in U. S.

But there is one field of thought in which I believe it can be proved beyond all possibility of doubt that the newspapers and the magazines have changed the course of our country's history. In other words, there is such a thing as the Power of the Press, when the Press chooses to exert it more or less unanimously. I refer to Prohibition.

If you were asked to name the greatest industry in the United States, I doubt whether you would guess right. Some of you would say automobiles; some of you would say moving pictures. How many of you would say "printing and publishing"? But in a list I have before me, dated 1927, the film industry is only fifth and the automobile industry only second in value added by manufacture, while the printing and publishing industry ranks first with an index of nearly two billions of dollars.

I believe that when Prohibition first went into effect a dozen years ago the country as whole was in favor of it. Not the majority population in the industrial cities of the north and east, perhaps, but overwhelmingly in sections of the south and west and in the small towns and villages of the north and east. Wherever agriculture predominated, wherever the population was predominantly old American stock, the 18th Amendment was acquiesced in, if not welcomed, and what is more important, believed in.

The large city newspapers stood almost alone for a long time in their frank and inevitable hostility to the measure. The sectional press, the rural press, the farm press, the religious press (except that of the Catholic Church), the business press were largely against the city press. And most of the magazines, fearing their widely scattered circulation, with one watchful eye on the famous "farmer's wife of South Dakota," who used to be the criterion in one magazine office I know of, either politely supported the ideal and the measure or were very careful not to commit themselves.

Then Comes Turn in the Tide

But presently a few magazines, the most honest and outspoken, those with the greatest sense of news values, began to come to the aid of the city newspapers. They began to print fiction which handled conditions under Prohibition without gloves. People read and understood stories which told the truth about the young people, what was going on in high schools, colleges, dance halls and road houses. And presently the astute and well-informed fiction writer was telling the inside story of the rackets and the gangs. The magazines came to know what the city newspapers had known all along, and here was material sensational in its importance and eagerly read by the public.

Newspapers and magazines, without consciously co-operating, perhaps, began to lay down a pretty steady barrage of news features, special stories, series, editorial comment on all the various aspects of this noble experiment that had become a racket. In vain the religious press and the country press protested that these things were not true, except perhaps in a few corrupt cities. Even the rural reader and the small-town reader knew enough to calculate what the conditions, which he knew only too well in his little neck of the woods, might be like if multiplied and intensified by a thousand in a great metropolis.

Two or three years ago one began to see the tide change a little. By that time the magazines of national circulation had permeated the country with information gathered by the best-known journalists of the country. Not merely the great city newspapers, but the great chains and associations knew what they were about. I doubt whether there was any deliberate conspiracy. But most of the well-informed newspaper and magazine men in the United States knew what was what and were determined to show what the press could do to change conditions.

Glory Belongs to the Press

When the films took up the question one guessed that the battle was on the way to be won. The film industry has no sense of leadership. It only follows. It never touches anything until it is in the bag. So the coming of the gangster films, effective as they were, was only a belated nail in the coffin the press had made.

When the repeal sentiment began to come, it came fast. It outstripped the press itself. The press still hammered away at it, after the tide had turned. But the truth is, no one had any idea how strongly the tide had turned. The depression helped. Business men, whether or not previously interested on moral and social grounds, suddenly became deeply interested on economic grounds. The conviction of Al Capone helped. And then in June the sentiment crystallized so suddenly at Chicago in both conventions that Mr. Hoover was caught literally unprepared, about two years behind the times, uninformed, obstinately clinging to a sentiment which no longer existed. Personally, I do not believe he knew what had happened. He was simply not informed properly.

And the election tells the story. The Republican wet vote added a substantial quota, no doubt, to the total. But most interesting of all is what happened to the good people in the South and West. They come pretty near to conversion after twelve and more years of fanaticism.

I think there is no doubt what happened. It would have been quite possible for the American press, daily, weekly and monthly, to have supported and so continued the Eighteenth amendment. But New York city, from which the magazines of the country are published, and the big city newspapers, deliberately determined to tell the truth about what was happening and to back it up with frank and pungent editorial comment. They did not follow public opinion. They created public opinion.

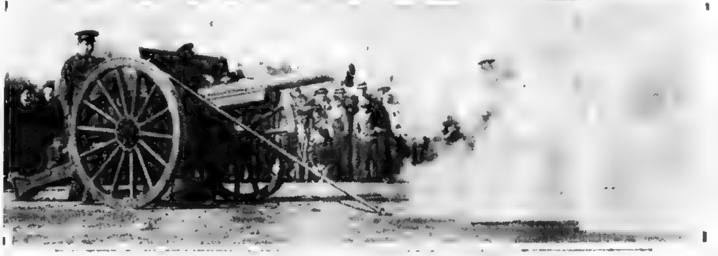
I believe that the American history of the future will credit the publishers and editors and journalists of America with the chief share in the abolition of the Eighteenth amendment.

FLIERS DIP WINGS OVER AMES FUNERAL RITES

HONOR HERO WAR DEAD ON COMMON

THE WARRIORS OF 1918 MARCH ONCE MORE

Memories of 14 years ago came crowding back as these members of the Military Order of the World War marched across Boston Common to the Parkman bandstand where exercises commemorating the war dead were held. A decade and a half ago these men, then in khaki uniforms, climbed out of the trenches to celebrate the first Armistice Day.



THE GUNS GROWL THEIR DEEP SALUTE TO THE VICTIMS OF WAR

The taps salute—the tribute of the artillery to the hero dead—sounded across the Common today. Battery C, of the 101st Field Artillery, under command of Capt. H. W. Dowler, unlimbered its guns in the shadow of the State House to fire the triple salute for downtown Boston to hear—a reminder of those who made the supreme sacrifice and testimony that in these days of peace a grfateful people have not forgotten. (Staff photo.)

PAY TRIBUTE TO FALLEN COMRADE

Army, Navy and Commercial Planes in Power Dive Over Grave of Crash Victim

The men with whom he flew and chased about the skies paid tribute today to the late Frederick Lothrop Ames—"Freddie" Ames who crashed to his death with two others last Sunday at Randolph.

Wheeling beneath the blue, four formations of planes, army, navy, national guard and commercial, dropped flowers as the ashes of the noted aviator were lowered into a grave in the family plot at North Easton, and then saluted the mortal remains of their comrade in a final power dive, a zoom up into the sky and a dip of wings before heading back for Boston Airport and Squantum naval air base.

Capt. Joseph A. Wi[illegible], commanding the army air detachment at the Airport, led one formation of four ships with the No. 2 position in the [illegible] left vacant.

A similar formation of Navy "Hell Divers" was led by Lieut. Felix L. [illegible]ker, and the National Guard flight was headed by Lt. Col. Lo[illegible] E. Boutwell.

Lieut. [illegible]ker Snow, business associate of Ames in Ames Skyways Inc., led the commercial formation which had in it Lieut. William Tanner, chief aviation instructor for Curtiss-Wright, and Joseph Burnett, brother of the heiress who was one of the three killed in the Randolph crash.

Beer Is Coming Back Dressed in Tints

"Beer bottles to match decorative motifs. Modernistic bottles of many colors."

So promises the Owens-Illinois Glass Co., which makes 2,000,000,000 bottles a year and is ready, at a moment's notice, to turn out real beer containers in pastel shades.

Egad, Humphrey! Have we become a bunch of softies?

AFTER THE CAMPAIGN—REST

Now that the tumult and the shouting of victory have died down a bit there is time for the Roosevelt captains to rest after the strains of their campaigns. Among them none was more active than the governor's son, James. Here he and his wife are pictured as they were about to sail from New York for a short vacation in Bermuda. A [illegible] who was saved from what [illegible] charge was an attempt to [illegible] in a South End [illegible] was identified today [illegible] Mrs. [illegible] Carr, formerly of [illegible] st., Roslindale, and [illegible] an inmate of the Metropolitan State Hospital for the Insane at Waltham.

After Patrolman William French of the East Dedham st. station had [illegible] a bottle believed to have contained poison from her lips, Mrs. Carr was taken to the Psychopathic Hospital.

F. D. Roosevelt Club Plans Victory Ball

The Franklin D. Roosevelt Club of Massachusetts, organized here two years ago, is making plans for a great victory reception and ball to be given on a date to be announced later. President-elect Roosevelt, Alfred E. Smith, Governor Ely and all members of the Democratic state ticket will be invited.

"CHIPPIE" RUBIN FOILS GUNMEN

Residents of the Back Bay were given a scare early today when half a dozen men, carrying [illegible], left cars in the vicinity of Peterboro st. and slipped into a Peterboro st. building.

Calls were sent to Back Bay station, but then it was disclosed that the men were plain clothes officers who hoped to trap Max Chapman, alias Chapman, alias George Schaefer, alias Sam Rubien, alias "Chippie" Rubin, wanted in connection with the Herman R[illegible] kidnaping.

The armed officers went into the building and stationed themselves on the roof and in wait, expecting that Rubin would keep a rendezvous with a red-headed bootlegger from New York. The wait was in vain, however, and the watch was given up at dawn.

Recount Asked by Bruce in Everett

Recount of the vote in the 20th Middlesex district, Everett, by President George F. Pierce of the aldermen and papers are reported in circulation for a similar request by friends of ex-Mayor Charles Bruce, whose defeat was one of the election surprises. Mr. Bruce is present chairman of the school committee.

The Inn of a Chosen Few

By WIN BROOKS

Here in the ageless years gone by,
The Inn of a Chosen Few
Beckoned youth on its way to die
"Pause for glass or two."

Glass that held wine and hearts touched here
Rang, and in ringing cried
Youth, with its splendid mask for fear,
Sang, and, in singing, lied.

"Here, when the war is done," youth pledged,
"Meet for rejoicing." After War is won. And the lie was edged
With deathless laughter.

Now the winds of the autumn dusk
Restless roam in the lane,
Rattling walls of the inn's gaunt husk,
Tapping at shattered pane,

Banging at shutters, whirling leaves,
Delving the chimney through,
Grabbing the rot of fallen eaves
As shades are said to do.

Here none comes, and here none goes.
Here no word is spoken:
Where were well met, friends and foes,
Loneliness unbroken.

Locked is the gate and rusted quite,
Rank grows the weed, and tall;
Poplar ghosts in the falling night
Sway by the tumbling wall.

Done is the war, but no rejoicing
Lifts to the trembling rafter;
Only the wind [illegible] voicing
Deathless laughter.

BEAUTY, ACCORDING TO THE NEW CODE
Tom Weatherly, co-producer of "Gay Divorce," Fred Astaire's new starring vehicle now at the Wilbur, has adopted a new code in the selection of girls for the stage. A good figure is no longer a main requisite. Girls must have slender figures, to be sure, but facial animation is the new beauty index.

HANDS EVERY GIRL WANTS
Betty Barrett's hands are praised by Mr. Weatherly, who says show girls today must be young ladies of distinctive carriage and mien, just like the young women you meet at smart social gatherings.

A BEAUTIFUL BACK IS ALWAYS AN ASSET
Jean Frontai is proud of her beautiful back and well may she be. The stage today demands, according to Tom Weatherly, girls who have alert individualism in their faces, like Jean. The dumb Dora with the gorgeous face is not wanted any more.

A NEW STAGE TYPE
Helen Allen, a Philadelphia society girl, is of the new sub-deb type that Tom Weatherly has developed for the stage. (Staff Photos.)

Brains, Individual Expression Demand of Stage Producers

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

An animated face of individualistic features and expression is the new [illegible]

[illegible] Tom Weatherly's [illegible] index to beauty. And since F[illegible] Ziegfeld's death, this producer of "Gay Divorce," has established claim to selection and glori[illegible] of feminine pulchritude [illegible] excellence.

[illegible] symmetry of lines of a lithe and supple figure no longer constitutes the [illegible] beauty [illegible] has been written [illegible] face [illegible] the [illegible] features [illegible] and [illegible] theatrical [illegible] of feminine beauty [illegible] dan[illegible]

SLENDER FIGURES

There was a time when form [illegible]

THE REQUIREMENTS

These [illegible] were placed [illegible] and better things [illegible] after serving the [illegible] Weatherly. And [illegible] because they [illegible] the 14 [illegible] ones [illegible] the Gay Divorce comedy [illegible] requirements.

They must be able to dance and tap dance gracefully.

They must have distinct personalities.

They must be able to wear clothes with chic and individuality.

They must be slender and perfectly proportioned.

They must be intelligent.

They must be not less than five feet four and not more than five feet seven inches in height.

They must have undyed hair—no unnatural blondes or red heads need apply.

They must be vivacious.

They must not have vulgar or raucous voices.

REVEALS HIS SECRET

"My secret in picking girls to meet these requirements is simply in viewing the toute ensemble and extracting from the facial expression a definite something, of registered intelligence. Beautiful but dumb is a relic-expression of antiquity. There is no place, any longer, behind the footlights for the dumb Dora of gorgeous face. She must have an alert individualism in her face," Mr. Weatherly explained, as he pointed to his hand-picked girls and singled out various members of the cast for their special attributes.

"We want our young women of the stage nowadays to look less like Broadway chorines and more like ladies of distinctive carriage and distinctive mien. They must not look like show girls. They must look like young women you meet in smart homes, or at smart tea places or at smart social gatherings. They must have an air about them, an air of culture. Nowadays, most girls have pretty fair figures. The animated face is the index to the new kind of beauty that theatrical producers are seeking."

CURVES ARE OUT

Mr. Weatherly has created the sub-deb figure type for his show, the type of girl who weighs about [illegible] pounds and is five feet five inches tall.

Pronounced curves are out—definitely. The full-developed or [illegible] figure has no place behind the footlights or at least in Weatherly's show. Girls must be deliciously slender.

MARATHON BAN IN SOMERVILLE

A Board of Alderman resolution in opposition to the Walkathon contest which opened last night at the newly-remodelled Union Sq. Theater in Warren ave., Somerville, was delivered today to Mayor Murphy of Somerville and to Chief of Police Damery.

The resolution was adopted last night at the aldermanic meeting after City Clerk Norman E. Corwin had read a petition in opposition signed by residents of Ward 3, where the theater is located.

The theater was crowded last night for the opening, when 32 couples started their long grind, and many of the spectators remained beyond dawn.

Police Hunt Voter in Ballot Attack

A Cambridge man who used his ballot on election day to commit a [illegible] attack upon Middlesex County officials rather than vote was being sought by police and members of the election commission.

The ballot was cast in Ward 7. On it was written the [illegible]. Election officials who have the ballot in their possession stated that they will prosecute when the identity of the writer is learned.

On the ballot was written, "Crime and corruption, malfeasance and [illegible]," and was directed at the Middlesex County officials.

Marathon Dance Off

Somerville will have no dance marathon, the board of aldermen in that city have decided. The board acted on a protest when announcement was made that plans for the dance had been made.

Visitor Starts Fund for Stricken E. Boston Wife

A traveling man (who signs himself just that) sent $1 to the Boston Evening American from Hotel Statler today. With the $1 was this letter:

"In the name of charity, justice and mercy, reprint your article in tonight's American and start a fund for Mrs. Katherine Mortimer. This stricken woman deserves the help of the Boston American and any Bostonian who calls himself an American."

Mrs. Katherine Mortimer lives at 96A Homer st., East Boston. Her baby son was burned to death two months ago. Her jobless husband is dying in one hospital and her [illegible]-year-old daughter is [illegible] in another, victim of a hit and run driver. And Mrs. Mortimer has lost the job that enabled the little family to exist. The money will be turned over to her.

BREWERIES GIVE ORDERS TO SPEED UP ON BEER SUPPLY

Provide for steps toward licensing sale of beer at proper places.

Barker, who claims the distinction of being the original Roosevelt for President man in his district, takes the same stand as Mayor Cermak of Chicago and other leading members of his party.

This stand, in brief, is that the overwhelming sentiment of the nation being for abolishing Prohibition, it is not going too far to permit sale of beer right away.

RACKETEERS ALIVE

Racketeers are actively working to get control of the new beer trade.

Many of the Boston cafe licenses, officially known as common victualers license, are in their hands.

Working through straw men, they are making an attempt to "bring" the whole business and to cut in, too, on the brewery end of the trade.

A North End mob recently tried to buy the business of the Mayfair, the Boston night club which recently closed its doors, and the license would have gone with the furniture, fixtures and good will if the deal had been consummated. The offer was rejected.

RUSH FOR LOCATIONS

The Evening American learned that arrangements to finance new breweries in this section and to refinance old ones for the new era have been entirely completed.

With this accomplished, the aim of the several interested groups now is to obtain control of one of the old plants, to find suitable locations for new plants and to get options on the best sites for retail establishments of one kind or another for marketing the product.

One real estate broker, Willard O. Butler, who has office on School st. downtown and in West Roxbury, said that two groups had commissioned him to find brewery and cafe locations in the busy sections of Greater Boston.

Butler is only one of several who received such orders yesterday and today and all are making up lists of available places for submission to their clients.

It was reported that Charlie Solomon, owner of the Cocoanut Grove night club, had taken an option on several places to which he may extend his business if beer is legalized.

JOBS FOR 6000

Modification and repeal of prohibition means restoration of jobs to 6000 men and women in Boston hotels and restaurants, according to John J. Kearney, business agent of the waiters and hotel and restaurant employes union.

Kearney issued a warning that promiscuous sale of beer or any kind of liquor is inadvisable. Sale of beer, he said, must only be under some system of regulation. Otherwise the racketeers will assume control, wholesome beer will be unobtainable and criminals will get most of the jobs.

"What this country needs is a good, wholesome five-cent glass of beer, and that is perfectly possible under proper regulation," he said.

NEED FOR BARTENDERS

"If beer comes back, hotels and cafes will prosper, for people will go to those places for a good meal and a good glass of beer, instead of eating almost mechanically in little lunchrooms, the way they do now.

"There will be a demand for experienced bartenders. Drawing beer is an art. It has to be kept at the right temperature. If the people are going to get beer back, they ought to get good beer.

"There were 1800 bartenders in local 77, the Massachusetts branch, before prohibition. This local relinquished its charter finally a year or so ago, and the remaining members, 25 in number, now belong to the hotel and restaurant union. If beer comes back, no doubt the bartenders' union will be organized."

Kearney's comment showed that in one more phase, that of the employes, the movement toward beer is also shaping up toward reality.

WARNING BY LEWIS

The only gloom in the local situation emanated from Rev. Jonathan Lewis, prohibition administrator, who said:

"The word has gone out from national headquarters that there is to be no letup in enforcement."

He was asked what he intended to do and said:

"We will continue enforcement here in Boston and Massachusetts and there will be no beer sold that is above the prescribed alcoholic content. I have nothing to say about what Mayor Cermak of Chicago has done. My duty is to enforce the law till it's changed."

Mayor Curley, queried in connection with the Cermak story, said that inasmuch as the law places the Boston police department outside his control he could do nothing and therefore would say nothing.

TAXES TO HELP CITY

What a return of beer would mean to the city's finances as well as to employment was brought out by Frank Finneran, president of the Democratic Club of Massachusetts.

"Advocates of repeal have won their first real victory," said Finneran. "Beer by Christmas is possible if our leaders will fight in the lame duck session of Congress on grounds that light wines and beer will ease the burden of taxation.

"That, in my opinion, is the argument to stress. More than $750,000 in license fees alone will roll into the city treasury in Boston if beer and light wines return. More than 100 vacant sites in the heart of our city will be occupied and will become more valuable property for taxation purposes."

768 Bay State Dry Votes to Upshaw

Returns from 1126 Massachusetts election precincts out of 1767, including Boston complete, in Tuesday's election gave William D. Upshaw, prohibition party candidate for President, a total of 768 votes.

Beer Bill the First on Program of Congress

Washington, Nov. 11 (INS)—The impending battle over beer today overshadowed all other preparations for the December session of the "lame duck" Congress.

Every indication pointed to the passage of a measure modifying the Volstead Act, although dry leaders said they can stop the movement.

Democratic leaders generally pledged themselves to support a beer bill in conformity with the declaration in their national platform without waiting for Governor Roosevelt to take office.

The implied threat of drys to filibuster a beer bill stirred the wets into a ferment of excitement. They accepted the declaration of Senator Borah (R.) of Idaho, that a beer bill cannot pass in the short session as notice that filibustering tactics will be used.

They declared that any such movement would amount to a repudiation of the will of the people as expressed at the polls on Tuesday.

A survey of the "lame duck" Congress by International News Service showed there will be enough votes both in Senate and House for a beer bill unless Democrats who have been dry in the past refuse to accept the platform declaration.

This survey, based upon past votes on beer and pledges of candidates for re-election, showed 54 senators favorable to beer, 31 opposed, with 11 in doubt.

The House survey showed 230 for beer, 15 against, 38 in doubt and two vacancies. While this vote would be ample, Matthew Woll, chairman of labor's modification committee, issued a more optimistic prediction from the modification viewpoint. He claimed 303 votes in the short session.

Beer Unaffected by 18th Amendment, Says Tydings

Havre De Grace, Md., Nov. 11 (AP).—Contending "the Eighteenth Amendment as written is not broad enough to cover beer," U. S. Senator Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.) today devoted his attention to a new study for legalization of the beverage.

Senator Tydings said the amendment specifies "liquors" and before the advent of prohibition there was a distinction between liquor, beer and wine.

The Democratic Senator said he had enlisted the assistance of "eminent constitutional authorities" in Washington and was preparing the study of the definition of the word "liquors" in the law.

He pointed out that before 1920 there was a tax on beer, a different tax on wines and still another on liquors and the "United States courts, passing on cases involving these taxes, drew distinctions between the beer tax, the wine tax and the liquor tax."

"The Eighteenth Amendment prohibits the manufacture, sale, possession and transportation of alcoholic liquors'—it uses the word 'liquors'—" he said, "and I don't believe technically and legally interpreted, that the word 'liquor' is broad enough to comprehend beer and wines."

Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt --- A New White House Type

"T. R.'s" Favorite Niece Not Likely to Clash With Alice

Here is the second of a series of stories presenting an intimate portrait of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, the new First Lady of the Land.

By DOROTHY ROE

(Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.)

Eleanor Roosevelt did not change her name when she was married.

She was born October 11, 1884, the daughter of Elliot Roosevelt and Anna Hall Roosevelt. Her father was a brother of the late President Theodore Roosevelt.

All through her childhood the closest relations were maintained between the two families, and she played with the little Alice Roosevelt, "Princess Alice" of the White House days, now Mrs. Alice Longworth.

Of late years, the intimacy between Mrs. Longworth and Mrs. Roosevelt has waned, chiefly because of their opposing political camps. Those who know Mrs. Longworth say that her cherished ambition has been to see her brother, Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., carry on his father's tradition in the presidency.

* * *

Franklin D. Roosevelt is only a distant cousin of the family of Theodore Roosevelt, as has been pointed out by Republican leaders so often during the recent campaign.

Washington's gossips already have begun to smack their lips over the possibility of another exciting "feud" in the capital, between the new first lady and her first cousin, Alice Roosevelt Longworth.

But the friends of Mrs. Roosevelt know that she will not allow a suggestion of strained feelings between herself and Mrs. Longworth to appear on the surface. She is far too wise and generous a soul for that.

And whatever thrusts there have been in the past have been from the other camp. Mrs. Roosevelt now laughs them off and charges them up to the demands of politics.

* * *

Both of Eleanor Roosevelt's parents died when she was still a child and she went to live with her grandmother, Mrs. Valentine Hall, in Tivoli, N. Y., not far from the Hyde Park home where the young Franklin D. Roosevelt was growing up.

The new First Lady's first meeting with her future husband was at his Hyde Park home when he was four and she was two.

The two children saw each other often when they were small children. They used to meet in the summertime at Henderson House in Henderson, N. Y., where all the children of the various Roosevelt clans used to gather with their families.

* * *

El[illegible] was sent away to [illegible] when she was 16 and [illegible] seven years at [illegible] In the summer [illegible] Syracuse [illegible] France [illegible] New York to take [illegible] She [illegible] aunt, Mrs. Henry Parish in New York, and also spent some time with another aunt, Mrs. Douglas Robinson.

* * *

It was at the home of Mrs. Parish that she again met her distant cousin, Franklin D. Roosevelt, then just out of Harvard.

And it was there that she married him March 17, 1905.

The wedding took place on St. Patrick's day because it was the only day on which Eleanor's beloved uncle, President Theodore Roosevelt, could leave Washington.

And it was he who gave away the bride.

Tomorrow the story of Mrs. Roosevelt's heroic battle to help her husband forget and overcome the malady that had stricken him in Maine, and of how they conquered.

Purchase of Assets Forbidden by Court

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 11 (AP)—An order restraining the Aviation Corporation from purchasing certain assets of North American Aviation, Inc., for 1,997,000 shares of the Aviation Corporation's common stock was issued late yesterday by Chancellor J. C. Wolcott.

Suit was filed by the Cord Corporation, a holding concern. The court order is effective until next January 4, which was fixed as the date for a hearing on an injunction application.

STALIN'S WIFE IS BURIED

Moscow, Nov. 11 (AP)—Mme. Joseph Stalin, who died Tuesday night, was buried today in the ancient Novodevichi Monastery, where lie the first wife of Peter the Great, the wife and daughter of Boris Gudunov, and Chekhov, the novelist.

Her death brought her greater prominence than she ever would permit in life. The body before burial rested in a red coffin in the lofty hall of the Central Executive Committee Building, opposite the tomb of Lenin and only a block away from the Kremlin where she had lived for 13 years.

40,000 See Southpaw Set Husking Record

Galva, Ill., Nov. 11 (AP)—Out of the gumbo mud of an Illinois corn field has emerged a new American corn husking champion. He is Carl Seiler, 29, a left hander. Forty thousand persons watched Seiler win from seven other contestants by husking 36.16 bushels in 80 minutes, a new national record.

Evangeline Adams Dies in Way She Predicted End

New York, Nov. 11 (AP)—Evangeline Adams, 60, noted astrologer, is dead—and her followers are sorrowful, but very proud.

They say that Miss Adams, who went through a long life wresting predictions and a fortune from the stars, was accurate to the end—that she predicted her own death.

George E. Jordan, Jr., her husband, whom she married after a horoscope romance, said after her death late yesterday that she had foreseen her fate.

She was, he said, in a "period of adverse aspects and conditions over which she had to use the most extreme diplomacy to avoid the result which she hoped to avoid."

This result, he explained, was heart disease. A heart attack seized her Saturday, leading to her death.

In a book, "The Bowl of Heaven," Miss Adams declared she had predicted many important events, including the death of King Edward VII of England and the Windsor Hotel fire in New York which killed 45 persons.

King Edward died May 6, 1910, at a time when Miss Adams saw "that his stars would be most grievously afflicted." She recalled that at the time of the Windsor Hotel fire in 1899 the proprietor was sitting in her room in that hostelry listening to a warning that he was "being pushed at that very moment into the very depths of disaster."

"You're chilly in here," he said. "I'll have a porter make a fire in your fireplace."

"He opened the door," Miss Adams recorded, "and walked into the greatest hotel disaster of all time."

She furnished the late J. Pierpont Morgan with a sort of astrological bulletin service on the probable future of politics and the stock market, she indicated. Other Wall Street geniuses came to her for help, she said, as well as stage stars like Mrs. Leslie Carter, opera stars like Mary Garden and luminaries of literature.

"From one who has respect for you as a woman, but no respect for astrology."

Miss Adams, who said she was descended from John Quincy Adams, was born in Jersey City, later moving to Andover, Mass., and Boston, where she studied palmistry and astrology. After she set up studios in New York, police on a few occasions interfered with her study of the stars, but she always won out in the courts.

Maine Girl Student Hurt as 2 Are Killed

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 11 (AP)—A girl college student and a colored truck driver were killed and another college girl probably fatally injured late yesterday in a collision between the truck and an auto in which four girls were riding near Penfield, eight miles west of here. The dead are Helen Wagor of Fairport, 19-year-old University of Rochester student, and Alexander Donis, 28, truck driver of this city.

Miss Eleanor Hatton of Bangor, Me., also a student of the university, was taken to Genesee Hospital here, where physicians said she had probable fatal injuries.

Bomb Wrecks Lobby of Akron Theater

Akron, O., Nov. 11 (INS)—An explosion caused, police said, by a bomb hurled from a speeding automobile, today wrecked the lobby entrance of the Palace Theater here, rocking the entire downtown section.

Police said it apparently was a revival of a series of bombings occurring at local theaters in the past several years. No one was injured.

Harrison Wants to Play Shylock Role

New Haven, Ct., Nov. 11 (AP)—When Richard B. Harrison has completed his role of the "lawd" in "Green Pastures" he wants to play Shylock.

1000 Are Given Jobs

New York, Nov. 11 (INS)—More than 1000 workers were given jobs during September by the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, Walter C. Teagle, president, reported today.

Baldwin Sees No Danger of War Now

London, Nov. 11 (AP)—Stanley Baldwin, Lord President of the Council, closed a debate on foreign affairs in the House of Commons last night with the statement that he did not believe another war was imminent.

"I do not think that we have seen the last great war," the Conservative leader said, "but I do not think that we shall see another just yet."

ROCKEFELLER'S GRANDSON WEDS

New York, Nov. 11 (AP)—John D. Rockefeller 3d, is to be married late today to Miss Blanchette Hooker of Greenwich, Ct., a descendant of Thomas Hooker, founder of Hartford.

The marriage will take place in Riverside Church. The wedding bells that will ring in the tower were given by his father, John D. Rockefeller, Jr. His grandfather is at his winter home at Ormond Beach, Fla.

Young Rockefeller is the eldest of five sons of John D., Jr. Laurence, Winthrop and David will be in the wedding party. Nelson, already married, will be best man.

The bridegroom, 26, was graduated from Princeton University in 1929. He is employed in his father's office.

Miss Hooker's father, Elon H. Hooker, was deputy superintendent of public works when Theodore Roosevelt was governor of New York and is past president of the Manufacturing Chemists' Association of the United States.

Just as Donkey's Happy, He Gets Another Kick

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 11 (AP)—A Democratic campaign of his own has been launched by Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy in the Wilson cabinet and publisher of the Raleigh News and Observer. He would change the emblem of the party from the donkey to a rooster.

"Of course, everybody knows that the crowing rooster is the emblem of the Democratic party, or was before the Democratic party let Nast supplant the rooster with the donkey," he explained.

"The rooster has 10 times more style and beauty and clarion call than the donkey."

ATWATER KENT RADIO
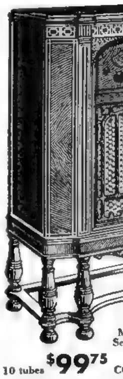
YOU'LL SAVE MONEY IN THE END



WHEN a fancy-looking radio is offered you at a bargain counter price, just walk around the cabinet and LOOK INSIDE.
Then look inside the 1933 Atwater Kent!
This comparison will show you, in a flash, the difference between a cheap radio and a good one.
Look inside. Remember that a radio is no better than its chassis, any more than an automobile is better than its engine. A radio with a cheap, under-sized, under-powered chassis and skimping on tubes is going to give you cheap, under-sized, under-powered, skimpy performance.
Hear the new Atwater Kent. Revel in its depth and color and spread of tone. See what it means really to roam the air, with the Tonebeam identifying each station at the point of purest tone. See how twin speakers give new life to your favorite program. See how noise is silenced, pleasure increased, with automatic silent tuning.
When "bargain" radios have gone their way to the junk-pile, your Atwater Kent will still be giving you fine and faithful service. That's what it is built for. And you can buy it at the very lowest price for which completely up-to-date and satisfying radio can be bought.

U. S. TIPPED OFF DEBT QUESTION COMES FIRST

London, Nov. 11 (INS)—Experts of the preparatory committee of the World Economic Conference have "confidentially" reported to to their various governments, including the United States, that the war debt question must be settled before any other economic or financial questions can be tackled effectively.

This was revealed to International News Service today while the British public was awaiting with ill-concealed impatience American reaction to the British note delivered at Washington yesterday asking respite on the $95,000,000 war debts instalment due December 15.

The press pridefully pointed out today that Great Britain is able to pay the instalment if compelled to do so, but newspapers joined in admitting American rejection of the plea probably would cause serious inconvenience at the present juncture, aggravating the world's economic distress.

It was believed just as sincerely that failure to come to some sort of a definite decision now would also retard progress and as the world parley committeemen have pointed out make the work of this forthcoming meeting fruitless.

The more conservative press warned that the matter must be handled with cold logic and not by sentiment. The Manchester Guardian said:

"It would be a fatal mistake to tell Americans the war is as much their concern as ours, and would only arouse hostile reaction. The appeal must be made on the basis they are a hindrance to international trade."

A TALL DARK ONE, PLEASE

Hope keeps "Young Dutchy," Edward S. Leiblein right on the job at his bar, 199 Shawmut ave., South End, where near-beer is sold. Leiblein wants to go right back into the sale of real beer when lawmakers in Washington "rub out" the Volstead Act. The property has been in the family possession for more than 40 years. "Young Dutch" is shown with a near-beer customer in the well known barroom.

'Dutchy' Longs as Do Many Others for Good Old Days

By JAMES J. SMITH

We stepped into "The Dutchman's" today for a glass of beer.

"Dutchy" was there, immaculate as ever in his white coat and apron. A little graver than in 1919 when he served his last real seidel of beer — a little worried-looking too, for it's been a bitter struggle the last two years to keep the famous old bar from slipping away.

TO THE GAY NINETIES

If you lived in Boston or nearby towns before prohibition and liked a glass of beer once in a while you must remember "The Dutchman's" and "Dutchy."

If you're a real old-timer you might even remember when the original "Dutchy" proudly announced the opening of his bar in Shawmut ave., just 40 years ago.

You might even remember dropping in at the opening when "Dutchy" Munn served beer all day long "on the house" and regaled you with pigs knuckles and liverwurst, limburger, German bologna and pickled herring.

And you might have listened attentively while the original "Dutchy" told you how he bought that handsome mahogany bar from Greuter's in Scollay sq., the bar that still stands in Shawmut ave., shining and mellow with respectable old age.

Yes, respectable is the word. Never since July, 1919, has anything but legalized near beer dripped on the polished old face of "Dutchy's" bar.

FOLLOWED THE LAW

For "Dutchy" was an honorable man who paid heed to every letter of the law. He died three years ago believing that some day the old friends who gathered at his bar would win back the right to step up to his bar, place one foot on the gleaming rail, and say:

"Let's have a tall, dark one, Dutchy, and make it a REAL one!"

The day old "Dutchy" died he called his stepson, Eddie Leibeiler, to his bedside and made him promise never to give up the old place.

"Your mother worked hard to help me start the place," he told young "Dutchy." "You can serve lunches and make it pay until the law changes. It will change some day and all our friends will come back. Never violate the law. I would not want my place to be pointed out as a speakeasy."

Young "Dutchy" has kept his word. Three different police captains will vouch for that. Capt. Driscoll was in command at Station 5 when old "Dutchy" sold his last real seidel in 1919.

Capt. Anderson dropped in one day about three years ago and asked young "Dutchy" how things were going.

"In the summer," said Dutchy, "we have chicken once in a while, but in winter, we eat beans every day."

"Dutchy" was a little worried today in spite of the feeling in the air that times will soon be better and real beer will soon foam over his tall thick steins.

CLOSED ON HOLIDAYS

"I don't know whether we can last that long," he said. "The brewery that sells us this beer—and it's not bad, considering—has been very patient. The landlord has been very kind, too. But the last two years have eaten up every cent we had."

"Nothing like the old days when many prominent men in this city dropped in and rubbed shoulders with hard working men at the bar. There was great comradeship here and a man had to look 21 before we'd serve him.

"We closed every holiday then and we do the same now. It was nice here — talking to our old friends—especially in the winter when it was cold outside.

"You could see everything in here from the street — same as you can now.

"Nowadays a man doesn't come to a place like ours. He has to go to a place that is hidden away for a glass of beer. We serve nice food here but the beer, you know, well it's different.

"It would be nice if it came back in time. Maybe our old friends would come back, too, and talk of the old days when everybody laughed and was happy."

VETS BENEFIT BY CONCERT

The second of a series of "musical journeys" being presented by Guy Maier will be given at Jordan Hall under the auspices of the Disabled Veterans' Hospital Service, Inc., tomorrow at 11 a. m. It will consist of an illustrated trip through Spain with Arthur Fiedler and his Boston Sinfonietta presenting Spanish music.

The pictures provide a romantic background for Mr. Fiedler's compositions and will comprise half of the program.

Among the prominent Bostonians interested in this enterprise are Mrs. Robert Lincoln O'Brien, Carl Dreyfus, Miss Eleanor Snelling, Miss Eleonora Sears, E. E. Clive, Mrs. Godfrey L. Cabot, Mrs. Henry Parkman, Miss Alice Tapley and Mrs. Alexander Steinert. The third concert will be on Saturday, Nov. 26, featuring Miss Dorothy Brewster Comstock, Cambridge violinist.

Too much Dining
Too much Smoking—
Last Night

Yet..."No Acid Headache,"
No Upset Stomach
This Morning!

"Don't overindulge—don't eat too much, smoke too much, drink unwisely" is the Law of Good Health.

If you don't follow that law—Phillips' Milk of Magnesia; scientists say; is the QUICKEST, SIMPLEST AND EASIEST way to correct its effects. All you do is this:

"TAKE—2 tablespoons in a glass of water before bed."

"TAKE—2 tablespoons in a glass of water with the juice of a WHOLE ORANGE when you get up."

Or take six Phillips' Milk of Magnesia tablets the same way, which give an equivalent amount of Milk of Magnesia, for each Phillips' Milk of Magnesia tablet equals one teaspoonful of the liquid Milk of Magnesia.

THE LAW

What It Does

This small dosage of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia acts to alkalize the system. And an alkalized system is largely impervious to the bad aftereffects of excessive smoking—excessive eating, drinking.

It sweetens and purifies your stomach. Banishes the acid headache, sour stomach, deadly depression that mark the price of immoderations.

Results are quick and almost invariable. Your head clears, your stomach settles—you feel like a new person.

Every person who smokes should know this. And take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia EVERY NIGHT before bed. Every person who overindulges in food or drink should know it. And keep a bottle of "Phillips'" in his medicine chest.

Try it—just once. You will be amazed at what it does.

Be sure to get Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia when you buy. All "Milk of Magnesia" is not alike in effect, so look for the name Phillips—get the kind doctors endorse.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM: Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

LULL IN BROKAW CHILD FIGHT

New York, Nov. 11 (INS)—Taking advantage of a 72-hour truce decreed by Justice Callahan in Supreme Court here yesterday, two famous lawyers were today drawing briefs for the custody of eight-year-old Anne Clare Brokaw, daughter of George Tuttle Brokaw, wealthy clubman, and his divorced first wife, Clare Booth Brokaw, writer and editor.

The Reno divorce of the Brokaws in 1929 followed an agreement that the child reside six months of each year with each parent.

Through his attorney, George Gordon Battle, Brokaw charged yesterday that Anne Clare was being wrongfully withheld by her mother. Arthur Garfield Hays, representing Mrs. Brokaw, explained that Anne was with her mother by agreement up to June 1. A month later, Hays said, the girl was with her father at the [illegible] to the Atlantic Beach Club when an epidemic of mumps broke out in the neighborhood. To safeguard her health, Anne was then taken by her mother to Connecticut with Brokaw's consent, Hays added.

These Boys Were All A-Flutter an' Here's Reason

The fluttering topcoats of two [illegible] boys attracted the attention of Patrolmen Peabody and Burns in Arlington today. There wasn't much of a wind and there didn't seem to be any reason why the coats should flutter. So the policemen stopped the pair and peered under the coats. Each boy had a half dozen live pigeons tied to a string about his waist.

The birds were taken from the coop of William G. Miller, 4 Westmoreland ave., Arlington Heights. Police put the birds back in the cote and will put the boys in court.

More Dead Tongues Are Wanted for Good Will

By GILBERT SELDES

GILBERT SELDES

"Before the great [illegible] Ogden in the provocative magazine [illegible] was clear to most persons with a knowledge of [illegible] and an interest in international organization that one of the chief needs of [illegible] was [illegible] dead languages. There are [illegible] more than 1500 languages in use [illegible] which have suddenly been forced to communicate with one another [illegible] of the radio and the international telephone, not to speak of the enormous spread of publicity and advertisement. Himself a [illegible], Mr. Ogden does not want to [illegible] on out of [illegible] he suggests that of these 1500 only 1480 should be scrapped, as the average person could learn only [illegible] would still have plenty [illegible] and scholars would be happy with a few [illegible] 1500 plus those [illegible] dead [illegible]

A Bit of Basic

Mr. Ogden, one of the [illegible] minds now at work, a man [illegible] knowledge so colossal [illegible] can actually review the Encyclopedia Britannica as competently as Mr. Gilbert Gabriel reviews a play, has not been content with wanting the destruction of a few languages [illegible] a new language which is [illegible] familiar to a vast number of people. The language he calls Basic English. Basic is a bit of a pun, for apart from its meaning the word comes from the first letters of the chief contributors: British, American, Scientific, International, Commercial, English.

Its great merit is that it consists of exactly 850 words, and these do the work of the 20,000 words ordinarily used. One magazine page is enough to print the entire vocabulary and has room left for a sample sentence: "The camera man who made an attempt to take a moving picture of the society women before they got their hats off did not get off the ship till he was questioned by the police." That is Basic. Camera man is Basic for photographer. "Moving picture" is Basic for cinema. In Basic a familiar story by Edgar Allan Poe is called "The Gold Insect." This startles us because we are accustomed to the name of "The Gold Bug," but it does not confuse [illegible]

Simple Words

When the word gets complicated Mr. Ogden tries to [illegible] the most [illegible] proof that Basic English does not appear to differ from ordinary English either to the ear or the eye is that Mr. Ogden, after writing an account of its principles, adds: "The reader may or may not have been conscious that this account is all in Basic English," and I must confess that I was not. The only thing I worry about is Brighter Basic for those who are tired or sad. If we are to have a language for the melancholy, how about a jargon for the over happy?

A Capitalist Testifies

I continue to [illegible] letters assuring me that I exaggerate the connection between finance and charity. Perhaps I do. When a banker who is [illegible] the head of a charitable organization says that the banks cannot lend money to the city [illegible] the city reduces its expenses and says that the city cannot, therefore, give enough to keep the jobless and their families from desperate straits, and then says that private charity must [illegible] the burden, I think the connection is evident. However, I am willing to let the ideas of others [illegible] precedence.

A few days ago Floyd L. Carlisle, chairman of the Board of the New York Edison, Consolidated Gas and Niagara Hudson Power Companies, who ought to know something about the present structure of the capitalist system, said [illegible] there is not a tremendous response to appeals for private charity [illegible] a greater one than ever before, we will then come very near indeed to a breakdown in the system.

Give—and Think!

The great [illegible] is now organized. The need is apparent, and charity is necessary [illegible] society [illegible] But I think that the [illegible] men who are now getting together committees ought also to form a committee on future plans, a committee to study the system under which we are living. They keep on saying that the only way to save the system is to give freely, but there is another way. It is to make giving so perfect [illegible] the need will not exist. And I [illegible] mean [illegible]

I [illegible] moment we know in our hearts that unemployment will not end this year. No matter what happens to make a happy [illegible] and factories start to work again—it will not be possible to reabsorb 10 or 12 million men in one year. It never has been done and there is no reason to believe it can be done. The process may take three years or five. During that time men will slowly move from the red side of the ledger, the jobless, to the profitable black side of producers, but the millions left behind until the end will still be a problem.

I doubt whether you can come before the American people, generous as they are, and say, "You must support the unemployed for five years because your government hasn't discovered any way to take care of them." For if this were said, we would do something rather drastic, not about the unemployed, but about the government.

Boxer Sues Doctors for $10,000 Damages

Salem, Nov. 11. Claiming that he has been crippled because they bandaged his arm too tightly and placed a heavy cast on his leg, Peter [illegible] of Haverhill, a professional boxer and wrestler, filed a suit for $10,000 against Dr. David M. Zeig and Dr. [illegible], both of Haverhill, in the Essex County Superior Civil Court here today.

Good Bye Dolly, We Must Leave

—By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER—

After that Democratic streamline victory what about Dolly Gann and Alice Longworth?

Both girls are now relatives-at-large.

Alice has a brother in the Philippines. Which is a splendid hide-away for a Republican at this time.

But Dolly has nothing. Remember when she started Washington society by doing some light housekeeping with one chair in a conspicuous spot?

It was one of those Washington official dinners where you come in person to give your regrets to the hostess. You're a disappointment if you don't get there. And you're a disappointment if you do.

Dolly swept in majestically to the tune, "Where My Caravan Has Rested."

Alice led the rush of Roxy's ushers. She was head usher that night.

Alice said in a rough feminine voice, "Saddle Mrs. Gann's blue ribbon porcupine. She's riding home.

Delightful affair. A pleasant time was had by nobody.

FINDS AN EFFECTIVE TREATMENT FOR ARTHRITIS

A Pasadena man who had been bedridden with Arthritis ([illegible] joints) for three years reports that he secured a prescription which restored him to an active life. He then supplied the formula to a number of others who were afflicted with Arthritis, Neuritis, Lumbago, Gout, Sciatica and various other forms of Rheumatism and they too report the first relief. Renton's Hydrocin Tablets are prescribed by many physicians and endorsed by the leading druggists. No matter what other treatments you have taken or how badly you have suffered from any form of Rheumatism caused by excessive uric acid, you should give Renton's Hydrocin Tablets a trial. Just ask The Epstein Drug Co., Scollay Sq., or send name and address to Renton, Desk 893, Pasadena, Calif. Do this today.

FANNING

Up and at 'Em, Eagles. | We Lean to Big Bengal.
Tomorrow's Embroglios. | The Bruins' Man Power.

As for Brown, You Know What Napoleon Said!

GET OUT THE old raccoon coat, ye football fans and fannies and let's hit the trail to B. C. Heights to see which will celebrate Armistice Day rightly the Eagles or Western Maryland. Last year B. C. journeyed into the camp of the enemy and routed the Baltimoreans by three touchdowns. The boys from [illegible] M. Maryland, are in town today to avenge last year's defeat. They have a ball club that only has lost one game this season and that to Bucknell, 14 to 13, on a missed goal following touchdown. On that 14 to 13 score you can rate Western Maryland and Bucknell about on a par. Let's see, Fordham beat Bucknell, 13 to 0, and B. C. beat Fordham, 3 to 0. But Villanova beat Bucknell, 1[illegible] to [illegible] and then came to Boston and pulled a 20-to-9 victory out of the tail feathers of the Eagles. No, Suh, and M'am, you all can't get nowhere, nohow, on score comparisons! If Chesnulevich is right the Eagles are likely to edge through with a victory. If Ches isn't hitting on high, Western Maryland will carry home the bacon. The Marylanders have a great little ball toter to match Chesnulevich. He is "Biggy" Sheppard and he is the country's third leading point scorer. Bill Kelleher, who scouted the Marylanders, says that in Sheppard Dick Harlow has a back that will make George Randour, the white-haired boy from Villanova who ran wild against the Eagles, look slower than cold molasses. If that is so, then "Biggy" must be a blood brother of a streak of lightning and first cousin to a greased pig. With Chesnulevich and Sheppard taking turns in ball totin' there should be plenty of thrills on B. C. Heights this afternoon.

THERE IS PLENTY of local interest in tomorrow's Holy Cross-Harvard shindig, but the national sports spotlight turns on Yale and Princeton down in Palmer Stadium in the heart of the Jersey Jungle, and the Battle of the Great Unbeaten between Brown and Columbia in New York. Having fanned on the approaching shindy between Tuss McLaughry's Grizzly and Lou Little's Columbia Lions, until we're blue in the gills, let's go elsewhere in the football zoo and see whether the Bulldog is going to tie knots in the tail of Fritz Crisler's Big Bengal, or, when the festivities are over, the smile is going to be on the [illegible] of the Tiger.

YALE HAS BEEN licked aplenty and [illegible] Columbia and Michigan, but both the Bulldog and the Tiger are much stronger outfits than their season's records show. Yale and Princeton, you [illegible] remember, get away a fortnight later in football practice than do most of the colleges. [illegible] too short for Yale's intricate Notre Dame system to get [illegible] until the fag end of the season. [illegible] was beginning to function against [illegible] and [illegible] be hitting on all cylinders against Princeton. [illegible] and then [illegible] Princeton's two defeats were at the hands of unbeaten Columbia and unbeaten Michigan. Columbia was [illegible] Tigers got [illegible] and Princeton [illegible] against mighty Michigan was [illegible] Michigan [illegible] believe [illegible] gives the best [illegible]

MICHIGAN IS hailed as the strongest team in the Western Conference and seems to be on its way to the Big Ten championship. But it was only the "breaks" that decided the game with Princeton, 14 to 7, in the Maize and Blue's favor. The Tigers outrushed the Wolverines, 130 yards to 105, and made nine first downs to the Maize and Blue's five.

YEA BO, PRINCETON showed it had a great team in the battle with Michigan! Crisler has done wonders with the erstwhile toothless Jersey Tabby Cat. And don't forget that the Tiger smells blood. Last year the Tiger went a visiting to Yale and the Bulldog treated him something scandalous. Remember? Yale 51, Princeton 14! Smarting under that defeat, the Tiger will light into the Bulldog tomorrow with murder in his heart and mayhem in his gizzard. Maybe the Tiger will rip and claw enough of the cussedness out of the Bulldog as to make him a bit more gentle by the time the Harvard game rolls around. Harvard apparently needs plenty of help.

YALE HAS STRUCK its gait. It'll be a real Yale team that will meet its ancient Jersey rival, tomorrow. Down at New Haven they've sidetracked some of those beefy, cumbersome linemen, that couldn't get out of their own way, let alone out of Lassiter's, on a Notre Dame system of play that calls for lightning speed, timing and action. They are doing a bit of blocking for young Master Lassiter now. The play of Lassiter of Yale and Jack James of Princeton should be a delight to watch tomorrow. It should be a great game. Although we lean towards the Tiger, the come-to-life Bulldog is sure of putting up a great battle, and anything can happen.

BROWN VS. COLUMBIA, we simply cannot get away from it. Judgment tells us Brown should win. A hunch is trying to jerk us in favor of Columbia. Brown man power, even more than the triple wing back, may decide the issue. If Brown puts Cliff Montgomery out of the running, good bye Columbia! With Montgomery in there, Brown faces a ring-tailed scoring threat that will be dangerous right up to the final whistle's blow. But the whole Brown backfield is a scoring threat. What a bunch of backfield "shooters" McLaughry has! Napoleon said God was on the side of the heaviest artillery. On paper at least it looks as if Brown carried the heaviest artillery. Boy, go out and bet me 10 cents on Brown!

ORANGE CHOICE OF HANSON

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 11 (AP)—Coach Vic Hanson sent his Syracuse University gridders [illegible] a [illegible] drill today [illegible] off [illegible] for the battle tomorrow against Colgate's unscored-on Red Raiders.

The Orange worked on signals and dummy scrimmage, after which Coach Hanson not only expressed confidence his team would cross Colgate's clean goal line, but also that it would be victorious.

At Wilmington, Del.—Jimmy Smith, Philadelphia middleweight, defeated young Johnny Ketchell, Chester, Pa. (8).

At Honolulu—Fidel Labarba, Los Angeles, won by technical knockout from Conrad Sanico, Honolulu (6).

$100 8 Seconds Pay, Finals on Sunday

By JACK CONWAY

Try and ride a bronco at the rodeo show if you happen to think you are a real tough hombre and can find use for $100.

Col. W. T. Johnson is offering $100 to any amateur rider or drug-store cowboy who can [illegible] aboard any of his bronco busters for the short space of eight seconds. That's at the rate of $12.50 a second which isn't poor pay even for a depression period.

A flock of amateur riders have bravely tried to pick up the [illegible] $100, only to find themselves resting on the turf after a couple of seconds of rather rough riding.

With the election over and the weather man promising to be good, the rodeo is expected to attract capacity crowds from now on.

BIG SHOWS ON SUNDAY

Of course the big jam will be on Sunday when there will be afternoon and evening shows for the Christmas Basket Fund of the Boston Evening American.

Col. Johnson will stage all of his finals on Sunday. This means that those persons who are fortunate enough to be present Sunday afternoon and Sunday evening will witness some of the most thrilling competition ever staged in this city.

The cowboys depend upon their prize money to get back home. They don't get regular salaries like circus performers and professional athletes. They are in there on their own and must crash into the big dough to keep happy.

TAD LUCAS POPULAR

Tad Lucas, world's greatest woman rider, continues to bring cheers from the crowd every time she appears in the Garden arena. Of course she'll be on the job at the Sunday shows and promises to give the public something new in the way of sensational riding.

The Johnson cattle are doing well upon their diet here. They have tremendous vigor and the desire to wreck all cowboys in sight.

Naturally the Christmas Basket Fund committee, as usual, has insisted on bargain prices. Just so that everybody will be happy.

JUMBOS' ACE ON BENCH

Tufts hopes of victory over Boston University received a setback when Coach Lew Manley announced that Johnny Grinnell right end and punter was out of the clash with the Terriers.

In Grinnell's place Manley will start Jake Yagjian.

Earl Seibert's Case in Calder's Hands

Montreal, Nov. 11 (AP)—The case of Earl Seibert, holdout New York Ranger defence man, has been referred to President Frank Calder of the National Hockey League for official action under the new league ruling covering "persistent holdouts."

Some 5000 football fans turned out in the Red Sox ball yard to see the cream of the Boston school lads play their Armistice Day twin attraction.

Shortly after the second half got under way in the English-Mechanic Arts struggle [illegible] of English received the Mechanics punt, but was run back 10 yards and downed. Timmins then romped through tackle for eight yards. R. Battles [illegible] the [illegible] the opposing [illegible]-yard line where he was downed by Smith.

Sweeney, on [illegible] went off tackle for the touchdown. Timmins added a point by kicking the goal, putting the Blue and Blue in the lead, 7 to 0.

TIMMINS SCORES

English kicked off to M[illegible] and the receiver fumbled, but R. Battles recovered for English on the Mechanics' 35-yard line. Timmins made 14 yards.

Sweeney on three rushes made another first down. Timmins then took the ball, dashed through tackle and scored the second touchdown from [illegible] eight-yard line. The goal following touchdown was missed.

English kicked off to Mechanics and Smith carried the oval back to his own 35-yard marker.

Smith attempted a forward pass but the ball was intercepted by Little who got off on a wild dash back [illegible] yards and crossed Mechanic Arts goal line.

LATIN BEATS DORCHESTER

Boston Latin in their tussle with Dorchester went through the first period without scoring. In a punt-[illegible] Dorchester [illegible] Carey, [illegible] and [illegible] Sheehan getting the ball on his own 40-yard [illegible]

Sheehan was given excellent interference and romped 60 yards for a touchdown and the only score.

ELI '36 CHOICE OVER CRIMSON

New Haven, Nov. 11—Harvard and Yale freshman elevens wind up their seasons in the Bowl here tomorrow afternoon in the classic of the frosh offerings of the year.

The grand Bulldog eleven which has dropped only one game in five and that to Princeton a week ago by the slim margin of a field goal is a natural favorite to win. The Blue defeated Exeter, 13-0; Andover, 25-0; Roxbury School, 18-7, and Columbia, 18-0, before losing to the Tiger cubs.

The Harvard freshman engaged Yale [illegible] in taking Exeter['s] measure, but were lucky to gain a 6-6 tie with Andover. But [illegible] Bond's eleven made a grand come back against Dartmouth last Saturday, taking the Indians by a 19-0 score.

Yanks Score Three Wins Over Australia

Sydney, Australia, Nov. 11 (INS)—The invading American exhibition tennis team today scored a three-to-one victory over the Australians.

John Van Ryn defeated Ray Dunlop, of Australia, 6-1, 6-1; Keith Gledhill scored a 6-4, 6-4 victory over James Willard. Jack Crawford of Australia beat Wilmer Allison 6-3, 3-6, 6-2. In the doubles match Vines and Gledhill teamed to win from Vivian McGrath and W[illegible] 6-2, 6-3, [illegible]-6, 6-[illegible].

BRUINS TIE IN WILD BATTLE

Toronto, Nov. 11—The Toronto Maple Leafs, world's champion hockey team, and the Boston Bruins played a rugged overtime game to a 1-1 tie in the National Hockey League opener here.

The Bruins, returning to their former rough style of play, commenced handing out punishment as soon as the game got under way. Toronto [illegible] into the spirit of the day.

STEWART PENALIZED

Toronto collected seven and the Bruins six. Nels Stewart in his first game and first period for the Bruins was the major offender with three trips to the cooler. Eddie Shore was a close second with two.

Both scores came out of the midst of wild scrambles in front of the nets. King Clancy dented the nets for Toronto in the first period with [illegible] and Cotton getting credit for assists.

Irish Game a Tossup, Says Anderson

Detroit, Nov. 11—Earl McCracken, Detroit's 140-pound back, is ready to assure Villanova and all other opposing players who haven't run up against him yet that he is by no means fragile. He has played comparatively little but that is because he has a trick of putting scoring punch into his play and Coach Gus Dorais prefers to send him in fresh when there is a chance for a touchdown.

New York—Cliff Montgomery has been named to start for Columbia against the undefeated Brown team, but most of his work will be confined to passing because of his injured ankle. He tried that for a few minutes against Navy and brought some big gains.

Notre Dame, Ind.—"Chunk" Anderson, Notre Dame coach, predicts that tomorrow's battle between the "Irish" and Northwestern will be a tossup. Long runs or successful passes by the backs of either team will probably break up the game, he says.

Syracuse, N. Y.—Vic Hanson, coach of the Syracuse team, is frankly optimistic about tomorrow's struggle with Colgate. The Orange not only will be the first team to score against the "Red Raiders," he says, but it has a good chance to be the first to defeat Colgate.

Bloomington, Ind.—Two players from Illinois, Edmonds and Sawicki, are expected to be in the Indiana backfield when the Hoosiers line up for their game with Illinois. Both of them hail from Georgetown, Ill.

Ohio State Is Well Satisfied With Team

Columbus, O.—Ohio State is well satisfied with the team that beat Northwestern last week, but the coaches are rather afraid of overconfidence when their men face Pennsylvania. The only change in the lineup that is planned sends Max Padlow in at end.

Princeton, N. J.—Ray Knell, Princeton halfback, played often enough last year to win his letter, but this season he warmed the bench until the Lehigh game last week. He made such an impression then that he may start against Yale despite his lack of poundage.

West Point, N. Y.—A muddy field slowed down Army's last workout for the North Dakota State game. The cadets had trouble with the slippery ball and lacked co-ordination. Several new men were used in the first team line-up.

Villanova Works Three Hours on Dummy

Villanova, Pa.—Villanova spent three hours at dummy scrimmage and signal drills preparing for the Detroit game. The Wildcats learned Carroll Cook, fullback, who was injured two weeks ago, will not be able to play.

Philadelphia—After a final workout on Franklin Field, Pennsylvania's squad, including 33 players, left tonight for Columbus to play Ohio State Saturday. Coach Harman said Penn has an even chance to win.

Johnny Ferraro Back With Dobie Troupe

Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 11 (INS)—Johnny Ferraro, star back reported dropped temporarily in a gesture of discipline by Coach Gil Dobie, today was back on Cornell's varsity and will play at least part of the game against Dartmouth tomorrow. Dartmouth will hold a brief practice after its arrival here today.

Middletown—Bowdoin will have to contend with a speedy backfield when she comes down from Maine to meet Wesleyan here tomorrow. Schlums, Terrell, Hounley and Fricke have been carefully prepared for the contest. The line has been well practiced against Bowdoin attack, and Coach Oberlander believes his Cardinals will give the Polar Bears a beating.

Japan's Court King Loses to Student

Tokio, Nov. 11 (AP)—Jiro Satoh, Japanese cup star and former national champion, today was defeated in the finals of the national tourney by Ryosuke Nunoi, a college student, 6—7, 6—2, 2—6, 6—4, 6—1.

Satoh has been rated Japan's No. 1 player for several years.

MANY NATURALS ON EASTERN GRID SLATE

Prognosticators will need to ponder well this week's slate of Eastern football contests if they wish to avoid embarrassment.

There are plenty of "naturals" on the card that seem just as likely to go one way as the other, depending upon which direction the breaks go. Nevertheless, here's what the dope indicates in the leading games:

BROWN-COLUMBIA—Two well-matched teams which have marched along undefeated and untied so far. Brown may start a slight favorite but one vote is hereby cast for Columbia if Cliff Montgomery is in shape to play all, or most of the game for Columbia.

He's the team's best runner, passer and kicker and if his injuries leave him handicapped Columbia's chances look slim.

SYRACUSE-COLGATE—Syracuse is definitely on the upgrade, but the Orange does not seem to have much chance against the Red Raiders, undefeated, untied and unscored on.

ITHACANS HAVE EDGE

CORNELL-DARTMOUTH—These rivals have put on many a thrilling, high-scoring battle and their meeting Saturday looks like a toss up. [illegible] has shown scoring punch [illegible] and Cornell's superior defense may give the Ithacans a slight edge.

PRINCETON-YALE—Only the shortest of Princeton memories fails to recall last year's 51-14 rout at Yale's hands. Despite Yale's improvement, as manifest in the Dartmouth game, the Tigers look like winners.

HARVARD-HOLY CROSS—The suspension of Capt. McEwan, head coach, will do Holy Cross no good, but the Crusaders still look like a better team than anything Harvard has shown on the gridiron in the last three weeks.

PITT-NEBRASKA—The Cornhuskers are hoping to avenge the 40-0 beating they took from Pitt last year but it doesn't look like much more than a hope.

OHIO-PENN TOSSUP

OHIO STATE-PENN—On the face of it this looks like one of the evenest games on the program with the edge, if any, belonging to Ohio State if the Buckeyes' play approximates the high standard of last week.

ARMY-NORTH DAKOTA STATE—The Midwesterners are a strong small-college eleven but they do not rate within a couple of country miles of Army's class.

NAVY-MARYLAND—Navy is coming along slowly but surely and this may be the spot for the Tars' first major victory.

WEST VIRGINIA-WASHINGTON AND LEE—Despite W. & L.'s surprise victory over Virginia last week, West Virginia seems a distinct choice.

VILLANOVA-DETROIT—Two well-matched teams with Villanova's greater punch perhaps the decisive factor.

AMHERST-WILLIAMS—Only Amherst can be picked.

CLIFFORD TO PILOT H. C. AGAINST HARVARD

Crusaders at Peak for Battle With Crimson Foe

By BILL GRIMES

Worcester, Nov 11—Since the announcement by Holy Cross of the suspension of Capt. John J. McEwan as head coach, champions of the parties involved in the affair have taken their stands.

Now all is quiet on the slopes of Mt. St James, and the Crusaders will not carry any mental hazards into the Harvard game tomorrow afternoon in the Stadium

The Holy Cross athletic council struck a harmonious and popular note by appointing Arthur "Bunny" Corcoran and Gus Cervini to handle football for the remainder of the season. Appreciating the coaching ability and other qualities of Corcoran and Cervini, the Holy Cross players to a man are behind their new bosses

CLIFFORD PILOT NOW

The first move of the new coaches was the promotion of Walter Clifford to first string quarterback At Mt. St James the opinion is almost unanimous that Walter Clifford is the best field general Holy Cross has had in ten years. As the team has absolute confidence in Clifford, it should click better offensively against Harvard than it has all season

The Holy Cross squad worked out this morning in a two hour drill and later boarded a bus for Boston College The players will watch the Eagles in action against Western Maryland, but will return here immediately after the game and go to Cambridge tomorrow noon

For over a year trouble has been brewing between Capt McEwan and the authorities at Holy Cross

The refusal on the part of Holy Cross to fulfill Capt McEwan's demand for a backfield coach was the opening flareup this season

FORDHAM RESENTED TALK

From time to time rifts occurred, but they were not of a serious nature until Capt. McEwan had criticised Fordham, at a Boston College smoker, for its failure to offer Major Frank W Cavanaugh a new contract. Fordham resented McEwan's interference and censured Boston College for permitting McEwan to dwell publicly on such a subject

In all probability, Capt. McEwan's outburst of oratory at Boston College had a strong bearing on his present predicament, despite the fact that it has not been made an issue during the controversy Finally the break came in Providence, when McEwan jammed with Bart Sullivan, which was the last straw

In some quarters, attempts have been made to link Cleo O'Donnell, director of athletics, with McEwan's dismissal. Although O'Donnell has kept entirely apart from football since McEwan went to "The Cross," he and the captain have had many altercations on matters foreign to the playing end of the game

BERGMAN FAVORED

In fact, they have never been really friendly underneath, for McEwan had been advised of the fact that O'Donnell had favored Arthur Bergman, now coach at Catholic University, for the H C berth The captain did not know that O'Donnell had not been consulted on the head coach situation until just prior to McEwan's signing his four year contract, calling for $8500 per season

The Holy Cross authorities have been bending over backwards for weeks while attempting to get through the season without a break but they felt that they could not countenance Capt McEwan's ultimatum, which was to the effect that either he or Sullivan must sever connections with football

As Capt. McEwan is alleged to have made the same statement many times to Cleo O'Donnell, the break would have been postponed until after the Boston College game had not McEwan rushed into print announcing that he had broken with Sullivan

Despite the known danger of changing horses in mid-stream, Holy Cross has been forced to take the risk, has negotiated the shift and is now confident of a safe journey to the shore.

BOSTON IN NEW ICE LEAGUE

Providence, R. I., Nov. 11 (AP)—The Eastern Amateur Ice Hockey Association was organized at a meeting here Providence, Boston, Springfield, New Haven, and New York are the members now with W. A. Price of New York, the president

Other officers elected are: N. M Shea, New Haven, vice-president; W. J. Flynn, Boston, secretary; H. L. Davenport, Springfield, treasurer

A schedule will be drawn up, the play starting around December 17

Singer Marries Tomorrow

New York, Nov. 11 (INS) — Al Singer, former world's lightweight boxing champion, will be married here tomorrow to Miss Becker of New York.

TERRIERS SET FOR JUMBOS

Coach Myles Lane ordered his Boston University football squad to report at 9 o'clock this morning and he sent them through a two-hour drill devoted largely to brushing up on new plays for tomorrow's game against Tufts at Nickerson Field, Weston

This afternoon the entire squad goes to the Alumni Field as guests of Boston College to watch the Eagles-Western Maryland affair This game is very interesting to the Terriers as they meet B C next Saturday, the players are much more concerned with the Tufts game

For the past two years the Terriers have outrushed, outpassed, outkicked the Jumbos, but Tufts has won both times

Coach Lane has drilled the Terriers all week on Tufts' plays and he has instructed Dave Nemzoff and "Bull" Myer who will be backing up the Boston University line to keep the men on their toes all afternoon

There will be two changes in the Boston University lineup for tomorrow. Horrie Call, who played regular tackle all season until the Vermont game will be back at his old berth. Call has not played up to his usual standard in the past two games, but Line Coach John McManmon feels that the Quincy boy is again ready. Call weighs 195 pounds and he is a rugged lineman

The other change will be at right end. Wilbur Storer will be kept on the bench at the start of the game, Christie Harris who has been coming along fast will start at the wing position

Although Tufts is still a favorite the Terriers and their coaches still disagree with the experts who are making the selections

GREEN OFF FOR ITHACA TODAY

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 11—Dartmouth's grid contingent composed of 33 inspired warriors was to entrain this noon for Ithaca, N. Y., where the Green will clash with Gil Dobie's big Red eleven tomorrow afternoon in their 16th battle and the last game of the season for Dartmouth.

The last practice of the 1932 season yesterday was celebrated with the burning of the kerosene-soaked dummy, which was lighted by Capt. Bill Hoffman

Tomorrow's game will see two Dartmouth players starting their first major game for the Green Johnny Donovan of Norwood, Mass., and "Jack" Hill of Littleton, N. H., backs.

"Ike" Powers of Newton, Mass., and Sammy Fishman of Malden, Mass., will complete the starting backfield, playing in the two wingback positions.

Rolly Morton, veteran fullback; Dave Hedges and Bill Clark will all be available as replacements. The line will be the same as that which started the last two games.

CALLAHAN ILL; TUT GO OFF

Andy Callahan, New England's middleweight, welterweight and lightweight boxing champion, has been forced to call off his bout scheduled with King Tut for the Boston Garden one week from tonight.

Callahan caught a heavy cold in the midst of rugged training work for Tut and he has been advised by his doctor to call off the contest. It will take Callahan a week or more to shake the cold and he would be unable to get into shape

In announcing the illness of Callahan and the calling off of the show the Boston Garden management stated that it hopes to put the bout on at a later date.

M'Coy Uses New Blow to Beat Dick O'Brien

Kid McCoy has an outstanding series of adventures in South Africa where he defeats Doherty middleweight champ of Australia and South Africa, is engaged by a circus and makes a total of $[illegible]. Two women are devoted to him during his South African stay: the widow of a mining man who saves his life when he is in a hospital with fever and Lizzie, a beautiful barmaid. He learns that Lizzie has hidden herself away on the same boat

By KID McCOY

As Told to Lee J. Smits

CHAPTER XXIII

Boston Evening American [illegible]

IT WAS on the second day out of Cape Town that Lizzie, the beautiful barmaid, appeared on deck She had taken passage on the Scott as a surprise on me, and a surprise it was.

Lizzie and I had a tiff before saying goodbye I took her out to an ostrich farm and while she was looking at the birds I paid £20 for a huge ostrich plume fan then very much in fashion Lizzie accepted the fan and then started to weep

"Oh," she cried. "You've spent a lot of money for this fan and I haven't anything to wear with it!"

Naturally I was glad of Lizzie's companionship on the 17-day voyage and in London she got loose among the shops and brought her wardrobe up to the standard of the fan by spending about $2,000.

Lottie at Pier

When we embarked for New York I cabled my brother Homer to meet us, and that was a stroke of luck Because Lottie was at the pier accompanied by a deputy sheriff I [illegible] to shift my problem to Homer and he took charge of Lizzie

A $100 bill [illegible] the deputy, who was prepared to grab me for desertion and I [illegible] Lottie into being nice We rented an apartment at Broadway and 84th st paying, I recall $85 a month

We paid $10 a month in Astoria L. I., and our new quarters seemed palatial. I kept constantly in training, boxing every day in the New Manhattan Athletic Club, and doing my road work in Central Park

I boxed a number of bouts and toured the country with a vaudeville act consisting of boxing and bag punching and a little talk

What was really the most triumphant event after my return was a visit to Columbus, Ind., where I had met Jack Rush and slept on the floor of the waterworks engine room.

Kid Is Feted

When I got off the train the mayor greeted me a band was playing and the streets were decorated with flags

"What's all this for?" I asked Jack.

"For you," he said.

It was so good to be warmly received by the people who had known me as a vagrant kid, and to clasp the hand of my oldest and best friend, tears came into my eyes.

Crump's Theater had been hired for a big reception, and I appeared in evening clothes and punched the bag and told of my South African trip. Jack was on the stage with me, and when I illustrated how I had imitated a clumsy boxer, there were snickers in the audience.

I tried to get from Jack some intimation of what was wrong He was grinning too To them however I stood. I was Kid McCoy, and that I could contrive to appear clumsy to anyone was something they couldn't believe

After my little stunt, there was a loud demand that Jack and I box. He was considered about the best around that part of the country. After some persuasion, he ducked into a dressing room and came out wearing trunks.

Boxes Dressed Up

"Get heady, Kid," he said to me, "I'm ready, go to it."

"Put on your trunks. You don't want to get that outfit mussed up"

"Who's going to muss it up?"

"I am," Jack said. "Naturally, your shirt front will get smeared up with the gloves."

Jack told me afterward that he was determined to rub his gloves on my shirt front, if nothing more, [illegible] boxed [illegible] good rounds [illegible] I tapped him repeatedly [illegible] couldn't touch me [illegible] at this time [illegible] lent [illegible] The [illegible] would [illegible] South Africa [illegible] was [illegible] in the Peace [illegible] New York

A new [illegible] his appearance [illegible] O'Brien is short, blond, bull-necked He is built on the squat plan of a satyr. He wears a 6⅛ hat and can probably slip his buttoned shirt collar over his head

"Of all that blood loving throng, McCoy is the last you would have picked as a fighting man. He is slender, pale-faced and white-skinned He is as different as a schoolboy. He smiled bashfully at the crowd"

The [illegible] 10th round [illegible] When referee [illegible]

"Please stop the fight. I don't want to punish a game man any further"

Uses Trick Punch

It was in the O'Brien fight that I first made full use of the corkscrew punch, which I had discovered in South Africa and tried on Doherty

A New York sports writer from the New York World gave the punch its name He was visiting me in my training camp at New Dorp on Staten Island and asked

"How is it you cut up your opponents so savagely?"

I explained to him how, in South Africa, I got the idea for the blow and started practicing giving a quarter turn to my fist at the instant of impact

At this time I had Lizzie installed in Asbury Park and was trying to keep Lottie placated in our new home But both were discontented

Eventually I gave Lizzie $[illegible] and she headed back for England Lottie and I began to talk of a divorce She was a home-body, a small-town girl at heart, while I belonged to the sporting world

I was seldom home There was mutual respect between us, but not much love

Life was at its very crest about this time. The hard days of hunger, of obscurity, of uncertainty, were not so far behind but that I could sense always the contrast between my present state and my boyhood and youth

Kid McCoy tells tomorrow of new romance in his life, and his preparation for another meeting with Tommy Ryan.

The recent story about the B[illegible] setter that ranged wide and held a point on partridge till found by plane, got a rise out of Dr. Abijah D. Pierce, of 191 Main st., Greenfield

I like your column, but please be reasonable," writes the doctor in a letter penned election day.

I have hunted grouse all my life, i.e. since I was old enough to look down a gun barrel. There has always been a bird dog in the family. In fact, I have a fair one now

"So I am bold enough to inquire whether or not that setter you wrote about in last night's paper was one of those cast iron lawn ornaments of the gay 90s? Or was it the grouse that was the product of the foundry?

I fully expected the yarn would end by the dog pointing the airplane, so I was disappointed.

"I hunted over a little pointer bitch in Florida that held a covey of quail 25 minutes by the watch, but never did hear tell of a grouse that was accommodating enough to stay put for any such length of time. Ah, well Wonders never cease."

• • •

Well doc, I did not [illegible] to say [illegible] Frank C[illegible] and [illegible] Otto Grew [illegible] me the [illegible]

And it's now 15 minutes later I just had a visit from Steve Frost the noted old-time game [illegible] who wanted to show me a new [illegible] I showed him your letter He too says I was a liar about the plane But he disagrees with you [illegible]

"Seventy-five per cent of the time, a partridge doesn't know there's a dog around when the dog is pointing it," is Frost's opinion. "The bird is flushed by the hunter, not by the dog. If a dog is steady and can stand point without moving, and if the hunter isn't around, I think the bird will lay indefinitely"

Frost has an unusual [illegible] about bird dogs. He thinks a sixth sense not the sense of smell leads them to birds. And of course I don't agree with that

As for me doctor I'm a very trusting sort of [illegible] and doubtlessly I fall for a lot of fibs I like to believe

I even believe "Mac" MacDo[illegible] tell a story about the blue belton setter. "Mac" has a gunning camp up Pelham way on the Swift river west branch. He had a setter he thought the world of until one fall day, gunning partridge, they started across the branch and the dog pointed at the edge of the stream. "Mac" walked up behind it and saw it was pointing a big pickerel [illegible] in the water close to the bank

"I didn't know what to do," said "Mac," "and I was pretty mad about it, I can tell you. But finally I got my faith back in the dog and I shot the pickerel. And, by gorry, when I cut it open I found a woodcock inside it."

So What?

By JOE MOONEY

Armistice Day serves a purpose after all. It took the World War to make 11 a m famous for anything

Up to then 11 o'clock was chiefly noted for being the zero hour before lunch.

Then in 1928 and for the next four years lunchtime became the zero hour itself, with 11 o'clock nowhere in the running

It now develops that all the time we thought Prosperity was around the corner, she was ducking behind a beer barrel.

We aren't impatient as a nation, but we'll give her just three to come out

Looks like company in the cellar for our ball clubs next Spring.

A little [illegible] from New York had difficulty in securing a ticket for the first night of "The Dubarry" at the Shubert, but finally succeeded. To the amazement of her neighbors in nearby seats her enjoyment of the performance seemed tinged with sorrow. There was even a trace of tears. This unknown, quiet visitor, it was later discovered, was Mrs. Joe Leblang, whose late husband was famous along Broadway for years as a cut rate ticket speculator. Mr. Leblang left a large fortune, and out of its ample resources Mrs. Leblang was able to finance the production of "The Dubarry," the cost of which has been reported to be close to $200,000. When "The Dubarry" leaves the Shubert it will move immediately into the George M. Cohan Theater in New York, which occupies a portion of the block on Broadway between 42nd and 43rd sts., that Joe Leblang bought with the wealth he had accumulated peddling cut rate tickets.

KARLOFF ADDS FOOT TO HEIGHT

Chaney's Successor Has Role of Fu Manchu in New Film

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

A mechanical man has a role in "The Mask of Fu Manchu." No, it isn't Boris Karloff in disguise. Karloff is there, towering high as in "Frankenstein," but he's not the robot. Since Lon Chaney died there is none left at Hollywood who could do a robot as well as Karloff, but the fellow with the Russian name has a part of his own to play in the Cosmopolitan picture now featured at Loew's State and Orpheum.

Chaney once said that [illegible] screen [illegible] ways of achieving weird [illegible] by makeup. He meant that the necessity for speech prevented overloading the face [illegible] with grotesque additions, for such interfere with the [illegible] of speech either by physical means or psychological effect upon the actor. So Karloff, to enact Fu Manchu, had his most difficult problem. In real life he stands six feet; in his new role he rises to almost seven feet.

Karloff says that "Frankenstein" was comparatively easy, for that monster did not speak, and his [illegible] muscles and features could be cluttered up with the putty and what-not they used.

"Instead of the usual heavy false teeth, I had to fall back on a very thin shell contrivance," he says. "For slanted eyes, I could not use adhesive tape, but we invented celluloid clips, which do not interfere with the muscles. In all we did I had to remember to keep my face completely mobile, otherwise I would have been a failure."

George Arliss Agrees to Play Title Role in "The Life of Voltaire" Film Feature

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, Nov. 11—Can you visualize George Arliss as Voltaire, philosopher, writer and head man during the reign of Frederick, the Great? I hope you can because you are going to see the English actor portray the colorful Voltaire in a story to be entitled "The Life of Voltaire."

Louella O. Parsons

Most biographies aren't motion picture material but Voltaire's life, if correctly pictured, should be well worth seeing. Paul Green has been assigned to write the scenario and, according to Darryl Zanuck, it will go into production immediately following "The King's Vacation."

So interested is Mr. Arliss that he will postpone his return to England until this one is made. No story of Voltaire could be told without showing his close relationship with Frederick, the Great. One of the most interesting rooms in Sans Souci at Potsdam is the one occupied by Voltaire.

Sheehan Happy:

There is celebrating aplenty on the Fox lot. Winfield Sheehan, who all but took the soap box for President-elect Franklin Delano Roosevelt, was so happy over the landslide that it was difficult for him to talk of anything else but the Democratic victory. I couldn't bother him with such trivial things as movies but I did learn from another source that Chester Morris will have the lead in "The Infernal Machine," a novel and play by Carl Sloboda. Arthur Kober is writing the screen play and Marcel Varnol is directing. Sounds as if it might be one of those thrillers.

Costly Phoning:

Glad I didn't have to pay Marilyn Miller's long distance telephone bill. She talked and talked and talked, nearly $200 worth. Maybe she is lonely for Hollywood. Yet she shouldn't be, her heavy romance, Don Alvarado, is in New York with her and the chances are about nine to ten that he and the premiere danseuse will marry when his divorce becomes final. So far Marilyn hasn't found a play, but Sam Harris is leaving for London next week to take a look at "Wild Violets" for her. It's a tremendous hit in London, where Hassard Short, one of our w. k. American stage directors, produced it.

• • •

Chatter in Hollywood:

Tallulah Bankhead is saying au revoir or maybe it's goodbye to Hollywood. She is moving out of the William Haines house this coming week and traveling East to New York. Tallulah and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer failed to get together on a contract and since she and Paramount have already parted company, her movie plans seem not to have jelled. There is always the stage for Bankhead, who is a very talented actress, although I have a hunch she will not return to London, where she had so much stage success. Billy Haines is moving back to his house, which is one of the most artistic in Hollywood.

A Line or Two:

Much underground whispering that Clara Bow is being sought by M-G-M for the feminine lead in "Whistling in the Dark." Out of the Fox lot they are pretty cheerful over "Call Her Savage," believing that they have a good picture. We hope so and so do all the Bow fans. Ottumwa, Iowa, is getting ready to welcome Karen Morley. Karen is going back to the home town to visit her grandfather for Christmas. Did you know she was born in the good old state of Iowa? No? Johnny Weissmuller has moved to Malibu. Johnny just felt he had to be where he could go in swimming every day and keep up his record as swim specialist. He has bought himself a little sail boat and on any pleasant morning you can see him in the water. The memory of Robert Williams is still fresh and green in the minds of those who admired him on the screen. His widow, Nina Penn Williams, sails for Europe November 11 in company with Mrs. Horace Jackson and Mrs. E. H. Griffith. They plan to tour for three months after which Mrs. Williams will come back to keep a stage engagement in New York.

Snapshots of Hollywood:

Has CARL LAEMMLE, JR., fallen for pretty ELEANOR HOLM, expert swimmer? They danced nearly every dance at the Cocoanut Grove election night. JOHN CONSIDINE, JR., and the petite CARMEN, all done up in a red dress with feather shoulder piece, gave an election party. BEBE DANIELS, who doesn't care who knows she voted bright and early for Roosevelt, a member of this party. DOLORES DEL RIO, in sedate black; BEN LYON, all dressed up in full evening clothes in honor of the election, and CEDRIC GIBBONS staying up until the wee sma' hours. Funeral services for Mrs. Mary E. McGonagle, 75, mother of Francis E. McGonagle, assistant clerk of committees in Somerville, will be held tomorrow in St. Joseph's Church, Somerville.

Eleanor Boardman-Vidor 'Perfect Match' on Rocks

ELEANOR BOARDMAN

Los Angeles, Nov. 11 (AP)—Eleanor Boardman, film actress, has sued King Vidor, director, for divorce, naming Miss Bety Hill, script girl, as co-respondent.

The Boardman-Vidor marriage six year ago was called by Hollywood the "perfect match."

'La Traviata' Given by San Carlo Group

By MOSES SMITH

"La Traviata," Verdi's opera which, for reasons difficult to explain, remains a perennial favorite with many music-lovers, was presented last night by the San Carlo Opera Company at the Boston Opera House.

Some day an American operatic producer will have the courage to present "La Traviata" in so-called modern dress, the women in their own evening clothes, the men in conventional "full dress." For the rural scene of the second act modern sports attire would do. This procedure would have the advantage of lending verisimilitude to what is supposed to be transpiring on stage. It would also save the producer's costumer bills. For there is nothing in the story of the opera which can not be represented as taking place in our own time. There are no automobiles necessary, no moving pictures and no radio.

By such a presentation the spectator would be spared the absurdities of a tenor in evening dress, mid-nineteenth century mode, in the ballroom scenes, and in an incredible velvet-clothed makeshift in the country house, of guests in costumes such as might have been worn in Venice three centuries earlier or in a Sicilian town three decades later, of one character accoutred like a ducal lackey and another, supposed to be doing the same thing, dressed like a king's archer taking part in a period play.

All of this, I suppose, is neither here nor there. We witnessed these absurdities in last night's performance, and presumably they will continue. Unfortunately, the singing, with the exception of Mario Valle's competent elder Germont, did not compensate for the lack of illusion. Tina Paggi, the Violetta, has a voice too light for the role, and last night was not singing consistently in tune. Giuseppe Barsotti, hurriedly called to substitute in the role of Alfredo, had the further handicaps of a small voice, lack of stage presence, and the aforesaid inconsistency of costuming. Nor could Mr. Peroni and his orchestra persuasively elicit a love for the music. Above all, the music needs nowadays first-rate singers.

But the audience, I must say, enjoyed itself heartily.

AMOS-ANDY SCHEDULE CUT TO FIVE NIGHTS WEEKLY

Pair Off the Air Saturday Evenings

By N. F. T.

Long unmolested as to time, network and sponsor, whimsical little Amos and his blustering associate Andy, are at last getting a taste of the good old radio pastime, hereby labeled "toss 'em around" for the want of a better name.

• • •

SATURDAY SUSPENSION

Andy

Five nights a week instead of six, beginning with this week-end, is to be their new schedule. No Saturday sketch will be presented hereafter. It is possible, of course, that interest in the one time greatest of all air attractions has waned. Even so, from the listening standpoint of one who swears by every kilocycles in broadcastingdom he is unbiased when it comes to all loud-speaker activity, these two fellows (Freeman Gosden and Charlie Correll) put on the most true to type, really humorous, 15 minute offering current on the ether waves. What's more they never have to tell an actual joke, as so-called jokes go. One opinion, however, or even a few, cannot control any situation. Evidence of such fact has just been quite forcibly demonstrated by our recent election outcome—eh? Nevertheless, here's hoping this alteration does not mean the fate of Amos 'n' Andy is destined to be similar to that of so many other studio stars.

• • •

PUNCTUALITY PREFERRED

Amos

It is calmly contended that a large measure of their popularity may be credited to the consistency of time, network and sponsorship with which they have been identified. Regularity is the basis of success along any line, be it running trains, conducting theater performances, delivering mail or maintaining office hours. Shifting features and personalities from one night to another as well as constantly changing time for various presentations, is something big broadcasters will probably someday manage to minimize. To date, one cannot call to mind a single outstanding radio star who has not been pushed from pillar to post while striving to establish a definite listener patronage. In time program planners will no doubt become convinced that people can hardly be expected to chase favorites all over the dial. No more so than they might be willing to buy a newspaper that published every other day at different times or only printed certain well-liked features, according to the convenience of its management. Most folks just won't do it, they're too regular.

• • •

SPECIAL STUDIO SHOW

An extraordinary full hour of entertainment is listed to take place tonight (WAAB and WNAC) between 7.15 and 8.15. First, the former station carries half of the doing (7:15 to 7:45), whereupon the same talent occupies the latter local wave. Walter Smith and his celebrated military band furnishes spirited music throughout. Soprano Soloist Majorie Leadbetter will contribute songs, in addition to well known selections as rendered by Boston's baritone, Walter Kidder.

• • •

Those who enjoy nonsense smartly imparted should lend an ear or two toward WHDH early this evening. Jim Hatfield, gifted with a remarkable flair for mimicry and unique foolishness, plans trying out his new program idea. He is being assisted in specialty song arrangements by Frank Allen, Leo Albee and a very clever chap named Warren at the piano.

On the Air

Campaign talks really aren't over. Sponsors have taken up where the politicians have taken off. Politicians on the radio now are as defunct as crooners. And once more sponsorial blurbs are unchallenged as Chief Headache Givers.

Which is an idea. A smart headache tablet manufacturer should have a brief announcement directly after most any announcer has concluded blahblahing.

NBC's Pickens Sisters were telling about their Negro mammy down in Georgia who named one of her offsprings Morphine . . . "Why do you call him Morphine?" asked a Pickens . . . Mammy answered, "Cause I done heard white folks say morphine am a product of de wild poppy an' ef evah a chile had a wild poppy, dis am him."

Because a Dublin, Ireland insane asylum was being wasted away for want of patients, the city turned the institution into a radio station recently. And a lot of people believe the process is being reversed in this country.

Coming out of the ether: Fred Berrens, CBS orch. leader, bet on Hoover because he said those fellows on Wall st. gave odds on Roosevelt and they haven't guessed anything right in three years . . . Joe Rines says he has a plan calculated to make the first of the month less dreaded. He suggests the postoffice department stencil on all mail boxes the notice "Post No Bills" . . . George Price is being joshed by fellow artists about wearing the smallest shoe on Broadway. And Georgie is retaliating by saying he also wears the smallest hat.

HOW TO STOP A COLD QUICK AS YOU CAUGHT IT

A New Method Doctors Everywhere Are Advising

2 Drink Full Glass of Water.

3 If throat is sore, crush and dissolve 3 Bayer Aspirin Tablets in a half glass of warm water and gargle according to directions.

Almost Instant Relief In This Way

If you have a cold—don't take chances with "cold killers" and nostrums. A cold is too dangerous to take chances on.

It is recognized as the QUICKEST, safest, surest way. For it will check an ordinary cold almost as fast as you caught it.

That is because the real BAYER Aspirin embodies certain medical qualities that strike at the base of a cold almost INSTANTLY.

You can combat nearly any cold you get amply by taking BAYER Aspirin and drinking plenty of water every 2 to 4 hours the first day and 3 or 4 times daily thereafter. If throat is sore, gargle with 3 BAYER Aspirin Tablets crushed and dissolved in a half glass of warm water, repeating every 2 or 3 hours as necessary. Sore throat eases this way in a few minutes, incredible as this may seem.

Ask your doctor about this. And when you buy, see that you get the real BAYER Aspirin Tablets. They dissolve almost instantly. And thus work almost instantly when you take them. And for a gargle, Genuine Bayer Aspirin Tablets dissolve with sufficient speed and completeness, leaving no irritating particles or grittiness. Get a box of 12 or bottle of 100 at any drugstore.

WAR MEMORIAL IN NEWTON IS DEDICATED

"God forbid that we ever again have occasion to dedicate another war memorial, but should that occasion ever arise, let us pray that my sons and yours may prove once again that great principles take precedence over life itself."

With these words, Mayor Sinclair Weeks [illegible] dedicated Newton's new City Hall and War Memorial [illegible] in the presence of a crowd of 6000 persons.

[illegible]

Speakers at the dedication included Congressman Robert Luce and Lt. Gov. William S. Youngman, who represented [illegible]. Rev. E. C. Herrick, president of Andover Newton Theological School, gave the invocation and the benediction was given by Rev. [illegible], head of Boston College. Admiral [illegible] represented the Navy and Gen. [illegible] the Army.

HARVARD PAYS HONOR TO 178 WAR DEAD

Solemn tribute to the 178 sons of Harvard who gave their lives in the World War was paid today at dedication of the new Appleton Chapel Memorial.

More than 1500 alumni from all parts of the nation, including Lieut.-Gov.-elect Gaspar G. Bacon, were present. The ceremonies were sponsored by James Shannon Post, American Legion, composed of Harvard men.

A reading from the Old Testament was given by President A. Lawrence Lowell of the university, with the Rev. Charles E. Park responding.

Bishop William Lawrence delivered the eulogy, saying:

"In the great war 178 sons of Harvard consecrated themselves to the cause of the Allies and died for it. Thirty times that number responded to the call for service.

"In our desire to say or think nothing evil of the dead, we are liable to wrap around them a halo of artificial sainthood. The very saints mentiontd in the list from which my text is taken were human and so were the young men whose names are upon the tablets."

HOME TOWN VOTE PLEASED SEN. BROWN

By BERT FORD

Staff Correspondent of the Boston Evening American

(This is the final of two stories on Senator-elect Fred H. Brown, of New Hampshire.)

Concord, N. H., Nov. 11 — Fred Tenney, of the Boston Nationals, was baseball coach at Dartmouth when U. S. Senator-elect Fred H. Brown was a member of the squad.

"I learned a lot about the fine points of the game from Tenney," said the senator-elect today. "He put pep into the squad. In those days college baseball seemed to hold more interest and rivalry was intense.

"Two games with Williams stand out in my memory. We won one and lost one, and talk about scrapping. Each game was a fight to the finish.

"In the game at Williamstown, Charlie Snyder was umpire. I don't recall who it was who recommended me to the management of the Springfield club, then a member of the Eastern League.

"I still get a great kick out of baseball. One of my diversions is attending a major league game whenever time permits and I keep posted on the standing of clubs and players.

"I played professional baseball and enjoyed it until I found that it was interfering with my plans for studying law. While a law student I entered the law office of 'Jim' Edgerly, at Somersworth, N. H., in 1906 and was admitted to the bar in 1907.

James A. Edgerly was one of the greatest lawyers ever produced by New Hampshire. He was one of the defence counsel in the famous Sawtelle murder case. He proved a kindly tutor. My associations in that office proved highly beneficial."

FIGHTER WHEN AROUSED

The new senator from the Granite State was born in Ossipee, April 12, 1879. He is light complexioned. His sandy hair is rather thin on top but shows very little gray. He is medium in height, broad shouldered and his features and hands show vigor. He has a keen, kindly eye and features which indicate a fine mixture of determination and kindliness.

He is human and sympathetic, but a fighter when aroused. He never retreats. As a campaigner, his associates in the recent hard fought contest against what appeared to be insuperable odds, said Fred proved a wonder. Despite the rigors of the campaign, which called for as many as five rallies in a night, he did not neglect his duties as a member of the public service commission.

Referring to the handsome vote given him in Somersworth, Senator-elect Brown said:

"The tribute paid me by my townsfolk pleases me more than anything. You know your neighbors are apt to know all your short-comings. If there are any mean traits they know about them and so an indorsement from your home town is something to appreciate."

Brown was mayor of Somersworth five terms. He has been a staunch Democrat since he cast his first ballot. He was a presidential elector in 1912 and cast his vote for Woodrow Wilson, who two years later appointed him U. S. district attorney at Concord.

He had an excellent record as federal prosecutor. He held this berth until 1922 when he resigned to run for governor and won, serving in 1923-24. In the latter year he lost to John G. Winant, the present governor.

Chairman Robert C. Murchie of the Democratic State committee said that when Fred Brown retired as governor he left a surplus in the treasury and a small indebtedness but that the succeeding administration boosted expenditures to $6,000,000 with the result that Murchie ordered public accountants to check on the State books in 1925.

It was not until Senator-elect Brown became governor of New Hampshire that his romance with Miss Edna McHarg of Lancaster, a clerk in the secretary of state's office, developed. They were married after a brief courtship.

Brown was appointed a member of the Public Service Commission by Governor Winant in 1924 and has held that job ever since. One of his chief duties is keeping the power barons in check and his activities in those quarters, while not always pleasing to the so-called power trust, have always been in the interest of the public.

Senator Moses sent the following letter to Brown after the smoke of battle had cleared:

"Dear Fred —

"I offer you my congratulations upon the distinction which came to you through your election as senator from New Hampshire.

"If I can aid you in any way prior to your acceptance of your duties, I beg of you to make use of me. Sincerely yours,

George H. Moses.

FOUR KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

Kempville, Tenn., Nov. 11 (AP)—Four persons were killed and another was injured so seriously little hope of recovery was held when their airplane crashed in a woods near here about midnight.

Two of the dead were identified as Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Hirt of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. A young woman, presumably their daughter, and a boy about five years old, were the others killed. The injured was a girl of about four years.

The children were believed to be grandchildren of the Hirts.

G. E. Scientist Is Nobel Prize Winner

Stockholm, Nov. 11 (AP)—Dr. Irving Langmuir, associate director of the General Electric Laboratories at Schenectady, N. Y., has been awarded the Nobel Prize for chemistry for "pioneer work in surface chemistry," the Swedish Academy of Science announced today.

His contributions toward the construction a new type of vacuum tube was regarded as the most important step in development of radio technique in the past decade.

Absolute Silence in American Plant for 2 Minutes

At 11 o'clock, all over the city, silence. Silence for two minutes, a tribute for the World War dead.

Even in the hive of unceasing activity, a newspaper plant, silence for perhaps the only time from one year's end to another.

At 11 o'clock, every worker in the Boston Evening American stood in silence. No phone rang. No typewriter clicked. In the composing room, linotype machines stopped their monotonous labor of setting the news into type. In the basement, the roaring presses paused. Two minutes, and again activity resumed to stop not again for another year.

Devotions in Honor of "Little Flower"

There will be devotions held next Thursday at St. Stephen's Church, Hanover st., in honor of the "Little Flower." The services will take place at 12.20 (noon-day mass), 3.30, 5.20 and 7.45. Rev. Francis V. Murphy, D. D., will conduct the services and will preach at the 3.30 service. Rev. Robert M. Mantle of Our Lady of the Presentation Church, Newton, will preach at 5.20 and 7.45.

How many days in the month do you feel your best? You can add to these sunshine days by simply obeying nature's laws.

The first of these laws is regular elimination. Avoid common constipation by eating a delicious cereal.

Tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN furnishes "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to help add regularity. ALL-BRAN also contains twice the iron of an equal weight of beef liver.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. How much more pleasant than pills and drugs—so often habit-forming.

Serve as a cereal or use in cooking. Directions on the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

THE ALGONQUIN CLUB was in festive dress for the luncheon in honor of Grace Nelson yesterday . . . one of the oldest and most exclusive clubs in Boston it lends itself well to hospitality . . .

Mrs. James W. Nelson and her lovely blonde daughter . . who, by the way, was presented two weeks ago at a tea dance at her parents' home in Chestnut Hill . . . received in the salon The luncheon was served in the large assembly room . . . the small tables, about 20, were appropriately decorated with yellow, brown and white chrysanthemums . . .

At each Fair Things' place at table was a beautiful corsage of gardenias presented by the host Mr. Robert W. Maynard.

PRISCILLA HOYT

Several society matrons acted as hostesses, Mrs. Horace Morison smartly attired in gray crepe trimmed with blue fox . . . no doubt selected from her many delightful models in her new and popular Mori sport shop . . Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller, Mrs. DeHart Housten and Mrs. Nelson.

• • •

Dark, Red Velvet Gown

MISS GRACE LOOKED CHARMING in dark red velvet trimmed with Kolinsky . . . her merry mother wore black velvet with silver cloth bodice, noticeably smart.

Sweet and petite, Lansdale Watson appeared in a green dress with dark brown hat on her light curls . . .

As though just off the Bois, Lydia Fuller's bright red velveteen with silver buttons, tiny "bell-boy's" cap perched on her dark hair, was the last word in chic . . .

In orchids on street suit of brown with rose bodice, Frances Seaver made a face at the camera, so she could not be in the picture . . . better luck next time . . .

• • •

Needlework on Display

FINE NEEDLEWORK, ALL FROM THE FAIR FINGERS of prominent Bostonians, both men and women, is on display in Perkins Hall, Women's Educational and Industrial Union . . .

Quaint pictures done in needlepoint, some very old and some copied from old designs, are on view . . . one particularly lovely picture was designed and worked by Mr. E. F. Hipkiss of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts . . .

Mrs. Edward R. Warren, chairman of the committee responsible for the exhibition, is displaying a lovely pillow, an adaption of a Queen Anne card table. Another pillow is a Gobelin pattern work by Eliot Hubbard . . .

A little footstool done by Miss Adelaide Winsor, 12-year-old daughter of Mrs. Kennard Winsor . . . a Chippendale chair in Jacobean crewel embroidery and loaned by Mrs. Arthur Williams, are interesting bits in the unusually fine collection . . .

A lunch cloth is noteworthy, the handiwork of Mrs. Herbert Newhall, as an adaption of the black and white work brought to England from Spain by Catherine of Aragon . . .

• • •

Mrs. Bacon Contributes Pillows

MRS. GASPAR G. BACON, wife of our new lieutenant governor, has contributed several pillows and a velvet coverlet quilted by herself . . .

Mrs. Harold J. Coolidge has loaned a lovely hanging panel executed in pastel silks to give the effect of old brocade . . .

A unique exhibit is a stole done by Mrs. Theodore G. Bremer in gold couching on scarlet silk for St. Mark's School . . .

A modern note is struck by a delightful handbag made by Mrs. Frederick S. Moseley from two gay, rather naive designs by the English artist Hopper. Mrs. Moseley has also loaned a large hanging, the design for which was derived from priceless Jacobean curtains now in Corsham Court, Wiltshire, the home of Field Marshal Lord Methuen.

MRS. H. G. CUTLER

This motif has been adapted by Mrs. J. Templeton Coolidge into a stunning screen. The distinctive frame with its pineapple top was designed by Mr. Coolidge. It is to be used in their home in Portsmouth, N. H., the old Governor Wentworth mansion.

The exhibit, which is open to the public, will continue through Saturday. The hostesses on Saturday will be Mrs. J. Templeton Coolidge Mrs. Samuel Cabot, Mrs. Harold G. Cutler and Mrs. Henry G. Vaughan.

We hear that Abigail Aldrich's grandfather's death will mean a cancellation of her debut party on December 3 . . .

Mrs. Hiram Sibley of Syracuse, whose son "Hiram," Jr., wooed and won our own Anne Robbins of Marlborough st., two years ago, has been visiting her other daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Glenn of Cambridge. Mr. Glenn is pastor in the Episcopal Church in the University City and very popular. Mrs. Sibley has had many small parties given in her honor since she arrived.

Miss Elizabeth Hollis and Miss Jane Bogardus are motoring on for the Harvard-Yale game with Roy Wallace and Walter Fox . . . bevies of debutantes are going on for the game . . .

Engagement Called Off

MRS. GRAFTON SMITH has just returned from a visit with Mary Child in Pittsburgh . . . friends of Miss Child were regretful to learn that she and Bill King of Milton have called off their engagement . . . Mary has so many friends around Boston who were anticipating her being in their midst soon as a bride . . .

Sorry to hear that Anne Mixter, one of the new buds, is laid up for repairs so soon . . . she was taken to Phillips House this week for appendix trouble . . .

Faith F. Jones is having an exhibition of pencil portraits and pastels at the Junior League from Tuesday, the 15th, until Monday, the 28th. Portraits of the following will be on view: Mr. Philip Bourne, Mrs. Philip Bourne, Mrs. John W. Coolidge, Mrs. Chapin Daniels, Robert Webber, Joan Webber, Judge John S. Blair, Dr. Ralph Adams Cram, Prudence Jones and Dr. Clifton H. Bremer.

Miss Jones is planning to be hostess at a tea on the opening day of her exhibition . . . pourers will be Mrs. Philip Bourne, Mrs. John W. Coolidge, Miss Elizabeth Blaney and Miss Ruth Gibson . . .

GRACE NELSON HONORED AT LUNCHEON

ELIZABETH HOLLIS JANE BOGARDUS MARY E. COOPER

MISS ELIZABETH HOLLIS, Miss Jane Bogardus and Miss Mary Este Cooper attended the luncheon for Miss Grace Nelson in smart afternoon ensembles. Miss Hollis wore the fashionable fur-trimmed dark brown. Miss Bogardus' costume was green with brown hat, and Miss Cooper wore a bright blue trimmed with black fur.

GRACE NELSON MRS. JAMES NELSON

MRS. JAMES NELSON and her attractive debutante daughter, Miss Grace, were guests of honor at a luncheon at the Algonquin Club yesterday, given by Mr. Robert W. Maynard. Miss Nelson wore a beautiful crimson velvet gown trimmed with soft, dark fur.

Ellen Bottomley Debut at Tea

From 4 to 7 this afternoon an important presentation tea takes place at the Algonquin Club when Miss Ellen Bottomley, the debutante daughter of Mrs. John T. Bottomley of Beacon st., and the late Dr. Bottomley, makes her formal entry into society ranks.

Miss Bottomley, who was recently elected to provisional membership of the Junior League, is wearing a gown of white tulle caught at the waist with a girdle of diamond beads which also adorn the sleeves, with a spray of talisman roses and gardenias in her corsage.

Her mother, presenting her, wearing a Bordeaux lace gown with long sleeves and a corsage of orchids.

The decorative scheme for the tables is yellow, worked out with chrysanthemums and fern.

Miss Ma[illegible] Vance, a niece of the Normandies of Lincoln who was presented two years ago, is in charge of the pourers, who include Miss Eleanor Livingston Rowe of Brookline and Miss Leslie Blake of Dedham, both post-debutantes. Others are the Misses Lydia Fuller, Anna De Cormis, Lansdale Watson, Priscilla Phelan, Hope Negus, Karolyn Samson, Priscilla G. Hoyt, Madeleine L. Erhart, Miss Rosamond Emerson and Constance Sullivan.

Miss Haskell's three brothers, Mr. John Bottomley, who recently was graduated at Harvard, and Mr. James and George Bottomley, also attend with a number of young gentlemen from the university.

After the formal presentation Mrs. Bottomley is giving a dinner at her home for the pourers and their escorts.

Miss Bottomley has traveled extensively in Europe and attended the Ecole Vinet at Lausanne, Switzerland, and the Convent of the Sacred Heart in Boston.

Mrs. James W. Kenney, her maternal grandmother, who resides during the winter months at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, will give a dance for the debutante at the hotel later in the season.

Chatty Notes of Social Circles

THE SECOND OF THE GUY MAIER Concerts entitled "Musical Journeys" takes place tomorrow morning at Jordan Hall. Mrs. Ronald T. Lyman is chairman of the committee.

MRS. ALDEN A. THORNDIKE has recently returned to her residence in Commonwealth ave., for the winter. Her son, Mr. Thayer Thorndike, returned to his home in California yesterday, having flown from Los Angeles to Boston last week to visit his mother.

MR. AND MRS. HOWARD M. TURNER of Highland st., Cambridge, are giving a dinner tomorrow evening for their daughter, Miss Frances Turner, and will attend the first of the Brattle Hall dances for the young set afterwards. Mrs. Turner is in charge of these dances this year, and has arranged for a series of them which will be given on Dec. 10, and others in February, March and April. Mr. King Upton will be in charge of a group of 20 ushers for tomorrow's event.

AT THE FREE CONCERT AT Boston Public Library Sunday evening, Miss Katherine Cunningham Gray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Cunningham Gray of Beacon st., has been invited to sing. Miss Gray sang at the Hollis Street Theater last week in the role of Lady Ella, in "Patience."

IT CERTAINLY SEEMED very natural to glimpse Pinky Vahey at The Country Club after winning all sorts of golf medals last year. She is now gathering contract awards in a professional way and giving lessons. Miss Vahey looked smart the other evening in a light blue crepe dinner dress with a cape of the same material.

And who was that interesting foreign looking young man who escorted Miss Mary Curley, daughter of our mayor, to the Copley-Plaza the other evening?

Mrs. Norman Smith of Brookline is engaged in a round of gaities in the fascinating process of introducing to society her daughter, Miss Jean Smith. Mrs. Smith is looking entirely chic this season in a smart green sport dress with a brown sport hat and a little brown fur neck piece. She is a striking figure, being slenderly built with aristocratic features, blue eyes, dark wavy hair and a great charm and individuality of manner.

HOW TO STAY MARRIED

Ten Rules by Famous Authority

By Beatrice Fairfax

Rule 6—Be Truthful, One of Essential Props of Happy Life in Wedlock

WHEN THE CASTLE of dreams of a young married couple crumbles into dust, too frequently the reason is a lie, sometimes a silly, foolish and utterly unnecessary lie. For one of the most essential of the foundation stones on which that castle of dreams must be reared if it is to withstand the storms that assail the ha[illegible] married couple is faith in each other's truthf[illegible]

And tha[illegible] can be smashed [illegible] tle in. So I have [illegible] of my rules on "How [illegible] Married [illegible] ful."

Fear is the cause of most [illegible] and in married life [illegible] fear generally is groundless [illegible] that husband and wife both [illegible] each other to start with. [illegible] where love is to give is a privilege. Yet how often the [illegible] is born of fear to confess [illegible] fault, great or small [illegible] failure to [illegible] capacity for [illegible]

ENDURANCE OF LOVE

What [illegible] dure in the [illegible] disappointment [illegible] through with [illegible] blemish, so long as the two who are bound by marriage ties can look into each other's eyes with unbroken faith? What a pity that so many have failed to appreciate the truth of Ruskin's lines:

"There are some errors slight
In the estimate of wisdom;
Some faults small in the sight of love;
But Truth forgives no insult,
and endures no stain."

Evidence of such failure on the part of some husband or wife comes to me in almost every mail. For example:

"How truthful are women supposed to be?" writes a [illegible] husband with the thickest of stub pens and the blackest of black ink. These represent [illegible] frame of mind, I am sure.

"When he married [illegible] he thought his wife was absolutely truthful, but her [illegible] disgust him. If she lied about anything worth while, he could stand it, but she skimps on the table to get herself a permanent or a facial, and she will go to a movie or a matinee, and then deny it. She will buy a new dress which she doesn't need and de[illegible] it was part of [illegible]

"These [illegible]

"When I am at my work," he concludes, "and should be giving it my undivided attention, my mind is in a maze wondering what she's doing. Is she square with me? I have always treated her well; but I can't make her out."

"DISCOURAGED HUSBAND."

Nine times out of ten when a young wife begins to tell lies—silly little lies, such as this gentleman describes—she does it because she's afraid. She's like the youngster with jam on his mouth and fingers who stoutly denies he's been near the jam pot. Why? Perhaps the kid is afraid of a wh[illegible] just as this wife was afraid of being scolded.

IMPORTANT QUESTION

All that brings up a very important question. Had she reason to fear scolding or did she only fancy she had?

For instance, in his letter the husband tells me that "when cheap scraps of meat comes on the table," he says, "Well, here's the good old permanent wave again," meaning to give his wife a nasty dig about cutting down on the household expenses to make herself pretty.

Satire is a dangerous weapon to apply to a woman unless she's gifted with a tongue that can serve better than receive. So from this simple instance you can see how important it is that the husband or wife avoid giving the other reason to fear telling the truth.

And truth is so much easier as well as better.

"You've been out again, playing cards," declared one waiting wife.

"Yes, what of it?" answered the husband, standing on his constitutional rights.

The latter was settled. The lady neither [illegible] nor took to [illegible] She [illegible] husband may be coaxed but driven, that the man who can [illegible] "Yes, what of it" is worthy [illegible] while the [illegible] himself in a labyrinth of [illegible] over some trifle cannot be relied upon.

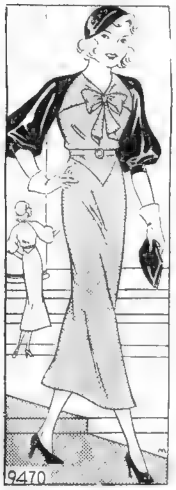
Daily Pattern of The Boston American

By MARIAN MARTIN



Youthful Chic

PATTERN 9470

DIFFERENT—dashing—just the thing for the up-to-the-minute Miss. With contrast supplied by voluminous puffed sleeves, the new high neck [illegible] by yoke and bow treatment, and a slender hip effect by simple seaming—the story is complete in one intriguing frock! Dull and shiny sides of crepe-back satin would be ideal, too.

Pattern 9470 may be ordered only in sizes 12 to 20. Size 16 requires 2⅝ yards 39 inch fabric and 1¼ yards contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with this pattern.

To get a pattern of this model, send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred). Please write very plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE of each pattern ordered.

Address all orders to the Boston Evening American Pattern Dept., 232 West 18th st., New York City.

Bananas Used for Celiac Disease in Infants

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

UNTIL RECENTLY little was known concerning the unusual ailment called "celiac disease." It was first reported in 1888, but it was not until the early part of this century that its true nature was understood. There yet remains a great deal to be learned about this strange disease. I am glad the research continues because the trouble threatens the health and lives of many children.

Dr. Copeland

Celiac disease usually afflicts children who live under unhealthful and unsanitary conditions, but it occurs, too, among the rich as well as the poor. It is most common in infants between the ages of 9 and 18 months. Bottle-fed babies are more liable to the disease than breast fed infants.

Celiac disease is believed to be caused by an inability of the body to utilize fats, starches, and certain sugars. A large proportion of the food eaten is of no benefit.

Within recent years the banana has been successfully used in the feeding of infants and young children suffering from celiac disease. When given to infants, the strained ripe pulp of the fruit is used with a portion of milk. The banana diet has been beneficial in cases where all other efforts have failed.

Health Queries

Q.—Could anything be done to prevent large hips?

A.—Walking and other exercises would prove helpful. Reducing in general would reduce the hips. For full particulars restate your question and send a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Announcement of the Secret Marriage

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My brother was married secretly three years ago. His wife was unable to announce the wedding as married women are not employed by her firm and she had the entire support of her mother. She now has a son eighteen months old and she has just recently given up her position. Only a very few of her friends know of her marriage and her baby. She is making her home with her mother-in-law and sister-in-law. How is the best way to announce this situation? F.

Since she is making her home with you and her mother-in-law it would be appropriate, and most gracious and generous, for you to give an announcement party for her and your brother.

Gift to a Club

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. I have been president of a woman's club for the past three years and in about a month will be retiring from office. Would a rosewood gavel be an appropriate gift to the club? It has been without one since organizing.

2. What shall I say upon retiring and presenting the gift to the club and new president? The meeting will also be the tenth anniversary of the club. S.

1. The rosewood gavel would be the perfect gift for you to give to the club. I am sure that the members will be delighted that you thought of this gift.

2. Something like this might be appropriate to say: "I want so much to tell you today, at this last meeting of the club over which I have had the high privilege of being president for this year, what special pleasure I have had, what special happiness I have had in the office of your president. In every minute of this time I have felt the perfect co-operation and friendship of every member of our club. For this I thank you with all my heart."

Gift to Minister

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Could you please tell me what to give as a remembrance from my husband, children and myself as a wedding present to a minister who is only a business associate of my husband. O.

A fine book beautifully bound would be an excellent and appropriate present. Or a handsome leather portfolio for the desk or library table. Or a luncheon set. Or a silver or crystal vase. Or a photograph frame. Or a good-looking and useful accessory for the desk.

Signatures

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Please tell me the correct form for signing a formal name? For instance, should a young married girl sign her name on a shower card "Una Smith Travis," Smith being her maiden name, or is it Mrs. Frederick B. Smith? S.

When the formal name is used for instance, on a visiting card or on a formal invitation the correct form is Mrs. Frederick Bates Travis. Una Smith Travis is the informal form, as the direct signature of a letter.

Thinning Eyebrows Carries Makeup to Extreme

THERE IS such a thing as over-stressing appearance—thinning eye-brows a bit too much, carrying makeup beyond the limit of enhancement, wearing elegant garments on the not-elegant occasion. After all it is the natural-looking girl who gains attention. She may ply the caurimine and the paint, but she knows when she's carrying enough.

Use an Ice Cake

GIVE ENLARGED pores the refrigerating treatment, rubbing the skin night and morning with an ice cube. After the freezing lave with witch hazel. Cut down on heavy meats, rich gravies and pastries, diet having much to do with the texture of the skin, as well as its coloring.

Family Inheritance

PARENTHESIS lines extending from nostrils to lip ends are a family inheritance due to the formation of the upper jaw, or they are dug in by pulling down the delicate muscles of the mouth. Treat them to a gentle patting with a heavy cream. Place thumb at the lower end of the line, first finger at the upper; hold finger stationary, come creeping up with the thumb picking quick little nips in the flesh. Iron with ice twice a day.

Try and Cat-Nap

WOMEN WHO TIRE easily should snatch a cat-nap every day if only for 15 minutes. Fatigue bugs are devastating to appearance, rob the eyes of glowing lights, dig creases in the complexion. Highly energized females who work diligently, then go limp, need more sleep than those of a phlegmatic type. Yet they're the ones who prowl around until all hours.

For Dry Hair

WHEN THE HAIR is dry, become a hot oil addict. Use it the night before each shampoo. And that's not enough either. After the scrubbing and drying, rub a small quantity of brilliantine into the scalp. Make this a beauty rule.

The Mirande gown, at left, is done in red flamisole, and avoids every bit of draping possible. The Chanel dress, at right, is of soft white satin with a tiny design in its weave.

The Marry-Go-Round

As Husbands Go

MARRIAGE is something about which most men are fairly cert[illegible] [illegible] dubious at 30, cynical at 40 and naively optimistic at 50.

Some women are lucky enough to get a good husband or a good photograph at the first snap; others have to try three or four "retakes" before they can get anything satisfactory, and lots never have any success at all.

So uncanny are a woman's intuitions that her husband can't even announce that he is going on a reducing diet without being suddenly aware that she is wondering if his new stenographer "is one of those blondes."

"Nudism" will never be much of a hit with attractive women. They remember that Adam never took any romantic interest in Eve until she gave up self-expression and dolled herself up in a few clothes.

Divorce used to be a scandal and a tragedy, but now it's becoming just a little social affair, as refined as flour, as merry as a recess bell and as easy as having a tooth out with novocaine.

Don't imagine that your husband's faults are "different" or his sins "original." They're probably the same old ones that Eve had to put up with in Adam.

"Getting rid of a woman involves a certain amount of annoyance," admits a masculine writer. Ah, yes, signor—and we might add ingenuity, nerve, tact, heart balm, alimony and sometimes skillful bullet-dodging.

Oranges Used in Pleasing Desserts

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

No need of my using up precious lines preaching about the virtues of citrus fruits—oranges, lemons and grapefruit. Instead let's use the space for specially good recipes for orange cake and some orange nut biscuits that are guaranteed to please.

Orange Nut Biscuits

(Makes 18 medium sized biscuits)
2 cups sifted flour.
4 tsps. baking powder.
1 tsp. salt.
¼ cup sugar.
⅓ cup finely chopped nuts.
1 egg.
Orange juice.
1 tbsp. orange marmalade.
¼ cup shortening.

Sift dry ingredients together. Cut in shortening. Add nuts. Beat egg, pour into measuring cup, add enough orange juice to make 2/3 cup. Combine with dry ingredients and add marmalade. Knead a few seconds on slightly floured board. Cut and bake in hot oven (425° F.) for 10 to 15 minutes.

Note—A little more orange juice will be needed with some flours to make the dough soft.

Orange Fairy Sponge Cake

(Syrup method—makes 1 cake)

1⅓ cups sugar.	6 eggs.
2 tbsps. corn syrup.	1 tsp grated orange rind.
6 tbsps orange juice.	1 cup flour.

Boil first three ingredients to short thread (240 to 242 degrees F.). Beat egg whites till stiff but not dry. Continue beating while pouring hot syrup over the whites. Fold in well-beaten yolks, grated rind and lastly the flour. Bake in an ungreased tube pan 45 minutes to 1 hour in a slow oven (300 to 325 degrees F.). Frost with butter icing. Store in air-tight cake tin.

Orange Layer Cake

(Makes one two-layer cake)
4 tbsps. shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
2 tsps. baking powder
⅛ tsp. salt
½ cup orange juice
1½ cups flour

Cream fat and sugar. Add beaten egg yolks. Mix well. Sift dry ingredients together. Add alternately with orange juice. Fold in stiffly-beaten egg whites. Bake in 2 layers in a moderate oven 375 deg. F. for 15 to 20 minutes. Put layers together with Orange Filling and frost with Orange Frosting or Butter Icing. Decorate with orange sections if desired.

Orange Filling

1 egg
8 tbsps sugar
2½ tbsps. cornstarch
⅓ cup orange juice
½ tsp. grated orange rind
1 tbsp. butter
⅓ cup water

Beat egg, add sugar and cornstarch. Mix well. Add water, juice and rind. Cook in double boiler 15 minutes, stirring frequently. Add butter. Cool before spreading on cake.

Daily True Story

The Stick-up Guy

THE LAST BIT OF BEER was gone, so Joe put down his mug and reached toward his vest pocket. Across the table, Nick's eyes sparkled with anticipation.

"Like I told you, Joe," he said, "there was nothing to it, was there?"

"To you, maybe not," replied Joe, as he rapidly extracted a bundle of bills, "but to me, well, I'm just a plain stickup guy. I ain't used to this game."

He shuffled through the money, dividing it deftly. "Here's your five hundred. O. K.?"

Nick counted quickly. "O. K.," he agreed and pocketed them. "What's the stickup compared to this? You work all night, maybe you get five dollars. You work with me three days and you get five hundred dollars. Not bad, fella, not bad."

Joe beckoned to Gino, who came hurrying with more beer. "Yeah," he rejoined, "but you work twice as hard, and besides I ain't no actor."

"Didn't you work our sucker in?"

JOE NODDED

Joe nodded. "He was just askin' to be worked in, I couldn't help it."

"Wasn't he though? You should have seen his face when I told him the violin was worth six grand. And then, when I said I'd buy it for that he nearly went crazy."

Joe's glance wandered over the lean, dark elegance of Nick. "No wonder he fell. You sure look like dough in that front."

"You didn't put up such a bad front yourself, Joe; you looked just like a bum."

Here was praise from a master; Joe smiled self-consciously. "The old gink said he'd let me have $10 on the fiddle because I looked so hard up."

"Oh—you done all right, but you ought to see me work," said Nick, remembering that this Joe was just a stickup guy whom he had befriended and raised to a higher racket.

"I breezed in there and told him I was lookin' for an antique glass. Then I says, 'My God, man, that violin!' and I made believe like I'd gone crazy. He says, 'What about it?' and I feeds him the hooey about it being a Stradivarius and I'd give him six grand. He—"

"You," began Joe, but Nick's stream of self-praise was not to be interrupted.

"He's all excited. He says the violin was only pawned that morning, and it ain't his, but he'll guarantee to get it for me. I left him fixed. All you had to do was look dumb and take his 500."

Joe had a chance to finish his question. "You're sure we're safe now?"

"Absolutely. Why, me and Goldtooth Harry used it for four years, out on the coast. It's legal. For instance: Here's you, a guy that needs money. You pawn your old violin. Nothing wrong there. Then I happen to see it; I think it's a Stradivarius so I offer the pawnbroker six grand. All right. You sell it to him when he offers to buy it. Then he goes to sell it to me and he can't find me. If he does, I tell him I was mistaken about the violin. That ain't no crime."

Joe drank in silence for a few minutes, then he spoke: he was a man of strong doubts. "Well, maybe, but just the same I don't like it; it's too tricky. Like I said before, I'm just a plain stickup guy."

Nick surveyed him kindly. "Forget it. Leave that beer alone and try some rye, you're not broke now."

The rye came. Nick filled a glass, tilted his head, then stopped in amazement. Joe was staring at the door, his glass halfway to the table, while the mouthful he had just taken dribbled over his chin and down the front of his chair. Smiling benevolently, as he strayed toward them through the clouds of smoke, was the old pawnbroker, Pop Rooney, the man they had "worked in."

Hand extended to Nick, he stopped at their table and beamed down. "Well," he boomed jovially, "I didn't think I'd see you here, Mr.—er—Mr.—"

"Jones," blurted Nick.

"Yuh, Jones," continued Pop, "but anyway I'm glad I did. There's something I want to say, if your friend doesn't—say, ain't you the little feller I bought that fiddle from?"

"I got to be goin'," croaked Joe weakly.

"Don't go; stay and have a drink with me, I'm celebrating," said Pop, his voice cheerful.

He eased himself into a chair between them. "You know, Mr. Jones, that violin wasn't a genuine Stradivarius after all. It was another kind, Amati, I think the man said."

Pop became apologetic. "I'm sorry I couldn't save it for you, but business is business, and he gave me twenty-five hundred for it."

NICK'S EYES FLARED

Nick's eyes flared and from his mouth came a stifled snort. "What?"

"Yuh, twenty five hundred. That's why I'm celebratin'. Wait a minute and I'll get some drinks." He left for the bar.

Nick shot out his hand and gathered in the lapels of Joe's coat. "Where did you get that violin?"

"Don't get mad, Nick. There's—"

Nick shook him violently. "Where did you get it?"

"I was thirsty, so I spent the money you gave me, on beer. Then I didn't have any money so I—I—"

"Go on!"

"I stuck up the violin player, what plays in the big band at the opera house. What else could I do? I told you I was only a stick-up guy."

Sleeves Continue as Important in Evening

By PARIS BUREAU

PARIS, Nov. 11—Sleeves remain as part of the most formal evening mode, according to the clothes that Paris is turning out right now. Evening gowns done for the most elaborate continental dinners and evening receptions are often turned out with either drop shoulders which give the effect of sleeves, or else sleeves which frankly cover more than half of the upper arm.

Two formal evening gowns from the new Paris collections are sketched here to illustrate the present use of sleeves in the evening mode. One, from Mirande, has sleeves which come from a widened shoulder line, the other, done by Chanel, has half sleeves which are important items in the makeup of the dress.

Mirande's gown is done in red flamisole—heavy, silky crepe which has a supple quality in spite of its thick weave. She uses it in a floor-length gown which avoids every bit of draping possible, with the exception of a few close gathers to hold the fabric flat over the center-front of the waistline. Note how ingeniously these gathers mark the natural waistline, in spite of the raised line effected by the wide bolero. A bow of the fabric extends across the back and is visible at the sides.

The Chanel dress, of a soft white satin with a tiny, almost invisible design in its weaves, makes much use of gathers at the top of the sleeve and also around the waistline and hips. Note that in spite of the sleeves, the neckline is formally low and wide and the skirt floor-length.

Begin It Today: 'THREE WOMEN,' Faith Baldwin's New Serial---A NOVEL OF HUMAN LIVES

Louisa Eagerly Waits Return of Her Baby

The Story So Far

Mrs. Louisa Lennox Sheldon, dignified young society matron, nervously awaits the return of her husband, George, to their fulsomely furnished Washington square home in New York City of the middle eighties. She is even more upset because their infant son, Lennox, who was out for an airing with his nurse, has not been brought back. She wants to play with the baby before her husband returns, but the genial George comes in first, greets her cheerfully, and observes pointedly but gently: "You don't overwhelm a man with welcome, Louisa." Her cool attitude persists as he chats of the office, luncheon at the Astor and a visit to his club.

Now Continue

He had been much taken with the youngest girl, a volatile, dark thing, a coquette.

"And the baby?" he asked, yawning.

"He has not come in as yet. I am beginning to grow alarmed."

"Alarmed?" he interrupted. "It's a superb day. No doubt Nanna planned to keep him out later than usual. You fret too much over the boy, Louie. If you keep on you'll make a milksop of him. Once weaned, you know, he's on the road to manhood."

Thinking back upon her son's early months, her hard, controlled face softened. There was a faint gleam of beauty about her at that moment. Sheldon, looking at her, dimly realized that it was a beauty he had never evoked. He wondered for the thousandth time why he had married the eldest of old Lennox's daughters. Thirty, Louisa had been at the time they had married. An age, for an unwedded woman! To be sure, the match as such had been good; family and money on both sides. He'd met the Lennoxes that summer in Massachusetts, and had been much taken with the youngest girl—a volatile, dark thing, a coquette. Gad, she'd been sweet, the little Emmeline! But that had come to nothing.

LOUISA STEPPED IN

There had been a point where Louisa had stepped in when emotionally worn by the chase Emmeline had set him, he had turned gratefully to the cool remoteness of the older woman. Yet Emmeline had liked him, he had been certain of that. The other man had grown [illegible] she could not make up her mind. Sheldon had been thankful for Louisa's intervention. She hadn't, of course, realized how clearly she had revealed the instability, the almost perilous coquetry of her little sister. She had sympathized with him, merely, had let a word fall now and then illuminating Emmeline for him, her unsuitability as the wife of a solid citizen.

Well, she'd married the other man had Emmeline. And shortly after, Sheldon had married Louisa. Now, Emmeline was dead in childbirth, her laughing eyes closed, her white hands mouldering to dust.

Louisa managed his household perfectly, she gave him duty, she had borne him a son.

The street door closed again. Nanna panted up the stairs, her arms laden. They could hear her make believe scolding.

"Such a heavy boy . . . such an armful. Poor old Nanna! Well, never mind, it won't be long before he trots up on his own two legs, bless his little heart."

Louisa sat still. George went to the door, flung it wide.

BABY APPEARS

"Bring Lennox in here, Nanna."

Nanna, black-haired, rosy, aproned and starched, appeared on the sill. In her arms Lennox Sheldon brooded sleepily. Then his blue eyes opened and danced as he saw his father. He put out fat arms, essayed a word.

Nanna set him down upon white booted and tasseled feet. He staggered in through the doorway, hampered by his petticoats. Nanna had released him from the ornate bonnet and coat he so hated. Now he stood there in a blue-sashed dress, his dark hair roached, one curl running from brow to crown, a little tunnel of dusky silk.

Lennox stumbled. His mother's breath caught inaudibly as Sheldon stooped, swung the baby into his arms, tossed him high. Nanna beamed from the hall.

Mrs. Sheldon asked severely, "Where were you? It is long past his hour."

"If you please, Mrs. Sheldon, m'am, we went for a ride on the bus. The baby was so eager-like—when he saw the horses he—"

"That will do. You knew that I would not permit such an innovation. Do not let it happen again, Nanna."

She dismissed the nurse with a gesture. Bus! Her child crowded in with unclean people, people with heaven knew what diseases. Her heart was tight with anger.

NANNA WAS SUBDUED

Lennox smiled at her, frowned at her, burrowed his curly head in his father's neck. George Sheldon was not without his mean little triumph in that moment.

"Put him down," Louisa ordered sharply. "You will only upset him, tossing him about in that manner."

Her eyes added, will you never go?

After a minute she said, casually, "Some letters came for you this morning. I had Rogers put them in the library, on your desk."

Sheldon recognized and accepted his dismissal. He set the child on his wife's knees and went from the room.

Louisa's arms closed about him, she rocked him gently. She murmured, "Hush—hush."

Presently he was distracted by a gleam of gold at her bodice. He investigated, tugged, was rewarded by a watch, listened, rapt, to the whispered tick and smiled happily again.

Louisa's lips touched his brow, his neck, softly, but with, it seemed, deliberate effort at restraint.

In her controlled caresses there was something terrible, ominous, a portent, as if she desired to crush the pliant body to her, devour the child whole. About the two of them, the quiet pair which might have sat as a picture of maternal love and innocent infancy, a dark [illegible], the air was as if shadowed by dark invisible wings.

BELONGS TO HER

She asked him, in her heart, "Why do you love him so much? You are my creation; you belong to me, to me."

Her glance traveled from his dark crested head, now lying drowsily against her breast, from the pink thumb stuck in the corner of a pucker mouth, around the hushed room. Upon the carpet George's glove lay where he had dropped it. Like a mute challenge. Her eyes rested a moment upon the unlightened inevitability and solemnity of the double bed. Turning back to the child, her gaze held a recognition of recompense. She rocked him, singing in a high voice, true and unmusical. The shadows deepened. Nanna crept to the door, listened and moved away again.

Louisa Sheldon was alone with her god.

'A MAN MUST FIGHT'

By Gene Tunney

SYNOPSIS

Tunney has thus far traced the early course of his fistic career, from athletic boyhood in New York's Greenwich Village, through fight clubs, to his activities with the U. S. Marines, his company then being encamped at Romorantin, France, where he won both the middleweight and heavyweight championships. Tired of guarding empty balloon sheds, Tunney is delighted when given time off to represent his company in the ring. Gene stopped most of the pugs in his neck of the A. E. F. woods thereby earning a trip to Paris where he gave joy to the doughboys by kayoing K. O. Marchand, French fighter, in the second round.

By GENE TUNNEY

I was quite the hero of Paris in military circles the following day. Unfortunately, due to my travel orders, I was not to enjoy much of this glory. I had to leave for camp that evening.

Back at guard duty several days later I received a second telegram from Jake Carey asking me to come to Paris to box another Frenchman on January 31, 1919.

Again the company commander gave his consent and the expected scramble for an appointment as second followed. This time a medico asked Capt. Chambers, our doctor, to intercede for him. This he did by going directly to the company commander. I was advised that orders had been written for the medico and another. I could choose the other.

This time I chose a good-natured jolly Irishman, Jack O'Hara, from Montclair, N. J., who worked in the galley. I knew I must somehow stay in with the kitchen help!

When I got to Salle Wagram, where the match was to be held, I discovered there was no Frenchman to box and that an M. P. from Le Mans had agreed to take me on. I asked his name and was told it was Sergt. Bob Martin. I recognized the name immediately, as almost every week in the Stars and Stripes there was an account of Martin knocking out some Frenchman or doughboy at these Paris shows. He was considered by many of the critics and doughboys as the most dangerous man in the A. E. F.

FALLS INTO TRAP

When we got under way and I saw how awkward and apparently inexperienced Martin was, I thought what an awful joke this match was going to be. I was hitting him at will and could easily avoid his counter attempts and leads. To me it was inconceivable that a fighter who knew so little and was apparently so poor could be considered by anyone as being a promising boy. It got so easy that in the beginning of the second round I started clowning, and when he missed I laughed with the crowd at his ludicrous attempts. I had relaxed. He started an awkward left from which I pulled back with a smile on my face, not taking into account the terrific straight right that was following it until it hit me on the jaw.

The blow had so much force that it picked me up and precipitated me through the air to the other side of the ring. I bounced against the ropes and as I re-bounded he had a long left swing started which I ducked. This was followed by another right hay-maker that I [illegible] on top of the head. This one felt as though a crossbeam over the ring had snapped and fallen on me. I realized there was nothing left to do but fight and fight hard.

The time for smiling was gone. With every ounce of energy that was in my make-up I hurled myself at this big guy and hit him from all angles. He finally put his head between his knees to keep out of harm's way. This method of defense he employed for the next two rounds; whenever he peeked out I whaled him.

When he stepped on the scales that night, Martin weighed 193 pounds, I weighed 168.

Bob, in congratulating me after I was presented with the prize, said, "You hit me the hardest punches tonight that I have ever been hit."

I could have told him the same thing. As a matter of fact no one punch ever hurt me as much before or since, as the belt he hit me in the second round.

TOO LATE FOR TRIP

The next day I made two calls, one to meet Jimmy Bronson to request that he include me on the proposed trip he was organizing of a boxing team to go to Italy. Jimmy was athletic director of the Y. M. C. A. in charge of boxing and was the first man to start the mixed matches between the doughboys and French professionals in Paris. These later spread to other military centers.

Jimmy was most gracious but regretted that the team was already made up. He said had he known of me he would have given me a place on the team; also that if any of those who had been chosen failed to come, he would arrange for orders from general headquarters and wire me at Romorantin.

The other visit was to the Knights of Columbus headquarters to get some altar linen for the [illegible] camp. [illegible] we have [illegible] for that Gene. [illegible] McCabe [illegible] up?" As we came [illegible], he [illegible] of stairs I became acquainted for the first time with Bill McCabe. We remained friends until he died. He was [illegible] with me after I won the world's heavyweight championship. Bill was a great person.

By this time my company commander had changed his opinion about the effectiveness of my defense and [illegible]. He bet [illegible] other [illegible] in the camp who had a tournament hope [illegible] his protege in the A. E. F. tournament.

I at [illegible] did not want to go into this tournament because I realized there were [illegible] 500,000 American [illegible] France, [illegible] of whom had pugilistic aspirations and among whom were many professionals.

WINS EASY MATCHES

Moreover, I had grown a bit; my weight was about 168 pounds, which would compel me to enter as a light heavyweight (175 pounds). I believed that the seven or eight pounds I would be giving away to the average soldier boxer was [illegible], but I thought it would be too much of a handicap against an experienced professional.

I won with comparative ease the first [illegible] six matches against inexperienced [illegible] ambitious soldier boys. I remember feeling sorry for these fellows when I was in the ring with them for I realized that most of them were in the tournament for the sole reason of a [illegible] to get out of duty.

It was not until I got to Tours and met the winners of the other sectors of the S. O. S. that I met any stiff competition. I won the first two matches by knockouts and in the third and final contest met a huge American [illegible] named Lewis from St. Nazaire.

These preliminary matches in the tournament were fought with 10-ounce gloves. It was not until we got to the finals in Paris that the five-ounce gloves were used.

In this Lewis match I happened to catch him with a hard [illegible] right on the point of the jaw. Despite the 10-ounce gloves he fell to the canvas, kicking and groaning.

WITH N. E. FIGHTER

I have never seen a man knocked out act in such a way. The impact of the fist against his chin broke the knuckle of my middle finger. He was counted out. When I took my gloves off, my hand was swollen to twice normal size. The swelling took place almost instantaneously.

The knuckle that I broke in this fight in the early spring of 19[illegible] bothered [illegible] during the [illegible] part of [illegible] career, as a [illegible] until the third Greb [illegible] December, 1923.

There [illegible] no chance of postponing [illegible] match. I was ordered [illegible] St. Nazaire [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] company of [illegible] won [illegible] S. O. S. [illegible] before service had a good [illegible] bantamweight around New England under the name of Kid Thomas. He was a [illegible] fighter and [illegible]. We had been [illegible] other S. O. S. [illegible] M. P. [illegible] then [illegible] the w[illegible]

W[illegible] captain and O'[illegible] the rail[illegible] was [illegible] to take [illegible] train to St. [illegible] ard and I would [illegible] all night in a th[illegible]. We had no assurance of a seat. This trip in the disorganized days of the [illegible] we [illegible] mitted that they had arranged for a motor car to drive them down the next day, where we were to [illegible] them when we arrived.

In the next chapter, Tunney chronicles his winning of the A. E. F. light heavyweight title, detailing the technique of defeating so-called "southpaws" in describing his victory over K. O. Sullivan—Gene's first dreams of beating Dempsey.

WILD CARGO ◆ New Jungle Thriller by Author of 'Bring Em Back Alive'

Half the snake's body was inside the room when the woman made her first effort to scream. As often happens when people are suddenly confronted by a reptile or an animal that belongs in the killer group, the woman's vocal cords failed her. Petrified with fear, it was as if she had no voice at all.

It was not until the snake started moving up one of the crib's supports that the woman found her voice. She let out a bloodcurdling shriek and, as she did, the constrictor turned and eyed her coldly. Again the woman screamed.

The caboon (native gardener), who had been out in front of the house trimming the shrubbery, came running into the room, parang in hand. The Malay was followed by two of the Chinese house boys.

BEHEADS SNAKE

The gardener arrived as the python, turning his head away from the woman, again centered his attention on the crib. By now the great snake's head was almost on the level with the top of the crib. In a fraction of a second he would be within striking distance. Putting everything he had behind the blow, the caboon swung his parang and dealt the constrictor a terrible blow behind the head.

By this time the Chinese boys were yanking away at the snake in an effort to drag it out of the room. The python thrashed around furiously, knocking the celestials in all directions. Meanwhile the caboon, having landed one deadly blow that did plenty of damage, kept hacking away until he severed the snake's head. All Malays are great knife-wielders, but your average caboon can outdo the rest of his race when it comes to handling a parang.

This formidable native knife is his principal means of defense as well as his main gardening equipment. He is never without it and in a fight wields it with a skill that is beautiful to behold.

This is one case where cold steel proved itself superior to coiled lightning.

A PERFECT SPECIMEN

The python, as you have guessed by now, has always fascinated me. A great deal is now known about the species but it is surprising how little information there was, until recent years, on the subject of what happens after one of these great snakes devours a sizable animal and the process of digestion begins.

For years friends in zoos and museums had been asking me to check up on a python after it had made a major kill and give them the facts about the snake's eventual elimination thereof.

It was not until 1926—at least ten years after I had made my first promise to these friends—that I was able to secure the information they wanted.

I was over on one of the small Dutch islands south of Singapore. These islands are full of snakes, especially pythons. It is a veritable paradise for the collector of these constrictors.

I had some orders for pythons from zoos and Ali and I set forth to fill them.

One of the snakes we landed was not only a perfect zoo specimen but also ideal for the purpose of the experiment I had promised to conduct. It had just eaten and from the shape of its great bulge I judged that its meal had consisted of one of the big wild boars of the island. It had swallowed its prey so recently that its jaw was still hanging open, the hinges not having yet reset.

We rolled our sluggish catch into a rattan fiber net and hired four native boys to shoulder it on carrying poles and take it to our boat. This was a 23-foot snake whose normal weight was 275 to 300 pounds. With the [illegible] boar inside of him he took plenty of carrying.

In addition to this boar-filled specimen, we landed three others, smaller but worthwhile representatives of their interesting species.

PUT SNAKE IN VAT

When we got back to Singapore I installed my bloated specimen in a big vat that had once been used by some Chinese residents for keeping live fish. I inherited this (it measured nine feet by 12) when I took over the grounds where I built my compound.

I put straw in the bottom of the vat and installed my python in it, covering the top with heavy wire netting.

Each day the snake's bulge grew smaller and on the ninth day was normal. I found hair, bits of bone, teeth and later an odorless substance very much like wet talcum powder. This substance, by the way, has medicinal properties. There as a chemical firm in Chicago that buys it from zoos and other sources.

All of which leads up to the thought that the truth about the python is strange enough. There is no need for stories such as heard on my last trip to the Far East. It had to do with a huge python that was said to have swallowed a water buffalo! The reptile got the whole body down (so the story went) and only the head stuck out because the great spread of horns blocked the way. But the python, just to show it could not be stumped, was calmly waiting for the head to rot off. When I tell you that even a medium-sized water buffalo bulks larger than the average bull or horse you will see how ridiculous this yarn is.

The Tragedy of Defeat

The disquieting and disheartening phenomenon of a nati[illegible] election has passed from us, like a subsiding fever, and we [illegible] safe from a further infection for nearly four years. The contest has been, all things considered, and with a few grotesque exceptions, remarkably free from the scurrilities and odious personalities of some other campaigns.

In the old days there were the election processions with banners, torches and transparencies, campaign songs more stirring than the eminently unimmortal "Row, Row, Row with Roosevelt, (on the Good Ship U. S. A.)," and even the possibility of a few broken skulls with rival parades.

Room to Improve

A[illegible] way tedious and [illegible] certainly is. When one [illegible] the concentrated vigor and energy which was mobilized for use in electing a new President, all the money raised in a hard time, all the speeches spouted, the great halls filled and emptied, all the letters to district managers and their hot telegrams back, all the state prophecies and positive denials, all the pure promises and prompt betrayals—one can have no doubt that we are that nation which is most obsessed with the machinery of politics, and least occupied with the promulgation or observance of policy. The real political issues at stake were hardly mentioned in the campaign by those two men who might have been elected.

Prohibition was held at arm length, unemployment was laid at one door by the Democrats and kicked back by the Republicans, the tariff was included in those portions of the speech world which most people doze through or skip over in reading. Disarmament, participation in the League of Nations, [illegible] reform, were not even convenient hitching-posts. They didn't have to be. They weren't needed. The country was tired of one gang and with a good deal more resentment than enthusiasm, voted the one gang out and the other in. But one can hardly assume the next President of the United States has the undivided approbation of his electorate. Half of his "friends and fellow citizens" excused themselves for supporting him, and his hopeful enthusiasts were more hopeful than enthusiastic.

The party system has been called the greatest democratic plan that has ever succeeded so continuously. Maybe, given our peculiar qualities, it is the only system that could be made to work on this continent. A civil service for presidential possibilities, the elimination of party machinery, a direct unorganized popular vote would all be similarly unfeasibe. But the imperfections of our present system have one signal chance for reform. Elected November 8, the next President does not take office till March 4.

In 1916 Wilson announced he would resign at once, with his Vice President and Secretary of State, if Hughes were elected, after appointing Hughes to succeed Lansing, whereby he could at once assume the presidency. In the same way, why does not Hoover resign and facilitate the smooth functioning of the national government nearly four months sooner in these times of economic crisis? The element of personal bitterness and individual rancor must play a large part in the mass inertia over which any atempt at reform must triumph.

CONRY SEES BIG FIGHT ON CRIME

The American people now face their greatest battle, that against crime, Traffic Commr. Joseph A. Conry told members of the Alexander Graham Bell post, American Legion, at their annual banquet at Hotel Bradford.

Conry pointed out to the members that they and their associates had won the greatest war in history and that on Tuesday the American people struck [illegible] greatest blow in the war against depression.

He said one of the [illegible] tributors to crime [illegible] the infamous prohibition [illegible] [illegible] placed in the Constitution by a band of fanatics who thought to improve the nation's morals by legislation.

He also declared the best cure for depression was the spending and circulation of money. He scored those who hoarded or sought to make others stop spending.

He prophesied that money spent at this time would return a thousandfold in the next 10 years.

TODAY'S NEWS OF LEADERS

TODAY'S gains for pivotal leaders represented the real post-election rise, since yesterday's advance only about erased the setbacks recorded in the previous session. The most cheering factor today was the increase in volume.

Steel Tonnage Rise Seasonal

Slight rise in October orders of the United States Steel Corp. caused mild surprise in some quarters despite its seasonal character. The record for the last half decade shows that tonnage increased during the month in eight of the ten years. Nevertheless, the Street found immense gratification in the fact that the corporation was able to increase its forward bookings for the third consecutive month particularly in the face of pre-election hesitancy on the part of big consumptive enterprises.

It is barely possible that, so far as the October showing is concerned, unannounced orders for rails or construction materials made possible by R. F. C. loans figured largely in raising the aggregate above the total at the end of September.

Owens Bottle Royalty Income

Speculative revival in the so-called brewery stocks on the growing hope of legalization of beer under the new administration has centered to a large extent on Owens Bottle. This company has been deriving a substantial portion of its income from royalties on certain types of its bottle manufacturing machines. The return on these is consolidated with manufacturing profit in its earnings statements so that it is difficult to determine the proportion contributed from either source. According to well-informed interests, leases from which the royalties accrue are mostly short term and are said to be approaching termination. Some reports suggest that the royalties account for at least half the total combined annual earnings.

FINANCE WORLD IS MORE CHEERFUL; FOLKS FISHING

By B. C. FORBES

New York, Nov. 11—The financial world was in more cheerful mood. Several "doubtful" dividends were declared—very encouraging. An increase in unfilled steel orders was announced.

Republican financiers accept the election result entirely philosophically, I find after spending hours chatting with them. They reveal no churlish spirit. They avow that they are just as willing as they ever were to act constructively. They don't expect Governor Roosevelt, when he becomes President to take disturbing action.

However, they await Cabinet selections with intense interest. They confided that should "radicals" be chosen, they will not view the national outlook with equanimity. The financial world would like to see Owen D. Young in the new Administration but it is not believed he would accept public office. Bernard M. Baruch is expected to be [illegible] Cabinet portfolio, he has [illegible] extremely active all along on [illegible] Roosevelt's behalf. Wall Street would like to see him in the Cabinet for the reason that he understands financial problems.

WAR DEBT QUESTION

Our international bankers admit that they are extremely anxious to have the whole question of war debts settled. They claim that it is futile to expect European nations to continue to pay in full what they owe us seeing that they have agreed — at least tentatively — to forego the German reparation payments stipulated in the Young Plan.

The argument is that, should we persist in demanding payment our debtors would declare inability to pay. One of America's foremost international bankers put it this way to me:

"If we force Britain and France to default, every nation owing us money would promptly follow suit. If the strongest nations of Europe set an example in nonpayment, every Latin-American and other country in which American capital has been extensively invested would immediately feel justified in defaulting right and left. This would cause chaos. Remember we are a creditor nation. We should talk over war debt and make the best settlement practicable. If you cannot get a whole loaf, a half-loaf is better than no bread."

Expect to hear and read a [illegible] war debts in coming week.

CAPACITY OPERATIONS.

Did you know—I didn't even suspect it—that more people in this country fish than play golf? Doesn't it interest you—it does me—to learn that a boom has developed in fishing?

President W. Bruce Pirnie of the Montague Rod and Reel Company, Massachusetts, obviously a philosophic citizen, writes that he [illegible] [illegible] good news is more welcomed than bad news, hence he has been prompted [illegible] [illegible] He adds:

"On second thought, I'm not so sure that you will consider it good news because it concerns increased sales of fishing rods—and I don't know whether it indicates that people simply haven't anything to do but fish, or whether they consider fishing an inexpensive pastime for depression days, or whether things are actually picking up and people can afford such things as fishing rods. All I do know is that sales of fishing rods have been picking up for several months.

"This company's plants (in Montague City, Massachusetts, and Post Mills, Vermont, are operating at capacity levels. We are taking on some new employes and expect to take on more. We sell more fishing rods than any other maker in the world—last year over $10,000,000 of tackles was sold at factory prices. You probably won't believe it, but more people go fishing in this country than play golf!

"I recently returned from the Middle West, and our sales are running 50 per cent greater than last fall—one of the greatest increases ever recorded.

"While I don't know if it is bullish for general industry as a whole, it certainly is to us, and we are looking at the future through rose-colored glasses."

$1,500,000 Order by Graham-Paige

Graham-Paige Motors Corp. is currently placing orders for $1,500,000 worth of material for delivery between Dec. 1 and Feb. 1. This purchase is the largest made by Graham this year.

Dividends

• • •

Congoleum-Nairn, Inc., declared a quarterly dividend of 15 cents on the common, payable Dec. 15, to stock of record Dec. 1. Formerly, 25 cents quarterly was paid.

J. & P. Coats, Ltd., declared quarterly dividend of sixpence less tax on common, the same as three months ago.

COMMODITIES' ACTION IS CHEERING

By FRANK H. MELOON

The latest action of commodities is distinctly cheering, even though it so far means only some retrieving of lost ground. When a patient is stretched out prostrate and unconscious, the physicians are apt to have hope if they can detect life with stethoscope or breath on the well known mirror. That applies pretty well to the grain market, if not so much to cotton. Some ask what will happen after the bears have covered their commitments in the pits. By that time it is to be hoped things will be pick[illegible] up so convincingly that they will [illegible] to make new ones.

• • •

One broker says grains and stocks have been showing parallel trends. That is rather misleading since if shares had followed grains completely down, they would now be at new historic lows.

• • •

Ray M. Hudson

"Business must and will go on, because red-blooded men, men of wisdom, grit and courage will make it go on. We here in New England are thankful that we came through the depression as well as we have. By comparison with other regions we have fared pretty well. The fact that we ha[illegible] is not altogether the result of good luck. It is the result of sound principles, sound thinking, good management, prudence, thrift and other virtues typical of New England men and institutions."

• • •

Mr. Hudson finds us well equipped with the material to win the war against the forces of destruction. Mr. Hudson hints at a new hope for the battered railroads when he says:

"I predict that a slower rate per year of new highway construction will follow the demand for reduced public expenditure and lower taxes, also that the highway congestion, which will follow, as many people again become able to own and operate automobiles, will tend to increase business for other types of transportation."

• • •

Converts to the idea that American Telephone directors will declare the dividend at the regular rate next week are growing. Despite yesterday's recovery of the previous day's setback, the stock has not acted as confidently as many of these new believers would like to see it perform.

• • •

I hear the Wisconsin authorities are launching another attack on the Boston Stock Exchange, the reason for which is not evident.

SPECTATOR Says:

Wall Street, after thinking things over, apparently repented Wednesday's action. The market looked more convincing than it has in weeks. It will have to do some carrying through, though, to dispel skepticism. The market is really showing good sponsorship. Let's see if it continues.

Objectives

Tentative objectives are said to be 120 for American Telephone and around 45 for U. S. Steel . . . One guess is as good as another anyway . . . The buying in Lorillard is understood to be very well-posted . . . A good deal of the recent buying in American Tobacco B and Liggett & Myers B is reported to have come from Pittsburgh.

This crowd also is said to have been in on the ground floor in Owens Illinois Glass . . . We learn that Europe is playing around with this one, too, as well as U. S. Alcohol . . . Evidently the Continent believes prohibition repeal is just around the corner . . . Europe was generally a heavy buyer of stocks.

Here and There

Action of General Motors and Du Pont confirms the rumor that Wilmington is getting busy again. Of course Raskob was tied up with the buying.

It's Wall Street's most common practice to link somebody big with a stock once it does anything, and usually the best names are used.

Strength in the rails was apparently largely sentimental, though the regular Union Pacific dividend helped. October rail earnings reports are going to be good, it is well to remember . . . Rumors are current that an agreement is imminent on the other side on disarmament. This may explain the recent Continental buying of stocks.

STATE ST. Hears:

That the assurance of a new deal has taken hold and the stock market is loathe to pass by such an opportunity. The conviction that things should improve, with the Democratic party so completely in power, is so deep rooted that the financial district is even swinging around to the idea the short congressional session will result in much-needed legislation. The long position taken here weeks ago might be expanded on set-backs.

With the Chartists

The chartists are a bit perturbed. Despite the buoyancy of Monday and Wednesday they report that the high points in the averages and in many important stocks suggest rather stubborn resistance. In fact it appears that minor double and triple tops formed. The formations are also just under the high of Oct. 19.

The Dow Jones compilations show minor triple tops at approximately 65.50 for the industrials and 28.75 for the rails. In neither case is the top perfect. The really important feature is that the resistance areas are less than a point under the high of October 19. This may indicate a strong double top.

Volume is again likely to prove our best guide. When the double bottom of October 10-November 3 was complete it was noticeable that on the second leg selling did not follow through. If buying in volume is resumed and the above areas negotiated the top theory will have to be discarded.

This and That

The double top and bottom theory is absolutely dependent on conditions surrounding market action, in the opinion of many market analysts. They contend that the market follow through is the deciding factor. Obviously tape watchers will feel more cheerful if the noted resistance is quickly overcome on volume.

Individual issues facing similar resistance are Air Reduction at 57½, American Can at 55, Atchison at 41, International Harvester at 22½, Lorillard at 13¼, Phillips at 6½, Texas Corporation at 14¾ and U. S. Industrial Alcohol at 30½. Others may be found by checking the tops on the days noted.

In the event tape prices show resistance to have been overcome by the time this edition is on the "street," chartists will be inclined to advise purchases during setbacks. They will feel that traders are confronted with good upside profit opportunities.

General Steel Net Loss Is Lowered

New York, Nov. 11 (AP)—General Steel Castings Corporation, for nine months reports a consolidated net loss of $1,815,563 compared with a similar loss of $2,003,125 in the like period of 1931. For the third 1932 quarter the loss aggregated $712,406 against $796,824 in the 1931 period.

New York Curb Seat $32,000

Arrangements have been made for sale of a New York Curb Exchange seat at $32,000, up $2000 from previous sales.

BUSINESS SEEN AS SUSTAINED BY REVIEWS

New York, Nov. 11 (AP)—General business and trade continue to hold up well the Weekly Mercantile Review said today.

"The vitality of business," said Bradstreets, "is indicated by a number of signs. The volume of production and distribution has held up in spite of the retarding effect of the election. Chain, retail and department stores report a volume of business in general below the same period of last year, but fully as good as any time during the past four months.

"Furthermore, the decline in retail prices, accompanied by a steady dollar volume in sales, indicates that physical volume in terms of shoes, coats, butter and eggs is better than it has been for some time. Advices from a number of scattered cities indicate progress of a more positive character."

Duns said that "with the atmosphere now clarified, a resumption of the gradual trade expansions, which has been in evidence for several months, is expected to proceed with fewer interruptions.

"The steadiness of retail business is an indication of strength and a broadening of the seasonal revival doubtless will be manifest right up to the close of the year. The encouraging recovery of commodity prices this week gives evidence that the buyers' hesitation which has obtained in some markets may be broken soon, as both wholesalers and retailers are carrying inventories substantially lighter than those of former years at this season, and supposedly inadequate to meet any long-sustained demand."

Closing Is Firm in London Market

London, Nov. 11 (AP)—Trans-Atlantic issues, reflecting favorable Wall Street reports, led the general improvement on the stock exchange and recent sellers turned buyers. Gilt edged securities were additionally affected by war debts talk. The market closed firm with good net gains.

New Bond Issues of Week $500,000

New bond issues aggregating only $500,000 were offered in the New York market this week. This compared with $23,549,000 last week when New York city financing was sold and $10,359,000 in the same week of 1931.

More Aviation Shares

Stock Exchange received notice from Aviation Corp. of a proposed change in par of the common to $4 from $5 and an increase in authorized shares to 6,500,000 from 5,000,000.

RISE RENEWED, WITH TRADING MORE ACTIVE

Prices pushed up 1 to more than 4 points in the earlier hours, sharply extending the gains of the previous session. As in yesterday's session, however, the market had a spell of hesitancy around midday, in which extreme advances were pared down by fractions, or in some cases as much as a point.

RAILS TAKE THE LEAD

Rails were again in the lead with advances of around 4 points in Union Pacific and Norfolk and Western. Issues up 2 or more included American Telephone, Case, Atchison, U. S. Steel preferred, Bethlehem preferred, Radio preferred B, and others. U. S. Steel, American Can, International Harvester and Standard of N. J. were among issues rising a point or more.

Radio common was turned over in large volume, moving up about a point. The stocks calculated to benefit by legalization of beer, however, turned heavy. Losses of 1 to 2 appeared in Crown Cork, Owens Illinois Glass and Liquid Carbonic, on profit-taking.

Professional activity continued to dominate the price trends in shares, however, a number of wire houses reporting that public participation was still small. The rails, particularly, were said to be benefiting from short covering. American Telephone, another stock which had been a recent bear target, both from large professional operators and small speculators, was likewise boosted by covering.

The principal influence which lent an encouraging background to sentiment concerning the rails continued to come from the prospect of a report, early next year, from the Non-Partisan Coolidge Commission.

REVIEWS ENCOURAGING

St. Paul was stated in preliminary estimates to show net operating income of about $1,400,000 in October against $1,470,477 in September. The October figures, however, compared favorably with the corresponding 1931 figure, which was $1,179,977.

The weekly mercantile reviews were moderately encouraging. Bradstreet's reported that:

"The volume of production and distribution was held up well in spite of the retarding influence of the election," and Dun's found that "the steadiness of retail business is an indication of strength and a broadening of the seasonal revival doubtless will be manifest right up to the close of the year."

The oil shares derived some help from the information that the Texas House and Senate had passed the new oil conservation law.

The British foreign trade figures furnished some faint indication of a possible expansion of international commerce. Imports into the United Kingdom in October were 60,828,000 pounds sterling against 54,266,000 in September. Exports were 30,440,000 pounds against 26,228,000.

Hearing before Referee Irwin Kurtz on receivership of United Cigar Stores Co. of America was postponed until Nov. 25. Monsanto Chemical Works and subsidiaries have adopted the five-day week.

Boston Exchange Is Closed for Holiday

The Boston Stock Exchange was closed to regular trading today, in observance of the Armistice Day holiday.

As the New York Stock Exchange was open, "skeleton forces" were maintained at Boston offices for local trading in stocks on the big board.

Walter S. Place of Walter S. Place & Co., dealers in stocks "over the counter," reported the market in unlisted stocks today was strong.

Soviet Payment Is Made to Harvester

International Harvester has received $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 as final payment on its 1929 order, and part payment on its 1930 order for tractors, etc., shipped to Russia. A balance of about $2,500,000 is due it in autumn of 1933.

Cotton Higher in New York Market

New York, Nov. 11 (INS)—The cotton market continued to make headway today, although on a more conservative scale than yesterday's late burst of strength, with gains around mid-day ranging from 14 to 19 points. Late prices saw December showing a gain of 19 points at 6.55; January was up 14 at 6.61; March up 19 at 6.70; May up 19 at 6.81; and July up 16 at 6.89.

New Brewing Stock on Pittsburgh List

Pittsburgh, Nov. 11—Pittsburgh Stock Exchange admitted to unlisted trading the common stock of Fort Pitt Brewing Co. The stock, offered for subscription at $1.50 Wednesday, sold Thursday at 2⅞.

Coal Loadings Set New High for Year

Bituminous coal loadings into vessels for the week ended Nov. 7 established a new high record for the year to date. A total of 1,172,935 tons were dumped, compared with the previous record for the year made in the week of Oct. 24, when 1,066,883 tons were moved.

Loadings for the week of Nov. 7 also surpassed the same week of 1931, which showed a movement of 1,026,525 tons.

LOOK FOR NEW RAIL BUYING

New York, Nov. 11 (AP)—The recent piling up of railway deferred maintenance charges is being watched closely by the large steel companies with an eye to real business when and if the carriers make both ends meet sufficiently to enter the important buying class.

Rails and operating equipment, it is pointed out, are slowly but surely wearing out and, in some instances, replacement orders must appear in a short time.

Former Secretary of Commerce Lamont, now head of the American Iron & Steel Institute, recently said the railroads over the next several years would be under the necessity of making exceptionally large expenditures for maintenance if they hoped to run trains.

For the first eight months of 1932 the maintenance of way charges of the Class 1 railroads were 57 per cent lower than for the first eight months of 1929. Operating revenues were 50 per cent under the 1929 figure.

Protective Board for Middle West

Common stockholders' protective committees formed for interests of Middle West Utilities holders in New England and the East. W. A. Nash, president of W. A. Nash & Co., Inc., Boston, is chairman of committee, which includes S. J. Hegatty, president of State Trust Co., Augusta, and Philip S. Chase of Philip S. Chase & Co., Providence.

Cotton Belt Adds Help

Pine Bluff, Ark., Nov. 11—With addition of 221 men Wednesday, St. Louis-Southwestern shops are now employing 425. Monthly payroll now is $40,000.

Business Reassured by Cooperation

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

New York, Nov. 11—Business can be reassured at this juncture by evidence of willingness of both parties to co-operate and through indications of willingness on the part of private executives to continue to serve the government during the economic emergency.

There has been some semblance of united action for a year, but while the election was ahead, progress was impeded by the disposition of both sides to angle to get credit and to avoid blame.

Near-term legislation is not likely to become of major economic importance. The lame duck Congress, which meets next month, will doubtless concern itself mainly with budgetary matters, with the appropriations and with tax reform. The financial district believes that the outcome of the election assures action toward legalizing beer, which should produce revenue of upwards of $300,000,000 a year.

Some variant of the sales tax may be adopted. There is an inclination to believe that passage of the omnibus bank reform bill may go over to the next Congress. Banking is assured of a minimum of disturbance in the transitional period at Washington by the fact that the Federal Reserve Board, a bi-partisan body, is a continuing agency. Eugene Meyer, Jr., the Governor, who was summoned to public life by Woodrow Wilson, a Democrat, has served in Washington under the three Republican administrations, and has been one of the principal financial advisors of President Hoover.

Contrary to the rumor printed in the Journal of Commerce to the effect that Mr. Meyer would resign, it can be said that Mr. Meyer will continue in office. His term runs six years longer. Mr. Meyer has always recognized the necessity of keeping the Federal Reserve System out of politics.

In connection with the self liquidating loan for a housing project announced for the Bronx by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and denounced by local realtors, a proponent of the loan said that in the readjustment of housing, old buildings, which no longer meet popular tastes, would inevitably suffer. He foresaw a long-term trend away from congested cities, at railroad terminals, to suburban places along the concrete highways. Those who formerly lived in slums, he said, also want to live where other folks live.

NEW BUILDING IS PLANNED

The following is a list of some of the larger projects now being figured which have not been previously mentioned, according to Brown's Letters, Inc., Advance Building Information, who have plans and specifications on file in their office:

Municipal building, city of Cambridge, Cambridge. Architect, Putnam & Cox, Boston.

George M. Lovejoy residence, West Newton, Mass. Architect, Clifford Allbright, Boston.

Postoffice, Presque Isle, Me, Private plans.

F. W. Dodge Corp. announced today that new building contracts awarded in New England during the past week, ended Nov. 8, totaled $1,728,500.

Sears Announces $23,652,111 Sales

Chicago, Nov. 11 (AP) — Sears, Roebuck & Company reported today its dollar sales for the period of October 9 to November 5 totalled $23,652,111, a decrease of $3,493,814 or 12.9 per cent from the same period in 1931. From January 2 to November 5, the announcement said, the company's dollar sales were $229,997, 154 compared with $287,213,533 for last year, a decrease of $57,216,379 or 19.9 per cent.

Big Woolen Plant Runs at Capacity

Stafford Springs, Ct., Nov. 11—After bitter experiences of operating in the red during the first six months of 1932, the Cyril Johnson Woolen Co. has anounced an influx of orders which will keep its plant on a full-time schedule until the end of this year.

Embarrassing Moments

Dear Embarrassing Moments Editor:

At a football game the other afternoon, I sat behind a gentleman who was continually leaping to his feet in the excitement of the moment. Once when he jumped up and began waving his arms, I also arose, wishing to see what was going on, and carelessly placed on the seat before me a large substantial tack I happened to have in my hand at the moment. Imagine my embarrassment when he sat down again.

Yours in confusion,

BRING US YOUR PROBLEM, CHILD

This is just one of the many problems we have to contend with—but if we enjoy the work what does it matter?

We maintain a big, cozy corner for the convenience of those who seek sympathy, advice and a slap on the back. Many's the night you'll see a light burning in our Helping Hand Department just because we want to help others.

An unfortunate case came to our attention only yesterday. A little lady called. She was obviously upset and had been drinking herpicide.

"Oh, nothing," she said, "except I don't know what my husband can be thinking about. He puts so much vaseline on his hair, and combs it back so slick lately, that he can't close his mouth."

We tried to explain that petroleum plays an important part in the economic structure. And before she left she was laughing and telling questionable stories. We recite this merely to acquaint you with the work we are quietly doing in this community.

VOICE OF BROADWAY

By LOUIS SOBOL

Cabooches and Kinks!

(And Tell with the walrus!)

So Roosevelt was swept into office and with him enough of the moists to indicate that the almost decade and a half of the Great American Parch (speaking from a point of legality only, of course) is over and that now it is only a matter of time before the gay beer trucks rumble noisily and merrily over the streets to the legalized oases as they used to in the days when I was a kid and was interested in beer trucks only because it was swell fun to hitch your toy wagon to the tailboard of the truck and ride along for blocks without having to push yourself. Which reminds me that little Ruthie Schwerin called me up a few minutes ago to report an incident at the voting booth on 88th st., where she cast the first ballot of her life Tuesday. Two gents, stewed to the gills, kept shoving each other along, good-naturedly, between hiccups, in the long line of voters. Finally, the one in the rear chirped, "Shay, fella, who y'voshin' f'r? . . . "Hoo'er I'm voshin' f'r, Hoo'er. Who are y'voshin' f'r? . . . "Rooshv'l Gran' fella, Rooshv'l."

The stew in front pondered deeply and then stepped out of line. "Y'voshin' f'r Rooshv'l, I'm voshin f'r Hoo'er. Zat makesh even. Whash use voshin'? Lesh go and get a drink." And the two staggered out.

Peggy Fears, her hair flopping down to her shoulders, swept down the aisle of the Alvin Theater, Tuesday night, followed by Dorothy Hall and A. C. Blumenthal and an elderly gent whose identity is unknown to me, and they sat down somewhere in Row F to watch "Music in the Air" unfold for a nicely-gowned and tuxedoed opening. Now, I wasn't in the most favorably inclined mood toward the play for purely personal reasons but the first few mellow scenes of the production knocked the chip clean off my shoulder and I settled down to honest enjoyment of as lovable a stage piece (I can think of no other word to use than "lovable" in this case) as I've aisle-seated for since "The Cat and the Fiddle." I haven't had the opportunity yet of reading what my distinguished confrere, John Anderson, thought of the play but if he doesn't agree with me this one time, at least, that here is a genial, highly enjoyable, beautifully set and almost flawlessly directed vehicle, then he can take his old dramatic criticisms and send them with all those fancy hi-falutin' words which common folks like me have to translate down to "I no like that play" and—well, I'll take "Music in the Air." After all, the fellow's taller and decidedly cleverer than I am. But to get back to Peggy Fears—there she sat in Row "F" or maybe it was "E" and here was a gem of a musical being produced under her name, authored and composed by two present day masters of word and music, Oscar Hammerstein, 2nd and Jerome Kern, and scenaried by Joseph Urban—here she was between acts, asking one person after another, "Who won the election?"

I drifted into the Hollywood after the show and listened to George Givot's Greek patter and announcements of the latest election results. Over at a table to the right of me sat Julia Hoyt (once the very devoted Mrs. Louis Calhern), looking somewhat bored until Givot announced that Lehman had carried the State by a record majority, whereupon, while the other patrons cheered and blew horns, she booed long and loudly and finally walked out with her tall, handsome escort, from which I gathered that Julia Hoyt was disappointed in Lehman's victory, and only two hours later I walked into Reuben's, and there, by the strangest coincidence, sat Louis Calhern with Natalie Shaefer, and I pondered over the ways of the menfolk and womenfolk of Broadway, for it was only the other season that you'd never see the tall Calhern with any other woman than his wife, Julia Hoyt—and vice versa. I wondered, too, if Julia walked into Reuben's at the time whether either would feel embarrassed, or have they, too, reached the "perfect understanding"? In the space between my visit to the Hollywood and Reuben's I landed at the Montparnasse, and there sat John Gilbert and Virginia Bruce and Paul Felix Warburg, the younger, all in a merry mood, and here again I wondered whether there'd be any embarrassment if Ina Claire should walk in. Which reminds me that I've just heard (and I can't vouch for its accuracy) that Ina was at the Mayfair dance with Constance Bennett the other Saturday night, and when she got back to her hotel a long distance 'phone call awaited her. It was a producer in California asking her would she consider returning to the Coast to help supervise the production of "Our Betters," which the movie company had just bought as a starring vehicle for Constance, the ironic point being that for several years Ina Claire has wanted to star in the film version of just that particular play.

I've just stumbled across the neatest cable address—that of Leland Hayward, the play agent. It's "Haywire, N. Y.," which reminds me that George Bye, the literary agent, can be cabled to "Bye-Bye, N. Y.," and that Helen Morgan receives her cables from Arthur Loew to "Mousey, N. Y." That, of course, has nothing to do with the rather amusing incident of one night last week when as I was about to leave a certain snooty rendezvous, a waiter came over to me and whispered cautiously, "You're Mr. Sobol, aintchoo?" and when I assured him I was, he pulled me aside and said, "There's a fellow—way back there—he says he wants you to come over. He's gotta see you." I started in the direction toward which he pointed when he pulled me back and whispered, timidly, "Maybe you better not go—I think he's——" and he mentioned the name of a well known racketeering king of town with a fear-inspiring reputation. "Well, lead me to him." I requested but the waiter shook his head. "You better go yourself," so I went and the racketeering king pulled me down to his side, while the waiter watched from the distance, trembling and white-faced. So to reassure him at this late date, he might as well know that I wasn't being summoned for anything more important than a gag which the fellow had just heard and was growing positively hysterical over. He simply had to tell it to me, and when I told him it was pretty moth-eaten and had appeared in several columns, my friend, the much-feared racketeer, went into a deep funk and I have a hunch I spoiled his night no end. But he needn't have been so depressed. I've had many a day ruined by having people call me up and ask how I had the gall to accept my weekly pay check after printing gags that they heard or read when I was still hitching my wagon to beer trucks.

Books---And a Number of Things

By CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

In "The Strangest Friendship in History" (Liveright) George Sylvester Viereck leads us, step by step, from that momentous day in 1912 when Woodrow Wilson met Col. E. M. House to another day in 1924 when Wilson died.

"I shall attempt to trace the intimacy of the two men from its mysterious beginning to its equally mysterious end, and to unfold its effect on the destiny of the United States," says Mr. Viereck.

He was privileged to go through all of Col. House's private letters to Wilson and not only that, but he has talked innumerable times with the Colonel, and drawn from him many intimate statements which throw light on this amazing relationship.

Remained Adviser

Wilson thought of House as his alter ego. The Colonel sought nothing in the way of political favors. Therein lay his strength. He was offered a place in the Wilson Cabinet, but firmly refused it. "If I had been Secretary of State every day a new gulf might have arisen between Wilson and myself," House said. "I could remain his informal adviser even if my advice were rejected. Had I gone into the Cabinet I could not have lasted eight weeks." Outside the Cabinet, as Seymour puts it, he lasted eight years!

"Could Wilson have forced you to assume the responsibility of office?" Viereck once asked Colonel House.

"No. If he had made that the condition of our co-operation I would have stepped out."

"Did Bryan never resent the fact that you were Mr. Wilson's super-Secretary of State?"

"Bryan would not have been human if he had been entirely free from resentment. He told one of the members of the Cabinet that he resigned on my account. I am not disposed to criticize Bryan. I admired his great qualities."

• • •

Vice-President Marshall, we learn, like the Secretary of State, never figured in the consultations which took place between David and Jonathan. Marshall was held too lightly according to Col. House.

"An unfriendly fairy godmother presented him with a keen sense of humor. Nothing is more fatal in politics. Many politicians destroy themselves by their wit. Wit makes enemies. It stirs up the hornets. Marshall made friends, not enemies. But they looked upon him as a jester. Marshall was spontaneous and genuine.

• • •

Book Inscription

"Once he presented a book to Woodrow Wilson. 'How,' Col. House asked, with the ghost of a chuckle, 'do you think he inscribed it?—To Woodrow Wilson, from his only Vice.'"

On December 18, 1915, a new mistress entered the White House. Neither Wilson nor House had a premonition of the change in their relationship which the second marriage portended. For more than one year House remained in Wilson's thoughts and in his letters "my dearest friend." In January, 1917, the sentimental salutation was dropped. There was no quarrel, no explanation, no flourish of trumpets. But the thermometer fell. The President, basking in the sunshine of his nuptials, no longer needed the comradeship of the man from Texas. Perhaps the President was scarcely aware of the precipitate decline in the temperature of his affection.

House, whose soul was a psychic barometer, must have sensed that the change in address betrayed a change in heart. But he never referred to the subject.

When the Lusitania was sunk there came the first sharp breach between the two friends. Wilson, like House, loved England, but he loved peace more. Instead of sending an ultimatum to Berlin he made an impassioned speech, in which occurred his famous line, "There is such a thing as a man being too proud to fight. There is such a thing as a nation being so right that it does not need to convince others by force that it is right."

"I shall resign if Hughes is elected!" It was House who inspired this bold decision of President Wilson in the campaign of 1916.

No one knew better than House how resolutely the face of the President was set against entangling the United States in Europe's quarrel.

Some fifteen years later many scoffed at the story of Wilson's proposed resignation; but, skeptics to the contrary, Wilson's mind was made up. Colonel House wrote in his diary, Oct. 19, 1916: "It occurred to me yesterday to suggest to the President, in the event of his defeat, to ask both Marshall and Lansing to resign and then appoint Hughes Secretary of State. He should then resign himself, making Hughes President of the United States. Times are too critical to have an interim of four months between the election and the inauguration of the next President."

• • •

Mind Made Up

There is much sensational material scattered through the chapters as we approach the final days of President Wilson. Then we see the devotion of his wife, which kept the flickering flame burning. The astute David Lawrence remarks that she stood between her husband and the Government; indeed, between him and the outside world.

"For all his might," says Mr. Viereck at the end, "Wilson could not stand alone. In every fruitful enterprise he borrowed the Colonel's brains. Woodrow Wilson stalks through history on the feet of Edward Mandell House."

Now for the Advance!
The Issue Is Settled; Close Up the Ranks

Let us all, winners and losers alike, now push forward with the single purpose of restoring prosperity and making ours a BETTER, HAPPIER and SAFER country.

The heated charges and counter-charges of opposing candidates must be forgotten.

Every man and woman must strive with whole-hearted devotion to pull this great Republic out of the mire of depression and to set it again on the highroad of progress.

The fears and uncertainties of the months before election are over. The issue has been decided. The way is now clear for a nationwide advance.

That advance must go on UNCHECKED.

With unity, co-operation and courage they will smash the forces of hardship and hunger and DRIVE THEM EVERLASTINGLY FROM OUR LAND.

Whaddya Mean?
Poor English? It's O. K.

A teacher's life, like a policeman's, is not a happy one. But it bids fair to be made considerably happier if recommendations made by a large number of them are adopted for the classroom.

These teachers are urging the National Council of English Teachers to approve certain colloquial and slang expressions instead of correcting children who use them.

It's me.

Who are you looking for?

Healthy climate.

Go slow.

Move quick.

Further (for farther).

If I was (for if I were).

And so on through 230 items on which the purists and the populace disagree.

On the whole, it seems a good idea.

It is seriously to be doubted if any amount of teaching will ever change the habits of the average young American, or old one either.

And the professors are usually a generation or two behind the language.

How to Keep Fit
Governor Cross' Prescription

Governor Wilbur L. Cross, the 71-year-old Yale professor and chief executive of the Nutmeg State, wound up a victorious campaign that would have taxed the energies of many a younger man, and is hale and hearty in spite of it.

The Governor recently explained why he was able to stump the State in this vigorous fashion.

> "I don't bathe," he said. "That may astonish you, but all you have to know is the history of the daily bath upon the decay of races to see that when a man has strenuous work to do he must avoid the debilitating influence of water."

Governor Cross blamed the decline and fall of the Roman Empire on the fondness of Romans for lolling in hot tubs. And he might have added, though he did not, that Napoleon was a bath fanatic when he lost the battle of Waterloo.

The Governor's frank confession might have lost him the support of bathtub manufacturers in his State, if there are any. But it is safe to say that he could count on the undying loyalty of every small boy in Connecticut.

Inventiveness Fails

The height, or the depth, of ingenuity seems to be that achieved by a yachtsman on San Francisco Bay. He has made a diving bell out of an ice-cream container, some inner tubes and plenty of old garden hose.

Most of us would rather go down in William Beebe's bathysphere, or go bumping among the clouds in Professor Picard's iron bubble. The yachtsman goes for walks on the floor of the bay, but is not happy yet, for he hasn't been able to find that cigarette case he dropped overboard a year ago. That gave him the impulse to invent this contraption.

If it were a pocket-flask, with a pre-war content, his motive would be understandable. But it is a fabulous lot of trouble to take for a cigarette case.

Perhaps, however, he had borrowed it from his wife, and she still wants it back.

Cardinal and Library

Cardinal O'Connell's decision to serve as a trustee of the Boston Public Library is a boon to the public service.

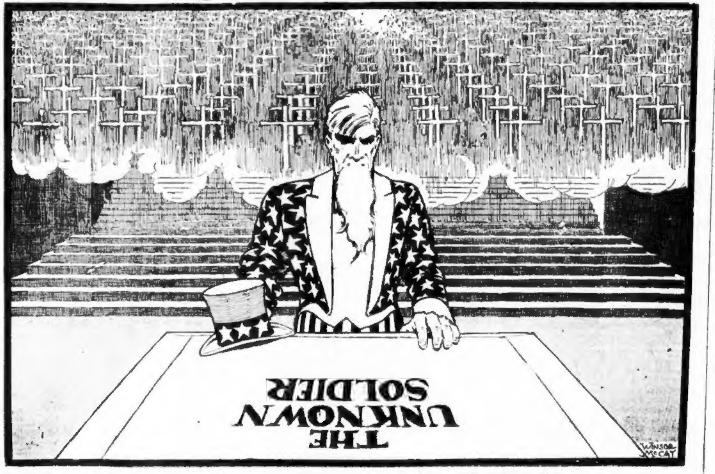
He is a distinguished churchman. His administration of the largest church organization within the United States exacts heavily of his time, ability and endurance.

With all these labors, he takes on a new task, giving to the public without compensation a service in skill and talent which the public could not buy.

This is an act of fine citizenship. It should serve as an example to those of the present day who seek public office, for the salary, for personal aggrandizement or for some of the other selfish advantages that may flow from it.

His appointment by Mayor Curley cannot but be a cause for general approval.

'Lest We Forget' -:- An American Recessional



Lord God of Hosts, we come again
With contrite hearts, and humbly pray
That peace on earth, goodwill to men
Shall usher in Thy perfect day
When warlike banners are unfurled
No more, and justice rules the world.

For that we pray; and yet we know
Thou wouldst not have us stand, O Lord,
Unarmed before a sudden foe,
Like teeming Asia's restless horde,
But as Thy people stood of old—
Serene in faith in Thee, and bold.

Yea, bold to strike when alien wrongs
Assail us, though not over-bold
To conquer; unto us belongs
The simple right to have and hold
This freedom, and this favored land
That came from Thy benignant hand.

Thy day of peace will dawn, O God,
When Thou hast willed it. Till that day
Our task it is to guard the sod
Made sacred by the Fathers' clay
And till that day hath come, O Lord,
We dare not throw away the sword.

New York Day by Day

Thoughts While Strolling

NEW YORK, Nov. 11—Thoughts while strolling: I confuse Digby Bell and Kyrle Bellew. For anthropologists: Harry K. Thaw's magnificently shaped head. There's a better taste, anyway, to the glue on three-cent stamps. Whatever became of Napoleon Lajoie? Clifton Webb makes me think of a Palmer Brownie.

One-word description of Billy Gaxton—shiny. Nick Kenney, the radio columnist. The wise-crackers of the old Palace corner not clot around broadcasting stations. A white poodle with a black raincoat—crepe de chien? Richard Lockbridge, the town's youngest dramatic critic. Also a recent author.

Christopher Morley, a Haverford, Pa., boy, who made good in the city. Bill Robinson's lop-sided brown derby and levee swagger. Russel—one l, please—Crouse, who quit columning to ballyhoo. An acute angle is his profile in caricature. Also, Arthur William Brown's Installment jewelry houses opening again. Meaning—you guess! Leo Lindamann, the restaurateur known to Broadway as Lindy. Ted Saucier has the neatest cropped mustache in town. Charles B. Dillingham in front of the Astor. I always want to sneak up and straighten his derby.

Those all-night barber shops featuring "hot towel service." Whose idea was that of heaven—a place where one may loll in a barber's chair and have endless hot towels on a freshly shaved face? Harry Hansen, the book critic, and Charles B. Driscoll look alike. So do V. V. McNitt and Thomas Mitchell, the actor.

Johnny Farrar and partner, Stanley Rinehart—two more of the boy publishers, and doing a swell job, too. After all, what is more stirring than a fresh flag rippling against a clean sky. Or do you sense a strain of mawkishness today? All right, then, I'll follow the parade!

One film firm's trade mark is a rooster. Another a lion. A third seeks a similar emblem. And Mickey Neilan, who doesn't care for them, suggests a rat.

* * *

H. N. Swanson left a collegiate magazine editorial chair for movie lots. His first activity concerned, quite naturally, a football film. To his undying credit, the finished script contained no game won at the last moment, a ukulele or a coach giving the bunch a tongue-lashing in the dressing room between periods.

* * *

I cherish a vague hope that the next columnist film—if they must produce them—will sustain similar reality. The majority of columnists over the land are not filling water coolers with gin, haunting night clubs, dashing into stars' dressing rooms, telling the managing editor to go sit on a tack or being received at the White House. Columnists, I know—and I'm acquainted with most—are the most self-effacing members of editorial staffs. The movie generalization, that the columnist is a bombastic swell-head, may fit a specific type. But that breed is in the minority.

* * *

The first big league columnist I knew intimately was the late Charles R. Barnes, flashing too briefly across the journalistic horizon. In many ways the most gifted, he had the owlish, detached manner of Ring Lardner and was the same stickler for writing purity. In two years, he assembled the most enthusiastic following any columnist—outside of B. L. T.—ever collected. His pillar bore the rather homely title: "All Sorts." But he wearied. Applause became wormwood, and he was likely first of the clan to quit at popularity's peak. He wrote hilarious short stories for pulps for a while, and was just cracking into gloss gazettes when he threw down his pen again and succumbed to wanderlust. A curious anomaly—a great writer who actually despised writing.

* * *

My contact with Barnes grew out of his skewering the country jake items I wrote for a Middle West daily and captioning them mirthfully. One, I recall blushingly, was a personal jotting: "Miss Dora Dodd headlined: "Served the Roue Right." and lit on a rake," which Barnes headliner: "Served the Roue Right." In last lingering days from California, he paid me one of the finest compliments I ever received. In view of his earlier rigging, I was immeasurably thrilled.

For the first time in New York, I had real home-made ice cream last night. And, bless my second-best aunt, I kept looking up for lighted Japanese lanterns. Or didn't you attend ice cream sociables?

Listen, World!
By Elsie Robinson

Lost Their Perspective

WHY DO PEOPLE RUN AMUCK?

Steady, conventional people who have always led respectable lives—why do they suddenly explode into some sensational act?

You've seen it happen dozens of times. And it has bewildered you; made you wonder whether human beings could ever be trusted; perhaps made you a little afraid of yourself. Could YOU do such a thing—break loose from all your established habits, cast yourself adrift from your family and friends? It does not seem possible. Yet those others did it. Why?

Elsie Robinson

Captain John H. Ayres tells why in that amazing book, "MISSING MEN," which he has written in collaboration with Carol Bird. And if ever a man had the opportunity to learn why men become lost, it is Captain Ayers.

Have you ever had need to appeal to the Missing Persons Bureau of the New York Police Department? Let's hope you never will. Steel gray, steel gaunt rooms, with the sound of shuffling feet whimpering down the long corridors and the whine of the East Side seeping in over the sill.

If you have the stuff in you to catch it, you'll be seeing another scene, hearing another sound. You'll be seeing the stagnant waste of Sargossa Sea. And you'll be hearing the wail of the ships, and the souls that are lost in its stagnant tide.

For this Bureau of Missing Men is a human Sargossa. Here come the lost, and those who search for the lost. A thousand tragic stories, yet only one reason behind them all.

"THEY LOST THEIR PERSPECTIVE," says Captain John Ayers.

Through this city they all pass, sooner or later—those men who have cast themselves adrift from their normal world. And, in 98 per cent of the cases, Captain Ayers finds them.

To the world they have left, many of these missing men and women are criminals. But John Ayers does not see them as criminals. He sees them as sick souls who had a reason, even if it was a sick reason, for their act.

The man who deserted the wife who loved him too much; the innocent girl who went bad because she thought she had become a social "untouchable"; the sober, reliable housewife who disappeared with a worthless rascal because her husband had forgotten how to play; the beautiful, fantastic Baroness who adored her lover when she saw him in a dream, but refused to accept him when he appeared in flesh; the woman who killed herself because she was afraid to die; the man who dived into the water at Rye Beach, New York, and came up at Miami, Florida—one after another these people, with scores more, quicken into life out of Capt. Ayers' memory, under Carol Bird's magic pen.

A New York "Arabian Nights," with tales that can't be true—but are! And one reason for every tragic tale: "They lost perspective. They were too close to their individual difficulties to appraise them properly and, as a result, they magnified them, colored them and imagined them as unsolvable."

Why do respectable people suddenly run amuck? Why do serious, steady lives crack up? That's why.

They LIVE TOO CLOSE TO THEIR OWN DIFFICULTIES. They concentrate so upon their own problems that, presently, they are seeing nothing but their own problems. The world is shut out—and they lose all perspective. They do not want to be bad nor go mad. But, little by little, their own selfish, egotistical concentration on their personal problem cuts them off from the human scene. In spirit they are "missing men." Often their bodies follow their spirits, and they are actually lost

Could YOU become "a missing person?" YOU CERTAINLY COULD!

If you concentrate on your own troubles until they loom larger than any other problem, you will become a missing person as sure as God made little apples!

Your body may still be hanging around, making a nuisance of itself, BUT YOUR SOUL WILL BECOME A NAMELESS WANDERER.

Read that book and see how easy it is for any human to lose himself.

Just Folks

Lines for Armistice Day, 1932

Comrades in the Argonne sleeping
'Neath the poppies and the crosses,
Do you hear us sighing, weeping

Comrades in the Argonne lying,
Do you see us pale and frightened
By the need for self-denying,
Wanting every burden lightened?

Comrades whom we left behind us,
Was the truth by you suspected?
Did you know the years would find us
By the need to toil, dejected?

Comrades, source of verbal pride for Politicians, public speakers,
Did you understand you died for
Such a crowd of comfort-seekers?

Sound Americanism Will Defeat European Debt Cancellation Propaganda
By B. C. Forbes

Britain, acting in concert with other leading European powers, plans to bring every possible pressure upon the United States to wipe off the slate all, or practically all, the war debts owed us; but I understand that, if Washington refuses to agree to cancellation, or semi-cancellation, BRITAIN HAS THE MONEY READY IN THIS COUNTRY TO MAKE HER DECEMBER 15 PAYMENT.

Before Britain permitted her currency, sterling, to drop disastrously last month, I am informed that SHE TOOK THE PRECAUTION OF PURCHASING AN ADEQUATE AMOUNT OF AMERICAN DOLLARS and French francs, both firmly based on gold.

Therefore, should it be deemed necessary, in an attempt to intimidate the United States, to depress sterling to something like half its former international worth, the British Government would not find it necessary to buy dollars next month at excessive cost in pounds sterling.

Why is Great Britain less ready than other foreign debtors to refuse to honor her obligations to us? This explanation comes from a responsible British source:

> "It is enormously in Great Britain's interest that she should not set an example of default, seeing that she has so many millions of her own capital invested abroad."

From the same source comes this:

> "What will Great Britain do if America refuses to cancel or reduce her war debts?
>
> "The answer is: 'She will continue to pay the whole amounts without question.'"

The "weapon" Britain proposes to point at the head of America is sterling; sterling depreciated to $3 or, if need be, $2.50, a rate which, the British claim, would totally ruin America's foreign trade, and enable the various countries comprising the far-flung British Empire to relegate America to second-rate economic and industrial importance.

Britain has begun emphasizing, for the benefit of Americans, that "the cost of living in Great Britain, owing to the immense size of the sterling area, which is indeed virtually self-supporting, has not advanced" since Britain abandoned the gold standard. The warning, or threat, clearly implied is:

> "If you Americans insist upon collecting war debts, we will push our currency down to a level which will make it impossible for you to sell anything outside your own shores, and we will do this without causing our own prices to skyrocket, because our empire is 'virtually self-supporting.'"

Unless the inexorable workings of economic law are to be dethroned, no such result will eventuate. No nation has ever yet found a widely fluctuating currency conducive to national stability and prosperity. Nor will Great Britain. Make no mistake about it, Britain is extremely anxious to be able to restore a dependable currency, tied securely to gold, just as soon as she can effect a war debts settlement satisfactory to her.

Washington must refuse to be stampeded by British or other threats. Britain, France and every other nation admittedly is animated, in all war debt overtures, by self-interest. That is entirely natural.

Why should the United States be expected by Britain or France or any other country NOT to be animated by self-interest? It would be highly improper for those whom the American people have chosen to represent them at Washington to be animated by any other interest.

The American taxpayer is neither in a mood nor a financial position to assume the role of a Santa Claus bestowing billions of dollars to foreign nations, our competitors for foreign trade—and competitors with one another in multiplying colossal armaments.

Profitable Grouches
One Man Made Them So

The professional grouch never has been popular in America.

He ran counter to popular slogans such as "The voice with the smile wins," "Don't knock, boost" and other Pollyanna platitudes.

But in England, where the irate citizen sits down and blows off steam in a letter to the Times, one ingenious gentleman makes a good income by grumbling professionally.

This man, James Marlowe of London, found that wherever he went, in cafes, shops, theaters, buses or subways, things were not as they should be. Instead of writing to the Times, however, he went to the persons directly concerned.

He showed the subway officials how it was possible to ride without a ticket. The company corrected this and sent him a check.

He wrote a firm of caterers and told them that you couldn't drink out of their teacups without spilling tea. He got another check.

He pointed out to an electrical firm that nobody could read one of their electrical signs. Result, thanks and a suitable reward.

Now he makes a business of it.

A racket? No, merely a service that nobody had thought of before. In his own way, Mr. Marlowe is as great a genius as Columbus, Galileo or Edison.

AMERICAN'S HOME COLLEGE

TODAY'S QUESTION

This question will be repeated and answered tomorrow by Dr. Moses J. Aronson, instructor in philosophy.

SATURDAY'S QUESTION

By Myron L. Hoch
Department of Economics

One of the earliest theories put forward in support of the protective tariff is the infant industry argument. Under this theory a protective tariff is vitally necessary in a new, undeveloped country which is well adapted for the industries which it is proposed to protect, but these industries find it difficult at first to compete with the industries which are already established in the older countries.

The protective tariff, it is claimed, helps to get these industries intrenched and as soon as they have become going concerns they will be able to face world competition without the need of governmental protection.

Theoretically this argument is valid, but actually there is doubt as to its efficacy. Industries which have been sheltered by the tariff from infancy are never willing to admit that they have grown out of this stage into manhood. These industries are given an unfair advantage over competing industries.

They are never willing to face foreign competition in a free market, without the sheltering support of the tariff and clamor for more and more protection. American tariff history in itself refutes beyond the shadow of a doubt, the infant industry argument.
